Democratic Compromise Gives Farley Job to Flynn

Bronx Leader Was 'Big Jim's Choice; Calls for Unity, Forecasts Victory

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Edward J. Flynn, tall, gray, close-mouthed Bronx leader and veteran of President Roosevelt's New York State administration, yesterday accepted the chairmanship of the Democratic National Committee.

A compromise choice, Flynn's selection was regarded as a concession to retiring National Chairman James A. Farley and a coup to hold New York State in the coming elections. But there were rumblings of discontent in inner New Deal, Western and Southern segments of the party.

Flynn, who never was seriously considered until some of the top-flight leaders declined in advance to accept, was named at a conference between the President, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, his running mate; Farley and the five-man Democratic subcommittee which Flynn heads.

Pays Tribute to Farley

In a statement, Flynn immediately paid tribute to Farley, and forecast a Roosevelt victory but warned that no election is won until the votes are in.

In a series of conferences between Farley and Flynn, efforts will be made to chart a campaign that will check spreading disorganization and disaffections in Democratic ranks.

Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt, who withdrew from the Vice Presidential race in Chicago to make way for Secretary Wallace, was passed over in the choice. Appointment of McNutt would have completely alienated Farley and lingering hopes of his campaign aid.

McNutt, alone of those first seriously considered had never said he would not accept. Indiana supporters of the Hoosier were defiantly saying last night.

Some in the New Deal faction which ran the Chicago show, viewed the appointment as evidence that the President is still playing ball with the retiring chairman, who bucked them in Chicago. These were none too happy.

Attending a luncheon following the appointment were two of those first on the President's list—Frank Walker, former NEC director, and Senator Byrnes, of South Carolina. Both declined in advance.

May Take Other Jobs

Walker and Byrnes are expected later to accept prominent posts in the revised set-up; Walker as a fund-raiser and Byrnes as a personnel contact man or speakers' bureau chief.

Byrnes in a statement declared Flynn will make "a splendid national chairman and I am delighted he has agreed to serve."

"As national committeeman of New York he has established wide acquaintance throughout the country, and with his knowledge of the problems of the various sections of the country I feel he will make a most efficient chairman. I have already assured him of my willingness to assist in every way possible."

Garner Friends Belittle Move

But friends of Vice President Garner, himself a vice chairman of the old committee, were privately derisive of the choice. Garner has returned to Texas, and many think he will stay there as a quiet third-term protest.

Farley, equally opposed to a third term, declined final appeals to him to remain yesterday. Farley is taking over the New York Yankees after he steps out August 17. But in view of gestures of friendship from the White House he now

Charges Platform To Tussle With Holt, Nye as 1,000 Jeer

A World War sergeant of Marines threw an anticonscription mass meeting into an uproar at the Raleigh Hotel last night by rushing to the speakers' platform and scuffling with two United States Senators.

He made his first charge at Senator Rush D. Holt (Democrat), of West Virginia, as Holt finished a speech attacking the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill.

The audience of more than 1,000 persons was momentarily disorganized and Senator Gerald Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, another of the speakers, stepped into the affray as the war veteran began to shove Holt.

Police Take a Hand

Stanley Rappeport, 25, of Baltimore, was struck a glancing blow on the head as he attempted to protect Holt. The crowd was on its feet booing and yelling "Throw him out," as a detail of police led by Lieut. Benjamin C. Kuehling forced its way forward and escorted the veteran out of the hotel and to the First Precinct station.

He identified himself as Edley H. Grayson, 44, of 1750 N street northwest, a veteran of the famous Fifth Marines who fought through the World War with the Second Division.

Grayson said he was wounded at Belleau Wood, fought through the reduction of the St. Mihiel salient and was gassed in the Champagne offensive. He is an automobile salesman and a native of Chattanooga, Tenn.

Police charged Grayson with being disorderly and released him upon posting $5 collateral.

Several of the speakers, including Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, asked that Grayson be allowed to stay in the meeting.

President Will Inspect N. Y. Defense

President Roosevelt will undertake inspections next week of defense work in New York State, it became known yesterday when Representative May, of Kentucky, chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, announced that Mr. Roosevelt had requested his company on the short tour.

The inspection trips, Mr. May said, probably would take in defenses around New York City and Buffalo. No date has been fixed for these.

King Asks Senate Seat For District

Action Taken as House Committee Reports Resolution Permitting Only Representatives

By James D. Secrest
Post Staff Writer

A move to restore the right of Congress to grant the District representation in the Senate as well as the House was started late yesterday by Chairman Sumners of the House Judiciary Committee prepared to push his amended resolution to an early vote in the House.

Within a few hours after the House Judiciary Committee reported favorably the Sumners resolution providing for the ratification by the States a Constitutional amendment, Chairman Ashurst of the Senate Judiciary Committee appointed a special subcommittee to consider a companion measure introduced by Senator King (Democrat), of Utah.

King's resolution is identical with the original proposal of Representative Sumners and was offered because the House Judiciary Committee eliminated the part which would have given Congress authority to provide representation for the National Capital in the Senate.

King Heads Subcommittee

Senator King explained that a number of persons were dissatisfied with the committee's action and asked him to sponsor the companion measure.

Chairman Ashurst promptly appointed King chairman of a special subcommittee to take whatever action it deems proper. Other members are Senators McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada; Hughes (Democrat), of Delaware, and Austin (Republican), of Vermont, all members of both the District Committee and the Judiciary Committee, and Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio.

Representative Sumners said he would ask the House Rules Committee for a hearing on Tuesday upon a request for a special rule to bring his resolution to the House floor promptly.

Rayburn Predicts Passage

Majority Leader Rayburn predicted the special rule will be granted and that the House will pass the resolution by a large majority within ten days after the rule is granted.

The House Judiciary Committee approved the Sumners resolution by a vote of 14 to 3 after adopting two amendments.

Representative Reed (Republican), of Illinois, offered the amendment to restrict District representation to the House after arguing that only States are entitled to Senators. The amendment was adopted by a vote of 9 to 7.

The second amendment, which was uncontested, requires that unless three-fourths of the States approve the Constitutional amendment within seven years, the Congressional act is nullified. This amendment, which has been attached to all recent Constitutional amendments submitted to the States, was proposed by Representative Hobbs (Democrat), of Alabama.

The three members who voted against the amended resolution are Representative Hobbs, Gwynne (Republican), of Iowa, and Monkiewicz (Republican), of Connecticut.

Hobbs explained his vote as "for the democratic process" and "against minority rule." Predicting that most District residents will retain voting privileges in the States of their origin, Hobbs said that the Capital would be ruled by only 10 per cent of its eligible voters.

Asked whether he believed that present absentee voters would transfer their franchise to the District, Hobbs said:

Refugees Barred From Coast Zone As Germans Move North in France

By the United Press

Grenoble, France, Aug. 1.—German armies occupying France tonight were reported in motion from the Spanish border to the Belgian frontier, moving toward the French channel seaports facing the British Isles under conditions of secrecy.

Most of the German forces, including two motorized divisions totaling about 23,000 men, which had crossed the Loire River and occupied the French seaboard as far south as the Spanish frontier, were said to have been turned about in the past 48 hours and sent northward.

Comparatively small detachments were understood to have been left behind to occupy Bayonne, St. Jean de Luz, Bordeaux, La Rochelle and other important ports on France's southern Atlantic coast.

Refugees Barred

French war refugees were forbidden to return to the regions near the northern ports of Dunkerque, Calais and Boulogne-Sur-Mer, toward which the German forces were understood to be moving.

Entrance to the German-occupied zone of France was reopened at several points, however, to permit the return of refugees to their homes from south of the Somme.

The Germans have completely shut off all mail, telegraph and telephone communications between occupied and unoccupied France, presumably to prevent details of the German preparations from leaking out.

[Two days ago a United Press dispatch from Marseille reported that German troop trains and naval forces had been massed in and near France's northwest coast ports and that military forces were in movement throughout the part of the German-held zone opposite England.

Red Army on Move

[The zone of heavy military activity extended from Dunkerque near the Belgian frontier and close to the British Isles and the Thames Estuary, to Brest, which is opposite Plymouth. Travelers reported that gigantic Nazi military preparations extended 100 miles inland where all supporting services and materials necessary for immediate operations had been massed.]

[From Bucharest came word that travelers from that section of Poland occupied by Russia reported huge Russian troop movements there, with concentration of nearly 200 Red army divisions.

[These reports were studied as a possible contrast to German moves

Totalitarian Japan Reveals Expansion Goal

'Greater East Asia' Policy Includes Indo-China, Indies

By the Associated Press

Tokyo, Aug. 1.—An aggressively expansive Japanese foreign policy, which seeks domination, not merely in "East Asia" as formerly, but in "Greater East Asia"—including French Indo-China and the Dutch East Indies—was announced to the people today.

The statement, by the regime of Premier-Prince Konoye, did not directly bring Japan closer than it already had been to Germany and Italy, but apparently widened the breach between the empire and other Western powers.

It discloses these intentions:

Creation of "a new order for Greater East Asia," with the ultimate aim as explained by Foreign Minister Matsuoka to be "establishment of a stabilizing force for a self-sufficiency embracing not only Japan, Manchoukuo and China, but also Indo-China and the East Indies."

Arms Plan Included

Rearmament on a scale "adequate for execution of the national policies by taking into consideration the new developments both at home and abroad."

Construction of a government in which every person must serve the state, with national economy to be planned toward strengthening national defense, and a "unitary control system" set up "covering production, distribution and consumption of important commodities."

D.C. Man Arraigned In British Secrets Act Violation

A Washington man and a Russian beauty were formally charged with violating the official secrets act in a London court yesterday, the Associated Press reported last night. Specific charges were not made public.

Arraigned were Tyler G. Kent, 29, one-time clerk of the American Embassies at Moscow and London, and Anna Wolkoff, a couturiere said to have had family connections with a high official in the Czarist regime.

Kent, who was arrested June 1, attended St. Alban's School here in 1929, and George Washington University in 1932. His mother, Mrs. Annie Kent, lives here; his father, the late A. H. P. Kent, served in the American consular service.

Planes Shower Down Hitler's 'Appeal to Reason' And Some Bombs

By James MacDonald.
Copyright by New York Times

London (Friday), Aug. 2.—Raiding Nazi fliers scattered propaganda leaflets threateningly entitled "A Last Appeal to Reason," together with high-explosive and incendiary bombs during visits to widely scattered parts of Britain early this morning and late last night.

It was the first time, it was disclosed, that the Germans have resorted to leaflet raids on this country. Britain has set the example of such paper weapons since the early stages of the war, its fliers having strewed them not only in Germany but in various conquered countries.

The names of the exact localities where Hitler's air force gave notification of the "Last Appeal to Reason" were withheld, but the areas where the leaflets fluttered down included the southeast and southwest districts of England.

Gathered by Air Wardens

Measuring 12 by 8 inches, the pamphlets declared that the British public did not have any knowledge of Hitler's last speech, which the leaflets paraphrased. As soon as it was discovered that the Germans were sending down pronouncements in English from the sky scores of air raid wardens and policemen, poking their way through the blackout with the aid of flashlights, went out to pick up as many leaflets as possible.

The text of the leaflets was not available at an early hour today. In connection with the German assertions that the public is ignorant of Hitler's recent speech, it was pointed out that a summary of what he said was printed in the newspapers and was broadcast by the B. B. C.

Unofficial reports this morning said that German planes released bombs in the northeast of Scotland and the northeast of England but did not cause material damage. Whether there were any casualties was not determined.

This morning's raids followed a slight let-up in the aerial warfare between Britain and Germany yesterday, with Nazi fliers making minor raids over the English Channel and inland points including Norwich, where their bombs killed five persons, injured others and damaged industrial buildings.

Two Downed Over Channel

The air ministry announced that British fighter pilots destroyed two German planes that took part in occasional flights over the Channel today while one R. A. F. plane failed to return from patrol.

Breaking the usual rule of withholding names of definite localities subjected to Nazi bombing attacks the air ministry and minister of home security said that a lone enemy plane flying at great height crossed the English east coast in the afternoon, later dropping its load of bombs on a Norwich industrial center for the manufacture of shoes and textiles.

The residents of Norwich said the lone raider, appearing suddenly out of a cloudbank, dived to about 400 feet and sprayed the city with machine gun bullets, strewed bombs here and there and, with a parting burst of machine-gun fire, darted into the clouds and escaped.

Ways, Means Agrees to Drop Profit Limits

Brake on Defenses Eased, but Excess Earnings Are Taxed

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

Spurred on by a slow-down in the national defense program because of tax uncertainties, the House Ways and Means Committee yesterday reached apparent agreement on accompanying the excess profits tax with removal of profit limitations on airplane and shipbuilding contracts.

After an all-day session of the committee, Chairman Doughton announced that none of the members seemed to disapprove of suspending the Vinson-Trammell Act restricting profits as long as the excess profits tax is in effect.

The tax measure is expected to include in addition to the excess profits levy and the suspension of the Vinson-Trammell Act, provision for five-year amortization of new plant especially built for national defense needs.

Report Expected Soon

The problem of whipping the bill into rough shape was entrusted yesterday to a tax sub-committee. This group plans to make a report by the middle of next week, with hearings to begin immediately afterwards.

It was reported yesterday that the committee was under some pressure to bring out a bill in the near future because of the difficulties the Army and Navy are experiencing in attempting to negotiate contracts.

Businessmen—particularly subcontractors—have been represented as unwilling to proceed with vari-

San Jose, Costa Rica, Aug. 1.—Twenty-eight Costa Ricans, of whom 11 are physicians employed by the government in the public health service, published a manifesto in the newspaper La Tribuna purporting to request neutrality and objecting to alleged newspaper propaganda against Germany and the Germans.

The majority of the signers were educated in Germany or have married Germans. They say they signed the manifesto for "the prestige of our democratic traditions."

4 More Destroyers Bolster Defenses; Foreigners Lose Construction Jobs

Eighty-one foreign agents have been seized at the Canal Zone by Government authorities, following an investigation of all residents of the vital isthmus area, Secretary of War Stimson announced yesterday.

At the same time it was learned that four United States Navy destroyers arrived yesterday at Balboa to reinforce the guard at the entrances to the Canal, and to assist "in further enforcement of neutrality regulations." The four ships will "take over certain duties," the exact nature of which were not disclosed, which formerly were handled by the Army.

The 81 agents, all illegally in the Canal Zone, are being held for deportation at the Zone's immigration station, Stimson said.

[From Panama City last night, Leopoldo Arosemena, Panama minister of the inferior, was quoted by the Associated Press as saying the 81 were mostly European "refugees."]

Aliens Discharged

In addition to this Zone-wide roundup of foreign agents, all aliens other than Panamanians have been discharged from Army and Canal Zone jobs, he added.

In addition, only American engineers and American soldiers, whose citizenship and "affiliations" have been carefully investigated, are permitted to work on installing the new fire-control equipment with which the strategic lifeline is being ringed as a defense measure, the Republican Cabinet member told the press.

Stimson made his disclosure of the unusual precautions taken at the Panama Canal in response to a request for comment on Washington reports that 265 Nazis were working on Canal projects, some of them with vital antiaircraft fire control equipment.

The War Secretary would not say whether any of the agents rounded up at the zone were of German nationality.

Reads Statement Aloud

His statement, which he read aloud, said:

"There are now 81 foreign agents illegally in the Canal Zone. They are being detained at the immigration station awaiting arrangements for deportation or other disposition.

"There are no aliens employed either by the Army or by the Canal Zone other than Panamanians.

"All aliens other than Panamanians formerly employed by either the Army or the Canal Zone have been discharged.

"There are no persons working on fire-control equipment in the Canal Zone other than American soldiers or American engineers. Under the law, these individuals must be American citizens and their citizenship and affiliations have been carefully investigated by military authorities."

20,000 Troops on Duty

Stimson's reference to legal requirements that employes be Americans was to a law signed by President Roosevelt June 24, which provides that by May 1, 1941, all Government jobs in the Canal Zone must be filled either by United States citizens or by Panamanians.

Swift action against foreign agents in the Zone, only short water route between the Atlantic and Pacific, was believed impelled by the fact that the Zone is undergoing the most intensive period of military construction work since the World War.

A third set of locks to speed the movement of naval vessels across the Isthmus is under way and the Army is believed to have more than

Dogged Determination

Law Shows Teeth, So Do Dogs, With Dog Catcher in Middle

The law showed its teeth yesterday and 34 more dogs barked in the pound last night.

The law, in the person of Frank B. Marks, the poundmaster, went abroad, and the nets fell on the 34 dogs, mostly a nondescript lot. The drive against dogs carrying no 1940 license tags will be intensified today, Marks promised.

Among the nondescript lot, one dog stood out in lineage and looks. This was a German police dog. It was taking a morning turn along upper Massachusetts avenue when the net fell.

The deadline on licenses expired Wednesday. Busy days are ahead, Marks said. People have the impression that it is easy to fare out and catch a dog, Marks said.

"The nets weigh more than 25 pounds each," he pointed out. "The dogs don't want to be caught, consequently, the dog catcher frequently has to make anything from a 25 to 1,000-yard burst afoot, with little hope of doing anything easier than hurling the heavy net upon the dog, some yards distant."

His immediate task is to capture approximately 10,000 dogs believed now to be without tags.

Nazis May Transfer Westrick; N. Y. Revokes Auto License

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

New York, Aug. 1.—Disclosure of the activities of Dr. Gerhardt Alois Westrick as Adolf Hitler's special emissary to American business men at his secret Scarsdale home bubbled up today into a whirlpool of controversy and explanation.

The State bureau of motor vehicles notified the commercial counselor to the German Embassy, as he is officially accredited, that his automobile and driver's license had been temporarily canceled pending a hearing because of Dr. Westrick's failure to inform the bureau of his change of home address. The bureau is also turning over to the District Attorney's office a memorandum on the counselor's neglect to indicate in his license application that he had lost one of his legs.

State Department officials at Washington privately expressed great interest in the disclosures on Westrick's visitors at his secret Scarsdale headquarters, suggesting the possibility that this might force the German government to transfer him because the fear of important people to be seen in his company would obviously destroy his usefulness. While there was no official comment, it was said that Secretary of State Cordell Hull may make

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

FLUSHING'S BRAVE NEW WORLD

We yielded ostensibly to pressure, and took the children to the New York World Fair. They're 7 and 9 years old, and the world of tomorrow is their world. So why not give them a glimpse?

Harlan Miller

Actually, it was a few lines from Bert Taylor that inspired the expedition:

"When quacks with pills political would dope us, and politics absorbs the livelong day, I like to think about the star Canopus, so far, so far away."

After a long exposure to politics, the perisphere seemed the best available substitute for Canopus.

We met them in New York. It was their first railroad journey alone. When we espied them on the platform at the Pennsylvania Station, two small figures amid the redcaps, that was a deeper glimpse of tomorrow than we saw in Flushing.

"When temporary chairman utter speeches, and frenzied henchmen howl their battle hymns, my thoughts float out across the cosmic reaches, to where Canopus swims," continued B. L. T.

We went to see the spot where the bomb exploded, on the innocent and neutral earth behind the Polish Pavilion . . . A little later the doorman at the Italian Pavilion looked inside my movie camera case to see if I was carrying a bomb. The world of tomorrow. . . .

"When men are calling names and making faces, and all the world's a-jangle and ajar, I meditate on inter-stellar spaces, and smoke a milde seegar."

That's the best trick of the year, RLT, if you can do it. What could have inspired that poem 25 years ago?

I took the 7-year-old up and down the fixed parachute jump. He was more blase and nonchalant than I was on my first bicycle ride. After all, he knew that parachutes had been descending all over Europe. That's the world of today.

At the aquacade I had the distinct impression that some of the men around me would swap their share of the world of tomorrow for Eleanor Holm. Doubtless such men will still be influential in the world of tomorrow.

Imaginative men with strong tireless feet or the price of a $3-an-hour motor chair seem to have designed this world of tomorrow . . . If the world must be bewildering, they want it their kind of bewilderment with a curve the shortest distance between two points, and a map, key and code necessary to find your way around. But you shouldn't miss it.

"—uneasy in tomorrow's world"

Only at the futurama and the perisphere landscapes was I filled with a slight nostalgia for the world of the day-after-tomorrow . . . Will the sun rise on such peace? Will everything be so orderly and so well thought through? Nary a Maginot Line in the view; not a tank trap nor a munitions plant; unless they're all underground . . .

By the afternoon of the second day I lost this nostalgia. The man of today, I felt, will not be at home in the world of tomorrow . . . It was then that the b. g. discovered the foot vibrator, which for a penny in the slot massages the bottom of your foot. None too soon, either.

At about this time I did what I thought was a gallant thing. I bought the b. w. a sort of sitting stick, a gadget which unfolds into three legs supporting a little circular seat on which you sit sideways, holding on to the handle. She just gave me a dirty look.

Will the women of tomorrow be so illogical?

"That's a grotesque gadget," she said.

But in a few minutes she forgave me.

We watched man-made lightning and its cousin which popped corn; we saw a girl costumed in rayon step out of a test tube; a little mechanical mouse ran around an old-fashioned kitchen and then vanished into limbo as a new, magic kitchen spun around . . . Best of all, we saw the dozen exquisite houses of the town of tomorrow, and liked best the log-cabin house of yesterday.

Adieu, world of tomorrow, or maybe just au revoir. You're probably the last great world fair for a long, long time; we wouldn't have missed you for a lot. The next one probably will all be like the futurama, with people sitting on an endless belt of chairs being whisked past all the exhibits, as their legs atrophy.

We can almost hear the youngsters reminiscing in the year 3,000: "They searched dad for a bomb at the World Fair of 1940 . . . They had the quaintest notions of the world of tomorrow."

Willkie Sees Clash Of Philosophies

Party Lines Fading, He Says, Wooing Independent Vote

By International News Service

Colorado Springs, Colo., Aug. 1.—The November election will be a battle between two philosophies rather than two political parties, Wendell Willkie, G. O. P. Presidential nominee, predicted tonight.

Declaring less partisan voting would be in evidence than at any time during the last quarter century, Willkie added:

"For 25 years men prided themselves on their partisanship; now they pride themselves on their independence.

"The percentage of independent voters has increased every year in the past quarter century, and in the past four or five years the percentage has risen at a very rapid rate. I would say that at least half the voters cross party lines rather rapidly."

Willkie does not identify either himself or President Roosevelt as a leader of a political party, but rather as representatives of opposing theories of government. The political parties, in his estimation, are merely the machinery provided for the voters to register their choice.

Interviewed by White

The nominee's views, an amplification of opinions previously expressed, were made known during a joint interview with William Allen White, noted Kansas publisher. Mr. and Mrs. White, en route to Estes Park, Colo., dropped in for a luncheon visit with Mr. and Mrs. Willkie.

White will inspect the rough draft of Willkie's acceptance speech, and comment particularly upon the foreign policy section before resuming his Western trip, the candidate said. The publisher heads the group which recently ran full page advertisements in numerous newspapers calling for all aid to England, short of actual intervention.

White declared the management of Willkie's campaign would have little bearing on the final result as "it's in the stars for him to win." He qualified the observation with the afterthought, "of course, it's only August 1." He said opposition to a third term is a "very definite factor" in support of Willkie.

Willkie exhibited more telegrams from notables pledging support. Included were messages from Dr. Robert A. Millikan, California scientist and Nobel Prize winner; Efrem Zimbalist, violinist, who wired from New Hartford, Conn.; B. F. McClain, of Dallas, Tex., past president of the National Retail Furniture Dealers Association, and Lee Meriwether, organizer of a Democratic "Willkie for President" club in St. Louis.

Allen Backs Willkie

Representative Robert G. Allen (Democrat), Pennsylvania, said in a message:

"When you were nominated in Philadelphia, I issued a statement I would support you in event Mr. Roosevelt ran for a third term. As a Democratic Congressman from Pennsylvania, I wish to confirm that statement and offer you my full support. In doing this, I feel that I am following the old traditions of my party and abiding by its fundamental principles."

O. Glenn Saxon, director of research for the Republican National Committee, arirved here today to assist Raymond Leslie Buel, Willkie's own research expert, in collecting material on which the candidate will base his campaign speeches.

National Chairman Joe Martin is due tomorrow night, and Vice Chairman Sam Pryor, Executive Assistant John D. M. Hamilton and General Counsel Henry P. Fletcher will arrive Saturday.

Other Willkie callers today included Harry W. Colmery, of Topeka, Kans., former national commander of the American Legion; Waldo Rogers, Congressional candidate from New Mexico; Ralph Cake, Oregon National Committeeman, and Miss Grace Eustis, of New York, volunteer Willkie club worker.

Calls Capital "Boom Town"

Special Dispatch to The Post

Colorado Springs, Colo., Aug. 1.—Washington, D. C., is the "only boom town in America today," Wendell L. Willkie declared this afternoon. Referring to Washington's increase in population from 486,869 in 1930 to 663,153 in 1940, as revealed in the census reports, the Republican nominee said he would have something to say during the campaign why the National Capital had become a boom city, while other cities had declined in population.

His comment on Washington's extraordinary population rise during the New Deal came at the end of the daily press conference.

District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, had made similar allusions to the Capital as "a boom town" while he was campaigning for the Republican nomination won by Willkie.

The Gallup Poll:

By Dr. George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 1.—While Wendell Willkie has made substantial popular gains in the few weeks since his nomination, the difficulties of his carrying the biggest Southern State, Texas, appear to be great at the beginning of the race. Texas bolted the Democratic ticket once, in the Smith-Hoover race of 1928, and the Willkie forces are going to make every effort to crack this State again. But a State-wide survey completed by the Institute since both candidates were nominated indicates that Texas is one Southern State predominantly for Roosevelt and the Democrats at the present time.

DR. GALLUP

The survey, part of the Institute's Nation-wide poll on the Roosevelt-Willkie race, was completed just before Willkie announced his plan to invade the South for a campaign tour beginning in Texas. It asked a cross-section of Texas voters:

"If the Presidential election were held today, would you vote for Willkie or for Roosevelt?"

Those expressing a choice—and only one voter in ten (9 per cent) had no opinion—voted as follows:

Roosevelt	85%
Willkie	15

Although this is an overwhelming Democratic vote, the Roosevelt percentage is below what it was in previous years and below what it was two months ago just before the nomination of Willkie by the Republicans.

	F.C. Dep.	F.C. Rep.
1932 Election	89%	11%
1936 Election	88	12
June, 1940 Institute Survey (Before Conventions)	92	8
Today	85	15

Texas is the third State whose sentiment on the Willkie-Roosevelt race has been reported by the Institute. In the other two, California and Pennsylvania, the swing to the Republicans has been more marked. A 14-point drop in Roosevelt's popularity today as compared to 1936 was found in California. In Pennsylvania Willkie was shown with a slight lead (52 per cent) today.

All of the interviewing in these surveys was done after the two candidates had been nominated by their respective parties. The results represent opinion only as of the beginning of the Presidential race, however. There are many things that may alter opinion in the coming months—not only the campaign itself, but perhaps most important of all the course of events in Europe.

Changes in sentiment, if they occur, will be recorded by the Institute through its regular and continuous surveys, which will be reported at intervals of approximately two weeks until the final month of the campaign, when reports will be made weekly.

First State-by-State Poll Next Sunday

Who's ahead in popular strength—Roosevelt or Willkie? How do the electoral votes line up? Who's ahead in the farm belt? Is the solid South still solid?

These and other questions about this year's historic Presidential campaign will be answered in The Washington Post on Sunday when the Gallup Poll makes its first complete State-by-State report on the Willkie-Roosevelt race. This report will appear exclusively in The Post in Washington.

Compromise Gives Farley Job to Flynn

is expected to "cooperate" from the sidelines in the campaign. Friends believe he would not have cooperated had McNutt or Byrnes been named.

The post of Postmaster General apparently will not go along with Flynn's national chairmanship. The President never has accepted Farley's resignation, and the retiring chairman is expected to remain on a few weeks at least as Postmaster General. He will continue indefinitely as New York State chairman.

Long a Leader

Flynn, now a national committeeman from New York, has been Bronx borough leader for a score of years and since 1933 has been bidding for supreme leadership in New York State politics.

Before Gov. Roosevelt named him Secretary of State of New York in 1939 he had served as Sheriff of Bronx County and held office under Mayor Walker as city chamberlain. The first rift between Roosevelt and former Gov. Al Smith is said to have stemmed from Roosevelt's eviction of Robert Moses as Secretary of State and the naming of Flynn to the post. Flynn continued in the office until a year and a half ago under Gov. Lehman and in 1939 was appointed commissioner general of the World's Fair.

It was Flynn who managed the campaign of Joseph V. McKee who was backed by Roosevelt and Farley in New York's 1933 mayoralty race against John P. O'Brien, backed by Tammany, and Fiorello LaGuardia, Fusionist. This Democratic split rode LaGuardia into power.

As Tammany influence waned, Flynn has been increasingly recognized as the New Deal representative in New York City on patronage and kindred matters, particularly in other boroughs than Manhattan. He was among the first to hop on the third-term bandwagon, and in Chicago stood by Roosevelt against his friend Farley.

While Flynn's wars with Tammany will be good campaign ammunition, his New York political activities are certain to come in for the campaign fire of Wendell L. Willkie, who had served notice he will attack the Democratic city machine.

Attacked by Dewey

Newsmen recalled that Flynn likewise was under attack by New York District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey while Dewey was campaigning for Governor of New York.

In his closing campaign speech at the New York Academy of Music on November 5, 1938, Dewey charged Flynn had appointed "Dutch" Schultz deputy sheriff.

"On July 31, 1928, Arthur Flegenheimer, alias Dutch Schultz, was appointed a deputy sheriff of Bronx County," Dewey said. "At that time he was in the rogue's gallery in the police department and was also an ex-convict. . . .

"Let's see who was sheriff of the Bronx in 1925. Who appointed the man who at that time was a trigger man for "Legs" Diamond and Owney Madden and was preparing to build up his own vast racket empire. . . . Let's see the name. Here it is. Edward J. Flynn."

Promptly forecasting a third-term triumph, Flynn, who will take office August 17, the day Farley steps down, said:

"Our forces are trained to victory. Our opponents are hardened by defeats.

"With a candidate with such Nation-wide indorsements as have come to him since the country first voted Franklin D. Roosevelt into the Presidency, there can be only a repetition in 1940 of the election of four years ago. With the record he has made and that made by Secretary Wallace, reversals become impossibilities.

"However, we should not permit our confidence to abate our efforts to win. No political battle is won until the votes are counted."

Flynn said he did not hope to equal the record of "my predecessor and friend, Jim Farley," but he would do his best. With the support of experienced "captains and lieutenants" he declared he would make a campaign as thorough "as though the results were doubtful."

He said Farley had left him "a splendid organization virtually set up and ready."

Day's Happenings

Other developments yesterday: Senate Minority Leader McNary, Republican Vice Presidential nominee, announced he would make five or six major campaign speeches, mostly in the West, and will deliver several radio talks from Washington. This indicated McNary will make a far more active campaign than had been planned.

As Senator Shipstead bolted the Farmer-Laborite Party to seek re-election as a Republican, McNary said he was glad Shipstead "has returned to the party where he can continue to work among liberal elements. His return will be a source of strength to the party in Minnesota and the Northwestern States. I congratulate him and I congratulate the party."

New York, Aug. 1 (AP).—Actress Gloria Swanson, Golfer Gene Sarazen and Novelist Nina Wilcox Putnam signed up for jobs in the Willkie campaign today.

Miss Swanson was named to organize the motion picture vote, Sarazen was put in charge of the athletic division and Miss Putnam was assigned to general vote-getting.

Samuel F. Pryor, jr., Eastern manager for the Republican campaign, made the assignments.

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 1 (INS).—From the Lone Star State of Texas a trainload of Willkie supporters will leave August 15 to witness the notification ceremonies for the Republican nominee August 17 at Elwood, Ind., it was announced tonight at the Texas-for-Willkie headquarters. The special train will depart from Dallas.

New York, Aug. 1 (AP).—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt said today that "there still remain the same cordial relations between the American Youth Congress and myself, as there have always been."

She was talking with reporters at the airport prior to her departure for Washington.

In answer to another question, she said of the Congress' stand on the conscription issue:

"Why shouldn't they take the stand they took. It's a free country, isn't it?"

The Congress is opposed to conscription and has put itself on record as favoring voluntary cooperation.

Mrs. Roosevelt gave this answer when asked about her thoughts on the Democrats who have announced their support of Wendell L. Willkie:

"Well, what can one think?"

Dover, Dela., Aug. 1 (AP).—The Democratic State committee last night set August 27, for the Democratic State convention which will be held in the Capitol Theater here, and August 24, as the date for the primaries to elect delegates to the convention.

U. S. Senator James H. Hughes was unanimously chosen as temporary chairman and keynoter for the convention which will nominate candidates for Presidential electors, U. S. Senator, Representative in Congress, Governor, Lieutenant Governor, State treasurer and State auditor.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 1 (AP).—State Chairman James F. Torrance predicts Pennsylvania will give Wendell L. Willkie a half-million more votes than President Roosevelt in November.

"Pennsylvania is in very good shape to put on a bang-up campaign," he told a meeting of Republican State legislators, and nominees for the State House and Senate, "and I believe the Republican membership of the House should be increased from the 129 to 150 or 175."

In 1936, Roosevelt's majority over Republican Alf M. Landon in Pennsylvania was 663,000.

House Minority Leader Martin's collection of miniature elephants —G. O. P. symbol—was augmented today by two small donkeys—but "Fifth Columnists?—not at all."

"They represent the Democrats who are swinging over to Wendell Willkie—and we expect to have a lot more of them before we're through," Martin said.

Argentine Aide Sails For Call on Roosevelt

Havana, Aug. 1 (INS).—Dr Leopold Melo, Argentine delegate to the recent Havana Pan-American Conference, sailed aboard the United Fruit liner Jamaica late today for New York, en route to Washington. He is bearing a letter from Argentine President Roberto Ortiz to President Roosevelt, expressing good will toward the United States.

Before sailing, Melo, whose critical position on some of the United States proposals was a feature of the recent conference, proclaimed himself "a great friend of the United States, which I know and admire." He is expected to arrive in New York Sunday.

Limit Asked on President's Right to Call Up Draftees

Lee and Bridges Would Train Only Million in Year

A bipartizan move to forbid drafting of more than 1,000,000 men within a year of enactment of the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill developed yesterday in the Senate Military Affairs Committee.

Senator Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma, backed by Senator Bridges (Republican), of New Hampshire, urged a provision in the controversial bill to limit to 500,000 the number of men who could be mobilized in October. A similar number could be ordered into training next spring.

No additional men could be conscripted, under the Lee proposal, without specific authorization from Congress, setting the maximum number to be called up. As the bill now stands, the President determines the number of men to be drafted—subject to a provision that Congress first must have appropriated funds for their training.

Same Number Affected

The Lee plan would not actually reduce the number of men likely to be affected by the bill in its first year of operation, since Army spokesmen have already testified that they would ask the President to call about 400,000 men in October and another 400,000 next April.

Chief importance of the plan, according to Bridges, is to provide an added check on the "tremendous power" granted the President under the bill. The proposal has "very strong support" in the committee, he stated.

War Department officials will appear before the committee today to discuss the suggested amendment. Several other proposals to modify the bill's scope are before the committee which now is not expected to report any legislation before next week.

Guard Measure Delayed

The resolution empowering President Roosevelt to order the National Guard and Army Reserve personnel into immediate active service also encountered delay yesterday. The Senate adjourned until Monday without taking up the resolution, which has been favorably reported by the Military Affairs Committee. Both Majority Leader Barkley and Minority Leader McNary explained that they had received requests from several Senators for more time to study the President's proposal.

New support for the Burke-Wadsworth bill came yesterday from the National Defense Commission and from Assistant Secretary of War Patterson.

The commission's statement asserted that the pending measure would "prevent the disruption of industry through the entry into military service of many who would be more needed in industrial production because of special skills."

"A selective service act," it added, "based upon the lessons of experience and properly administered . . . is the best and fairest means of distributing the task of defending the country in a way that will do equal justice to all and make unnecessary the enlistment of those who have dependents or who ought for other reasons to be given a deferred status."

Patterson, in his first press conference since his appointment to the War Department, said, "It seems to me the emergency does not permit any further experimenting with voluntary recruiting."

Meanwhile, opponents of conscription renewed their attacks on the Burke-Wadsworth bill, despite the Senate committee's drastic revision of the measure Wednesday, limiting registration for compulsory training to men from 21 to 31.

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, asserted that mail pouring into Capitol Hill shows sentiment 100 to 1 against the bill.

"Leading farm organizations, all denominations of the churches, all labor organizations, all organized peace groups, organized and unorganized youth, as well as mothers, are opposed to the legislation," he said.

Senator Lodge (Republican), of Massachusetts, characterized the Burke-Wadsworth bill as an "antiquated blunderbuss shotgun" in a speech on the Senate floor. He likened his own military training bill, which calls for an Army of 750,000, with men from 21 to 25 liable to conscription, to "a modern, well-tooled automatic rifle." Lodge said the Burke-Wadsworth bill would cause "far-reaching internal changes" in the United States, "having little if anything to do with defense."

The House Military Affairs Committee is expected to conclude open hearings on the conscription bill today, according to Chairman May (Democrat), of Kentucky, and will take up the measure in executive session next week.

of Ohio; Dr. Charles F. Boss, jr., executive secretary of the World Peace Commission of the Methodist Church, and the Right Rev. Msgr. Barry O'Toole, Catholic University philosophy professor.

Grayson was first heard from as Holt, during his speech, attacked the Plattsburg training camps. From the rear of the hall Grayson shouted:

"Have you ever been in Plattsburg?"

"No, I have never been there," replied Holt. "Those camps are set aside for the wealthy."

Shouts of "throw him out" went up from the rear of the hall, but Holt said: "Never mind, I can take care of him."

Holt then suggested that persons attending Plattsburg were not so very far from the Canadian border and that if "they are so anxious to fight, why don't they go over there and enlist?"

This brought cheers from the audience as Grayson began to move forward. Grayson squatted down behind reporters at the press table while Holt finished his speech with the prediction:

"We can and are winning this fight on conscription."

Nye Enters Affray

Before Holt could reach his seat, Grayson was on the platform, shouting at the Senator and shoving him. In a few seconds the front rows in the hall were cleared of men. One of them aimed a punch at the back of the sergeant's neck. Several others joined Nye in grabbing him as Grayson threw a wild punch which grazed Rappeport's head.

Grayson was taken by police down a freight elevator and the anti-conscription protest was continued by Thomas with a plea for "desperately needed funds." A collection was taken in the audience for money to organize the fight on compulsory military training legislation. Admission tickets for the meeting were sold at the door for 25 cents.

Thomas called the need for conscription a "fiction" for which the War Department, he said, is responsible. The department, he added, "has stubbornly refused to use imagination and intelligence in the process of enlistment."

Charges Discrimination

"Almost in spite of itself, it has been enlisting men, although it has done little to make service attractive; it has not removed race and caste discrimination, and heretofore, it has insisted on a three-year minimum term of enlistment."

Throughout the meeting, speaker after speaker brought applause from the overflow crowd by advocating one-year voluntary enlistments as a substitute for conscription and by denouncing a compulsory army as a step toward totalitarianism.

"Peacetime conscription is a method by which rulers make vassals," Holt shouted. "Show me a dictatorship and I'll show you conscription."

Holt directed a part of his attack against Secretary of War Henry Stimson and the National Defense Council. He said Stimson has been "war mongering" for 20 years.

Nye scouted the possibility that the President could not make a draft law effective, if passed, without an appropriation from Congress.

"There can be a recitation of things our President has done without direct appropriations, sometimes even without authorization," Nye declared.

Nye called conscription "an insult to any American . . . totalitarianism of the first water." He added that "the only emergency in this country is the one conjured up by those who want to send our boys to Europe and Asia."

U. S. Steel Will Open Office Here to Speed Arms Program

G. Cook Kimball, executive vice president of Untied States Steel Corporation of Delaware, will establish headquarters in Washington to coordinate United States Steel activities in the defense program.

KIMBALL

His transfer from Chicago to the Capital August 15 was announced yesterday by B. F. Fairless, president of United States Steel. While he remains here his Chicago headquarters will be in charge of Charles H. Rhodes, vice president of the Delaware corporation.

Kimball has been connected with United States Steel subsidiaries for almost 40 years, serving first in the engineering departments of American Tin Plate Co. and American Sheet and Tin Plate Co.

Destroyer Sale Urged

Three members of the Committee to Keep America Out of War by aiding the Allies urged President Roosevelt yesterday to sell World War destroyers to the British, and said they got a "noncommittal reply."

Legislation would be required to sell destroyers to Britain.

Those who saw the President were Herbert Agar, of the Louisville Courier-Journal, and Clark Eichelberger and Ward Cheney, of Washington.

Promotions Approvde

President Roosevelt approved yesterday a measure to give major generals assigned to the Panama Canal and Hawaiian departments of the Army the rank and title of lieutenant general while so serving.

The bill—an amendment to an act which gave the rank of lieutenant general to the officers commanding the four field armies of the United States Army—will entitle such men to the same personal allowances as paid vice admirals of the Navy, in addition to regular pay and allowances of major general.

San Francisco, Aug. 1 (AP).—Laden with scrap iron, the Japanese freighter, Yasukawa Maru, sailed from San Francisco early today.

The ship was loaded and her papers cleared before midnight, at which hour the United States State Department inaugurated strict control of shipments of scrap iron and oil.

Where U. S. Sells Planes

Notwithstanding her collapse in mid-June, shipments to France, worth $17,196,440, constituted about two-thirds of the total aeronautical exports for that month, the Commerce Department announced yesterday. The total exports of $27,591,288 were the second highest monthly total recorded, and only 4 per cent below the high mark of last December. June shipments of aeronautic supplies were 22 per cent above May, which were $22,590,110.

Ninety-three per cent of all the June exports were taken by six purchasing countries, the material going to: France, $17,196,440, as against $10,994,137 in May; the United Kingdom, $5,007,647, against $2,642,433 in May; Canada, $1,271,153, against $5,779,606 in May; Sweden, $1,127,144, against $1,473,467 in May; Belgium, $573,344, against $567,739 in May, and China, $531,428, against $3,176,592 in May.

Job Problem Solved

The demand for skilled workmen in defense industries was reported to have boosted wage rates and wiped out unemployment for the Patternmakers' League, one of the Nation's small but highly skilled craft unions.

George Q. Lynch, league president, estimated that current rates, especially in the upper brackets, were at an all-time high for the craft and 25 per cent higher than during the World War. He said his union represented about 8,000 patternmakers.

Some of the top men in the craft, he said, are getting better than $2 an hour and earning up to $100 a week, with double pay for time over 40 hours a week.

Western Troops Move

Yelm, Wash., Aug. 1 (AP).—The United States' Fourth Army is on the move today, converging on southwest Washington from eight Western States for the Pacific Slope's greatest peacetime maneuvers.

Approximately 3,500 Regular Army troops have already arrived in the concentration area and troops will come hourly by truck and train from now until Sunday, when about 40,000 men will be assembled for the three weeks' training. They are from Washington, Oregon, California, Nevada, Utah, Idaho, Montana and Wyoming.

Windsors Risk Capture, Sail On U. S. Vessel

Duke Keeps Duchess And Other Passengers Waiting 40 Minutes

By the Associated Press

Lisbon, Portugal, Aug. 1.—The Duchess of Windsor and other passengers aboard the United States-bound American export liner Excalibur tapped their collective heels for 40 minutes past sailing time tonight while waiting for the Duke of Windsor.

The Excalibur sailed at 8:15 p. m. (2:15 p. m. E. S. T.) after the Duke arrived to join his duchess, 3 dogs and 52 pieces of baggage. It is due in New York August 9.

Presumably British warships lurked behind the Excalibur to protect the Duke from seizure by German or Italian raiders.

Lord Selby, British Ambassador to Portugal, Lady Selby, and British Minister Sir Noel Charles also awaited the tardy Duke to wish him well in his new post as Governor of the British Bahamas.

Simple Veranda Suite

Sir Noel handed the Duchess two big bouquets of roses.

The Windsors' accommodations aboard the small liner consisted of a simple comfortable veranda suite on a deck which has a small hall with six two-bed cabins.

Crowds who gathered on the dock were surprised to see a sewing machine among the Windsors' luggage.

The couple traveled as "Mr. and Mrs. Windsor," although the reservations originally were made for "Capt. and Mrs. Wood."

The 46-year-old Duke has not been in America since 1924 when he was Prince of Wales and a target for fluttering debutantes.

Plans for Tour Canceled

The Duke and Duchess canceled plans to visit the United States in November, 1937, because of the reaction in labor circles there to the sponsorship of his tour. Labor leaders objected to the Duke's close friendship with Charles Bedaux, American efficiency expert.

The 44-year-old Baltimore-born Duchess has not been in her native land for many years. She was in Baltimore in 1926 and 1927 while awaiting her divorce from her first husband, Commander Earl Winfield Spencer of the United States Navy.

She went to London and was married to Ernest Simpson, English shipping broker, July 21, 1928. That marriage ended in divorce October 27, 1936, after which the Duke quit the British throne in December to marry her the following year in France.

Traveling with the Windsors were four United States diplomats, William Phillips, Ambassador to Italy; Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, jr., Ambassador to Poland; John Cudahy, Ambassador to Belgium, and George Gordon, Minister to the Netherlands.

Senate Confirms Warren as U. S. Comptroller

The nomination of Representative Lindsay C. Warren (Democrat), of North Carolina, to be Comptroller General of the United States for a 15-year term was confirmed by the Senate yesterday. The Senate also approved the nomination of Fred H. Brown, former Comptroller, as a member of the U. S. Tariff Commission.

Warren, a veteran Democratic leader in the House, was chairman of the House Accounts Committee. Brown, his predecessor, was formerly a Senator from New Hampshire. He resigned as Comptroller General due to poor health.

President Roosevelt also sent to the Senate the nomination of Edward Dana Durand, of Minnesota, as a member of the Tariff Commission for a term expiring June 16, 1946.

Bombers to Fill In Till 2-Ocean Navy Is Built

Huge Long-Range Planes to Guard North And South Atlantic

By the Associated Press

Out of the welter of figures on warplane purchases by the Government have begun to emerge certain evidences of the scheme which the Army and Navy have in formation for the air defense of the Western Hemisphere.

Long-range bombing planes, it can now be assumed, are going to be purchased in quantity for offshore operation along the North Atlantic Seaboard—and, if necessary, the South Atlantic—to buttress our defensive establishment in that ocean pending completion of the two-ocean navy.

While the figures necessarily remain secret, the procurement officers of the armed services are known to have been talking in terms of 5,000 or more of these machines, 3,000 of them by July 1, 1942.

Moreover, much larger machines than are now being built in numbers are in contemplation, capable of carrying larger bomb loads over greater distances than any which have made their appearance in Europe, America or Asia.

Larger Than Clippers

The new experimental bombers being constructid for the Army and the Navy, one at Santa Monica, Calif., and the other in Baltimore, are straws in the wind indicating the direction which the strategic employment of large warplanes is taking in this country.

Each of these planes has been reported to weigh in excess of 70 tons, fully loaded. For comparison, the big American transoceanic clippers weigh 42 tons.

In round figures at least 25 per cent of the more than 23,000 new military planes which the armed services expect to acquire by July 1, 1942, will be trainers, transports and other noncombat types. Of the remainder, about half will be fighters and half bombers, broken down into such categories as patrol, dive, torpedo, medium and long range bombers.

Emphasis on Bombers

Of the 25,000 machines, the Army Air Corps is expected to get more than 19,000. In all, the new planes for both services will cost about $2,794,000,000.

The emphasis on bombing planes reflects two things: lessons learned from the war in Europe and the Administration's foreign policy. Complete plans for the tactical employment of the Army's bombers are still in a state of flux. The Army is waiting to see how many squadrons will be organized and where they will be based.

But it is planning definitely on equipment which will reach Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires in a minimum of flying time, in keeping with President Roosevelt's commitment to hemisphere defense. Army planes, too, will be expected to fly at least 500 miles to sea for the interception and destruction of any sea-borne invading force.

Funds Sought To Standardize Refugee Care

Congress Asked To Vote $125,000 For Children's Bureau

By the Associated Press

President Roosevelt asked Congress yesterday to make available immediately $125,000 to be used by the Children's Bureau in establishing and maintaining standards for care of European refugee children.

"The coming into the United States, under visitor or immigration visa, of great numbers of children from Europe is imposing on the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor the duty of establishing and maintaining the standards to govern the reception and care of these children while in the United States and the establishment of a register of such children," Budget Director Harold Smith said in a letter accompanying the request.

"These standards will cover such factors as conditions of foster homes or institutions, medical, nutritional and educational facilities and procedures of public and private societies and institutions which will concern themselves with the placement of these children."

Alexandria Plant Pickets Removed

Union Officials Bow to Defense Needs, Act at Power Project

Union officials yesterday agreed to remove picket lines temporarily from the Virginia Public Service Co. power project at Alexandria because the work is connected with national defense.

The project is one of a number being affected by the strike of brickyard and construction workers which halted bricklaying at ten Government projects Wednesday and at many private works. Previously, agreements had been made to release pickets from the Social Security Building and the Navy Yard for similar defense reasons. When completed, the Social Security Building will be occupied by the National Defense Committee.

Colvin Reports Little Progress

Labor Department Conciliator Howard Colvin, who presided over two meetings attended by brick company representatives and representatives of unions connected with the strike, declared there was "very little progress." Colvin said he may call another meeting today.

Police yesterday averted a clash at the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad freight yards, Florida avenue and Eckington place northeast, where 30 pickets followed a fleet of trucks unloading bricks for one of the companies involved in the strike. The men were dispersed with no disorder on the arrival of three police scout cars.

Picketing continued yesterday at the five brick companies affected by the strike with no disorders reported. Richard Moreschi, secretary and treasurer of the brickyard workers' group, said the union had flatly refused a compromise offer in their wage dispute.

Moreschi said one of the two companies at yesterday's meetings offered 32½ cents an hour. Workers there are getting 30 cents at present, Moreschi added, but the union has asked 37½ cents.

Moreschi said the strike was a complete walkout at the Woodbridge Clay Products Co. and the United Clay Products Co. The strike was only in partial effect, he admitted, at three other companies. The union representative said he had issued specific orders that workers remain at their jobs until the ovens cool to avoid any property damage.

Held Near Death, Patient Asks Food

At 8 o'clock yesterday morning a certain patient in Providence Hospital called for a man's sized breakfast, though a few hours earlier a doctor had arrived expecting to perform an autopsy on him.

The case—names of patient and physician are withheld by request—had hospital attaches buzzing among themselves yesterday.

It started out late Tuesday night when a middle-aged man was rushed to Providence in a precarious condition. He was gasping for breath from an asthmatic heart attack.

For two hours an interne, Dr. Regis Reisman, applied artificial respiration. Then the patient was transferred to the hospital's new "iron lung." His private physician doubted the man would survive the night. The doctor left, returning at 4 a. m. hoping against hope that the heart attack victim would still be alive.

By 8 o'clock he had not only recovered sufficiently to leave the "lung," but was demanding breakfast.

state" and "eradication of all selfish and materialistic thoughts."

An end of "toadyism" to other powers, with the explanation: "We strive to make whatever friends we can under the prevailing environment, but henceforth we will not make a vain effort to grasp the hands of those countries which cannot be turned into friends." It was implied by Matsuoka that Britain and the United States were meant.

United States Embargo Resented

The government's statement followed by some hours an assertion by an admiralty spokesman that President Roosevelt's ban on export of aviation gasoline was directed against Japan, Germany and Italy.

"If America continues on the same lines it is bound to cause repercussions," he said.

Another development was the disclosure through Domei, the official Japanese news agency, that the Japanese Ambassador in London "certainly" would sharply protest Britain's extended blockade of Europe.

This measure, it was stated, would hurt Japan's trade with Spain, Portugal and other neutrals.

By the Associated Press

London, Aug. 1.—The fear that British-Japanese relations might grow so "progressively worse" that Japan would resort to military pressure—although probably not to general war—was expressed today in authoritative British quarters.

There was little likelihood in any case, these sources said, that the Japanese would take the full long step to total war, lest other powers—the United States, perhaps, or Russia—then become involved.

These informants speculated that if the current strains between the governments persisted and were heightened, the Japanese might try first to oust the British from north China and then from Hongkong. They acknowledged, too, that while any attempt to drive Britons from Hongkong would be met with force, it was not possible to defend the colony indefinitely.

Summing up, it was declared that the nature of future British-Japanese relations depended on whether Japanese "extremists" retained their power, and that British reaction to Japanese pressure would be determined by the state of things in Europe.

"Extremist" pressure upon Britain was described as illustrated by the arrest of 14 Britons in Japan's investigation of alleged spy activities.

Seven Britons still are in custody. It was said that any action taken in that connection by the British might be taken without warning, since it was declared that the Japanese themselves had so acted.

Hull Studies New Policy

Copyright by New York Times

The Japanese pronouncement today of "a new order for greater east Asia" had been so well advertised that it was fully expected here. However, that did not shut the eyes of officials to the seriousness of the program.

Apparently awaiting more details and desiring time for studying the pronouncement, Secretary of State Hull, who had just arrived from the Inter-American Conference at Havana, withheld comment.

The American Government is already on record in virtual opposition to key features of the "new (totalitarian) state."

When the east Asia policy was proclaimed originally, the State Department in a note reserved the American position, emphasizing the rights of the United States in China under treaties and other international arrangements and reasserting the principle of the open door policy.

Since then the record has shown more points of difference or even of irritation between the United States and Japan than of conciliation.

'Lucky' Shot Saved Raider, British Claim

Engine Room Blast Enabled German Ship To Escape, English Say

By the Associated Press

Rio de Janeiro, Aug. 1.—The 22,209-British armed merchant cruiser Alcantara put in today at Viann Island Naval Shipyard to repair damage suffered in a short but sharp battle with a Nazi raider.

Her chief officer said the engagement was fought outside the American neutrality belt—and not inside, as previously reported.

The commander clung to the British claim of victory, asserting that the raider fled to avoid further combat.

But in Berlin, D. N. B., official German news agency, contended the Alcantara broke off the fight to nurse her damage in a neutral harbor, while the German raider continued on her campaign against British shipping.

Although 24 hours is the normal period which a belligerent ship may remain in a neutral port, the Brazilian government authorized the Alcantara to remain more than 48 hours.

She steamed in with seven wounded—two dead having been buried at sea—and with three marks from enemy shells showing—one on her funnel, another near the waterline and a third on her hull about 15 feet above the waterline.

But, said her chief officer, Charles Gordon Fellowes, it was only a "lucky" shot into the Alcantara's engine room that enabled the German to make off hidden by a smoke screen.

He said the engagement was fought near the Brazilian island of Trinidad.

This is his story:

"A ship's topmasts were sighted in the early forenoon of Sunday, July 28, and the Alcantara altered her course to investigate. The ship first altered her course toward us, but subsequently turned away and made off at a high speed which appeared suspicious.

"The Alcantara increased her speed and was overhauling the ship when, about 2 p. m., she turned to starboard and disclosed her enemy identity, hoisting the Nazi ensign and opening fire.

"We immediately returned the fire, and hits were scored.

"Her (the German's) firing at once became erratic and there also was obvious internal damage done as her speed was considerably reduced.

Raider Disappears

"Unfortunately, a lucky shot holed the Alcantara's engine room and the enemy made off under cover of a smoke screen.

"The Alcantara was unable to maintain sufficient speed to keep the enemy within range and the raider, evidently not relishing the treatment she had received, did not show a desire to close the range and continue the engagement.

"Apart from the hit in the engine room, the Alcantara's damage was slight. The British casualties were one officer and one seaman killed; two officers and five seamen injured."

The victims, Gordon Fellowes said, had stood near the damaged funnel and steel splinters rained upon them.

The wounded remained in the ship's hospital.

The Alcantara is armed with eight 6-inch guns—four on each broadside.

As she lay in the naval yards tonight, her officers would not disclose what plans had been made for her departure.

in France, in view of Soviet Premier Molotoff's pronouncement earlier in the day of the solidity of the Russian and German friendship.]

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Aug. 1.—Germany claimed victories tonight for a western Atlantic raider and for the air force with which she hopes to stagger Britain sufficiently for a knockout blow or, short of that, force her into surrender.

German military observers insist that the "major attack" on Britain now is under way, indicating that increased pressure by sea and air is the present strategy—rather than immediate land invasion.

At the same time Germany moved to avert any suggestion of disorder in the Dutch part of her vast, war-worn military domain in western Europe by warning Netherlanders not to demonstrate in favor of the refugee royal family when Dutch memorial day is celebrated next week, under penalty of severe prosecution.

Germany's war reports were classified thus:

Western Atlantic:

A German auxiliary cruiser (converted merchant ship) heavily damaged and put to flight the armed British merchant cruiser Alcantara in battle off the Brazilian coast last Sunday and is continuing a hit-and-run warfare on British shipping.

DNB, official news agency, said heavy hits forced the 22,209-ton former Royal Mail liner quickly to break off the running gun duel and seek the shelter of neutral Rio de Janeiro Harbor. (The British declared that the raider showed no inclination to come to close quarters and fled after a "lucky shot" reduced the Alcantara's speed. The Alcantara put into Rio de Janeiro Harbor today for repairs.)

British Isles:

Despite adverse weather, Nazi airmen yesterday and last night bombed shipping in the English Channel and on the Atlantic side of the Scilly Islands, off Land's End, southwesternmost England, and southern English ports and searchlight positions. Explosions and fires were "observed."

Messerschmitts and Spitfires—German and British pursuit planes—fought above the Straits of Dover, five of the British planes being shot down along with two barrage balloons.

Hitler May Transfer Dr. Westrick

some statement Saturday.

It was officially asserted, however, that Westrick, as a member of the staff of the German Embassy, had full diplomatic immunity and all diplomatic privileges. Officials of the Germany Embassy declined to discuss the counselor's case in any way.

Westrick drove down to his Waldorf-Astoria suite this morning and after a brief stay and consultation with his assistant, Baroness Irmingard von Wagenheim, disappeared without making any statement.

The counselor's wife, Imtrud Westrick, however, did meet newspapermen during the morning at her home at the Searsdale estate of Harold A. Callan, 188 Mamaroneck road, and insisted there was nothing irregular in the conduct of her husband. They had been visited only by old family friends, she said, and never had anything of a political or business nature been discussed with their occasional callers.

"He didn't plot anything here or anywhere else," she said, "and in his work my husband tries to be fair to both countries." Although she desired privacy, Mrs. Westrick said that they would continue to live at the Searsdale place at least for the remainder of the summer.

Disclosures of the close association of officials of the Texas company, one of the country's biggest oil firms, with Dr. Westrick and their extension of many courtesies to him caused unusual activity in the company's stock today, resulting in a drop of 1⅛ points and making the stock the eighth most active on the exchange. Over 4,000 shares changed hands during the day, an activity it had not shown in months.

Rieber Unaware

Capt. Torkild Rieber, chairman of the board of the Texas company, who loaned Westrick one of the company's automobiles and performed other friendly services for the German emissary since his arrival here last April, declared today that he did not know what Westrick was doing in the United States, that he had never asked him and had never been told. He said he had known Westrick for many years as a German legal representative of the Texas company and it was nothing more than good business policy to extend help to a business associate when help was asked. He added that he had not seen Westrick since June 11.

Philip D. Wagoner, president of the Underwood Elliott Fisher Co., of 1 Park avenue, whose Rolls Royce was one of the cars seen to enter the Westrick Searsdale home driveway, could not be reached yesterday for comment.

Harold A. Callan, an attorney in the firm of Shearman & Sterling, 55 Wall Street, who owns the 2-acre Searsdale estate where Dr. Westrick established himself on May 6, said at his summer place in Chatham, N. Y., that Dr. Westrick represented himself as the United States legal adviser of certain German corporations.

Wants Home Back

"Dr. Westrick never informed me that he was in any way connected with the German Embassy or German government," said Mr. Callan. "If I had been told that he was in the German government's service I would never have leased my home to him. As it is, I have asked the Searsdale police to throw a guard about my house and keep Dr. Westrick's visitors away, and I shall take possession of my home as soon as I can persuade Dr. Westrick to let me reoccupy it. I certainly do not want my home to be used as a meeting place for German operations.

"I distinctly remember that Dr. Westrick gave me the Bankers Trust Co. of New York and the legal firm of White & Case, 14 Wall street, as references. I thought these names represented responsible organizations and did not think it necessary to check them. I can only say that the whole incident was the result of a misrepresentation."

At the United States courthouse, agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation admitted they were interested in Dr. Westrick and that considerable correspondence was going on.

Capt. Rieber, who had declined to be interviewed by a New York Herald Tribune reporter on previous occasions, was greeted by the press at 10 a. m. in his office on the twenty-sixth floor of the Chrysler Building.

Norwegian-born, a short man with a well tanned face and thinning gray hair, he was noticeably upset when reporters were admitted to his office for a 30-minute interview, soon after they had first been told by a reception clerk that Capt. Rieber was not in.

Referring immediately to the article in yesterday's New York Herald Tribune (which was published exclusively in Washington in The Post), Capt. Rieber, a veteran of the sea, said: "I got so mad when I saw it that I could hardly read it."

He began by saying that the Texas Co. had no business investments in Germany, Italy or Japan. Up to the start of the European war, he said, the company had sold considerable oil to Germany and Italy but since then had sold none to either nation, directly or indirectly.

"A Very Decent Fellow"

Five years ago, he continued, the company ordered 12 tank ships from Germany. Five had been delivered up to the start of the war and two were in Germany, nearly completed. Last year he went to Germany and "did a good job of salesmanship in obtaining German permission to take over the boats, and in getting British cooperation to take them through the naval blockade to this country, he said.

Dr. Westrick, he said, is "a very decent fellow" who represented the Texas company, as well as 10 or 12 other American corporations in Germany. Dr. Westrick, he said, had been coming to the United States two or three times a year for as long as he could remember, and always paid him a visit.

Nazi Baroness Keeps Silent On Work in U.S.

Not Allowed to Talk, Declares Westrick's Petite Secretary

By Inez Robb,
(International News Service Staff Writer)

New York, Aug. 1.—Hell hath no fury like a woman in her twenties who finds herself described publicly and in print as in her middle forties.

This insult added to injury proved intolerable today to Baroness Irmingard von Wagenheim, associate and secretary of Dr. Gerhardt Alois Westrick, special Nazi trade agent for Adolf Hitler, whose activities in New York have attracted the attention of the FBI.

Harassed and nervous, the slim, petite baroness, who looks no more than the 28 she says she is, in a strong light, endured as best she could the spotlight which has suddenly been turned on Dr. Westrick's actions here.

"Those newspapers!" burst from her in sudden rage and indignation. "They say I am 45. You can see that I am not."

Baroness Wagenheim could pass for any nondescript little New York stenographer. If she is mysterious, she doesn't look it. She stands only a few inches over 5 feet and wouldn't tip the scales at the 100 mark. She is small and dark, not blond and heroic in the Germanic tradition. Even her eyes are dark.

"Yes, I am a baroness!" she declared with tearful hauteur when I pointed out that during the months she has stopped at the Waldorf, in a room adjoining the suite reserved for Dr. Westrick, she has been registered as "Miss von Wagenheim."

German Prisoner Describes Flight to U. S.

By the Associated Press

Boston, Aug. 1.—A slim, blond German machinist's mate calmly related tonight how he wriggled through the porthole of a British prison ship in the St. Lawrence River July 15 and evaded the enemy for four days and five nights, until he reached safety, in the United States.

Walther Kurt Reich, 23, first German war prisoner known to have escaped to this country, credited his expert swimming ability—he was in the cold water two hours—and knowledge of geography with carrying him to a haven here.

Under international law, a prisoner escaping to a neutral nation becomes free, but Reich has yet to deal with the immigration authorities, who regard him as an alien here without a passport or proper visa. He was placed under supervision of the German consulate in Boston, which posted a bond for him.

Reich told how he spent four months in a British prison camp at Manchester, England, before he was loaded with other German prisoners on a ship bound for Canada.

He could tell by the sun, he said, that the ship's course was westward, and he bided his time until "we could see land in the distance."

"Then, that night when it was dark, I wriggled through a porthole," he continued. "I did it alone, with no help or connivance. It was a tight fit going through, but I wore only short, thin pants, and, on my feet, sneakers.

I went through headfirst; that was the worst, for when my head was through, I could not know if some guard was seeing my feet and coming to stop me.

"I think it was about two hours swimming before I reached land. It was woodland and I quickly hid myself and waited through the day to take my bearing as best I could by the sun."

For four days five nights, the young German said, he walked with blistered feet and with "nothing to eat but wild strawberries and blackberries."

He said he had walked 25 miles inside the United States boundary, when two United States immigration inspectors in an automobile, noticing his ragged clothing, took him into custody.

British Prepare Blitz Against Blitz

Road Barriers Razed So Mobile Army Can Rush to Coast

By the Associated Press

London, Aug. 1.—Great Britain has to strengthened herself against invasion that tonight she was preparing elaborately for an "offensive defense." This entailed removal of barriers once counted on to slow an enemy, but now cast out as handicaps to her own troops' mobility.

An order today by the new commander in chief, Gen. Sir Alan Brooke, to remove many of the steel and concrete traps and road blocks studding roadways throughout England announced this startling shift of strategy.

It is a return to the traditional theory that attack is the best defense, provided there is sufficient man and machine power to execute it. Now a trained and equipped army and home guard of several million men has converted Britain into an armed camp.

Barriers already are being removed in northern England, where all double road blocks are being eliminated and single ones cut back. They were erected swiftly two months ago at every point where it was thought an invader might try to seize strategic communications. Britain then envisioned a possible barricade to barricade defense by the comparatively few trained soldiers then available.

The change was explained as a natural development with the return from the continent and reorganization of the Brtish Expeditionary Force.

Beaches and other coastal landing points still bristle with defenses.

Still further tightening the defense—a campaign which already had brought mass transfer of thousands of civilians from strategic areas—the ministry of home security ordered withdrawal of civilians form areas in East Anglia, east and northeast of London, and on the southeastern coast.

These withdrawals in advance, rather than the clogging of roads with refugees which would come with an enemy landing, would clear the way for Britain's own swift "offensive defense" movement of armies.

Dubious of almost too frank statements for both ends of the Rome-Berlin Axis that blitz invasion of British soil is not immediately contemplated, the British chinked their fortifications, deployed their troops and cleared the way for a "total defense."

Dispatches from Berlin, quoting military observers as indicating Germany for the present will rely upon increased pressure from the air and submarine and torpedo boat action—rather than an "all out" assault by these and land armies—gain but questioning welcome.

These statements are along the line of the recent pronouncement by Virginio Gayda, authoritative Rome editor, that a blitzkrieg against England is not at present "feasible."

Foe of Vice Appoints Her His Secretary

SHE DOESN'T SMOKE—There must be no smoking on or off the job for Aletta Hood, 20-year-old brunette whom Gov. Luren Dickinson of Michigan has appointed as his personal secretary. Dickinson, foe of vices, said he asked Miss Hood whether she smoked even before he asked her if she could type. She said she didn't

Fires Blaze in Alps as Swiss Pledge Defense of Freedom

By the Associated Press

Bern, Switzerland, Aug. 1.—By the light of hundreds of fires blazing from Alpine peaks, Swiss residents celebrated tonight their 649th anniversary of union and freedom and heard their leaders pledge anew a firm determination to defend the nation against any and all invaders.

Gen. Henri Guisan, commander of the Swiss army, and Dr. Marcel Pilet-Golaz, president of the Swiss Confederation, joined in telling the people the armed forces and the government would fight "to the end" to maintain Swiss neutrality and independence.

"The war around us is not ended; the armistice is not a peace," both declared. They counseled the people to go about their work as usual, but to remember they might become soldiers on a moment's notice.

Tens of thousands of Switzerland's people joined in the celebration. In the cities, where the peak fires were only pinpoints on the horizon, urbanites marched and sang through the streets in torchlight and lantern parades.

France Organizes Youth Movement

Vichy, France, Aug. 1 (AP).—Twenty-year-olds called to the colors June 8 and 9 were demobilized by decree today and were organized into "youth groups" for six months of obligation service.

These 125,000 youths joined the army when Germans were descending on Paris.

U. S. Asks Rumania To Explain Arrest

Bucharest, Aug. 1 (AP).—U. S. Minister Franklin Gunther asked Premier Gigurtu today to investigate the arrest of Albrecht Douglas, a German-American chemist from New York, who was conducting artificial blood experiments here.

Douglas and his wife, the former German Baroness Maltzahn, disappeared July 18. Later it was learned Douglas had been arrested by military police.

Goering Puts Esquire to Shame

Berlin, Aug. 1 (AP).—In elevating Hermann Wilhelm Goering to the distinctive post of Reichsmarshal, Adolf Hitler created a problem in uniforming and insignia to set off the No. 2 Nazi from the ordinary field marshals of the Reich.

The suspense of Goering's admirers over the form of his new resplendency was broken today, when it was disclosed that on the golden knotted epaulets of his field marshal's uniform will be a burnished spread eagle clutching the swastika imposed on the crossed gold batons of his former rank of air marshal.

In place of the ordinary field marshal's baton now carried by a dozen other men, the Reichsmarshal will have a super baton tipped with the Reichsapfel (imperial orb).

British List Italian Losses in Libya

London, Aug. 1 (AP).—Italian losses in the Libyan frontier fighting thus far known to the British are 20 killed, 20 wounded, 472 captured, along with 90 vehicles and 16 guns taken, the British announced officially today. British losses were listed at 20 killed and missing, 10 wounded and 10 vehicles captured.

French Embassy Aide Here Given Post in China

Vichy, France, Aug. 1 (AP).—It was disclosed today that the nomination of Gaston Henry-Haye as the new French Ambassador to Washington is but part of a sweeping shift in diplomatic assignments by the Petain government.

BONCOUR

Rene Massigli, Ambassador to Turkey; Adrien Thierry, Ambassador to Rumania, and Ambassador Bruges in Yugoslavia were relieved of their posts for unspecified reasons.

Minister Entil in Uruguay was assigned to Portugal.

Jean Paul Boncour, who left Bordeaux shortly after the armistice was signed to become press counselor of the French Embassy in Washington, was named counselor of the embassy in China instead.

Ambassador Rene Doynel de St. Quentin, who Henry Haye is replacing, has not yet been reassigned.

Vice Consul Bibily's appointment to San Francisco has been revoked.

81 Arrested In Canal Zone Spy Round-up

4 More Destroyers Arrive at Balboa To Bolster Defenses

20,000 soldiers on duty there now.

The drive to catch foreign agents at the Panama Canal recalled the arrest by Army authorities in October, 1938, of four Germans after the group had taken photographs of coastal defenses at Fort Randolph.

Subsequently two of the group, Hans Schackow and Edward Robert Kuhrig, were sentenced to two years at hard labor.

Army on Alert

"I am glad," Secretary Stimson said, "that the situation in Panama is one everyone has his eye on," when correspondents pressed him for details of the spy drive.

"The Army probably realizes the danger there more than anybody else," he said.

Both entrances to the canal are mined, and Army authorities admitted recently that heavy artillery had been moved from one side of the canal to the other, but described the shifts as "routine."

For the last several months the Zone has been under military rule, a step that is taken only in times of emergency.

The investigation leading to the arrests was made by the War Department, it was learned later. The Justice Department's Immigration and Naturalization Service has no primary jurisdiction in the Canal Zone.

Maj. Lemuel B. Schofield, head of the service, said his agency's part in the roundup consisted only in conferring with the War Department officials on what to do with the agents taken into custody.

It has not yet been decided whether to deport the men directly from the Canal Zone or to bring them to the continental United States for proceedings through the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Jorge Boyd, Panamanian Ambassador, commenting on reports that his government could not seize an alien while he held a job on the Canal Zone, said that Panama has cooperated to the fullest extent with the United States in controlling aliens in the Canal Zone. He said absolute harmony exists between Canal police and Panama officials.

It had been previously reported that officials of the Panamanian government had prepared a secret concentration camp for agents, but that the camp never was used.

Meanwhile there were these other actions yesterday in the alien situation:

Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, after a brief session of a Senate Immigration subcommittee considering a bill to deport Harry Bridges, West Coast labor leader, said the subcommittee would decide Monday whether to hold public hearings on the bill. King said many letters had been received urging prompt Senate approval of the deportation bill.

A Detroit preacher told a Senate Judiciary subcommittee that a bill by Representative Voorhis (Democrat), California, requiring registration of certain organizations with the Justice Department would "destroy the freedom of those who hold different political views from those of the two major parties." The witness, the Rev. Owen Knox, of the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties, testified against a bill to require registration of organizations engaging in political activities which have as a design the overthrow of a government by force or violence, or which are dominated by foreign powers.

SHOREHAM STRIP-TEASE. Ah! Ah! Wait a minute before you say, "Well, I never!" and get red in the face. The strip-tease being done by the Mangean Girls on the Shoreham Terrace is purely a take-off—no, we mean a satire. It's in the nineties manner and the cutest trick of the summer. The girls first doff huge red hats, then their heavily braided basques and skirts. Black corsets are the last items they toss to the wind. Then they gallop off in voluminous panties and camisoles of 1900 vintage. That's all, folks.

SURPRISE PARTY. Cake and congratulations were tendered to Manager Russell A. Conn by the entire staff of the Ambassador Hotel at a surprise party yesterday celebrating his seventh anniversary as the hostelry's manager. The cake was a work of art, the congratulations were from the heart.

NEPTUNEING. It's a wonder Milt Herth's Trio doesn't blow a fuse—the way they turn every number into a Herthquaker. Take the quiet old "The Organ Played at Twilight." The Herthshakers make it sound like a combo of a typhoon, Wagner and Cab Calloway. 'S colossal! We'd like to ask Milt to play Raymond Scott's "Powerhouse," but we're afraid he'd literally shake down the stars. P. S.: The Earle Restaurant, sister of Neptune, is to be completely done over this fall. They say it'll be too beautiful for words.

SLACKS GET OKAY. Listen, girls! Tom O'Donnell, liberal-minded owner of O'Donnell's Farms, says it's all right for you to wear slacks while dining or dancing at this verdant spot. "Relax in slacks," is the O'Donnell slogan. Dancing at O'D. Farms to Sidney music tomorrow eve.

FEUDIN' GOLF. That first golf skirmish between the rhythm boys of the Starlight Roof and the Rainbow Room was just a beginning. They'll meet again at Argyle next Tuesday. Here comes the blitzkreig! . . . The first game was an epic of low scores and high temperatures. Rainbow took the game by 20 points, but Starlight's Joe McNamara had the low score of 80. Six of the eight players registered in the low 80's. The thermometer registered 109 and Rainbow's Milton Davis lost five pounds going around.

C'EST LA GUERRE. Pete Macias of the Lounge Riviera (see pic above) played hooky from Western High School in 1917 to jine the Navy. He spent most of his time aboard a mine sweeper in the North Sea, was discharged on New Year's Eve, 1919, and had a monumental party.

Maestro Pete Macias, of the Lounge Riviera, when he was sweet 17 in 1919

BANDSTAND GIRLS. Virginia Newall, slim, blonde pianist with Nadine's Co-Eds at Maryland Gardens, must be an honor graduate of a memory course school. She memorizes every arrangement the Co-Eds play, never uses sheet music. . . . Lovely Linda Carroll, of the King Cole Room, is all set to get back on the radio this fall . . . Remember pretty Dee Tracy, ciggie lass in the Mayflower Lounge? She's been singing at Dick Gardner's "Hotcha Club" up near Frederick all summer and such experts as Maurice Kafka and Morgan Baer declare that her work is now of professional caliber.

COMPOSERS. The New Bavarian's Gustav Heintze composes many of those intricate numbers that he plays so well . . . Arsenio Ralon and Sasha Bartnowsky, Madrillon's luncheon music-makers have written a number of really delightful songs . . . Helen Myers, who pianos so daintily in the Carlton Lounge, has had several of her compositions used in Hollywood musicals . . . But the town's busiest composer is our old pran', Matt Windsor of the Anchor Room. Matt counts that week lost when he doesn't turn out a spicy and sugary new song.

"FOUR QUEENS AND A JACK" will head the new show beginning at the Casino Royal next Monday. This group has been in town before and could well be called "Five Aces." And that's a hand you can't beat.

"MOUSEY" OF THE MAYFAIR. When "Mousey" Garner isn't smacking the daylights out of the Mayfair piano you'll generally find him with a tableful of highly diverted customers. "Mousey's" yarns are not only tall—they're priceless as reflections of Hollywood's maddest days. Get him to tell you about the battle between Ted Healy and the chimpanzee.

DEL RIO DOINGS. Always a big crowd perched at the giant circular bar . . . Maestro Ray Bradford fiddles "Listen to the Mocking Bird" so dizzily that you think there's a cage full of them around. . . . The filet mignons are tender as butter . . . And never miss hearing Jack Wells give that terrific going-over to "Sierra Sue."

FAREWELL, LITTLE ELEMENTALS. Hurry to the Lotus. For you've just today and tomorrow to see the jolly sparkling "Parade of the Elements" that's refreshed the town during the heat wave. On Monday there'll be a new Tom Ball revue.

AL SHEA, of the Rustic Cabin, is one of the few musicians around town who can play that truly wonderful instrument, the novachord. Hundreds of different effects can be produced on the novachord.

PERFECT MEETING PLACE. Have you a downtown date? Then the Harrington Tavern is a fine place to meet. Whoever arrives first can wait in coolness, comfort and quiet (also have frosted julep) until the other half of the date shows up.

BALANCED MUSICAL DIET. That's what you get at the Nightingale. Leader Redd Raffell believes in pleasing both the fanciers of sweet music and the hot rhythm fans. He arranges the honey-dripping numbers himself while the rest of his arranging staff collaborate on the swing specials.

Aluminum Company Rival Gets U.S. Loan

RFC Grant Will Spur Competition For Mellon Firm

The Federal Government moved to bring more competition into the aluminum industry yesterday by announcing an RFC loan of $15,500,000 to make the Reynolds Metal Co. a rival producer of aluminum to the giant Aluminum Co. of America.

Federal Loan Administrator Jesse Jones, making the announcement, said the Reynolds concern would locate its plant in the Tennessee Valley area. Aluminum Co. of America has one of its major plants at Alcoa, Tenn., in the heart of the TVA network.

The Mellon-controlled aluminum company, in New York Federal Circuit Court, now is defending itself against Justice Department charges of violation of the antitrust statutes. The equity suit, filed April 23, 1937, is in final stages of argument.

Won't Define Object

Though Jones would not say that the purpose of the loan was to create a competitor for the aluminum company, which has had virtually undisputed sway in its field for 30 years, he did say he thought it was a good idea from a national defense standpoint to have as many companies as possible producing aluminum.

The loan followed by less than 24 hours President Roosevelt's signing of a bill appropriating $25,000,000 for construction of new TVA power facilities, first installment of a $58,000,000 program.

In testifying to Congress in favor of the additional TVA power facilities, William S. Knudsen, production member of the Defense Commission, said the additional power was needed mainly to produce aluminum for military aircraft.

Bauxite a Question

The Reynolds concern, Jones said, has never before manufactured aluminum but, in recent years, has processed aluminum, turning out finished articles.

There remained the question yesterday where Reynolds, if it plans to rival the Mellon firm, would find the raw material, bauxite, from which the metal is made.

The Justice Department, in filing suit in equity against the aluminum company, charged that it controlled 90 per cent of the bauxite deposits in the United States commercially suitable for the production of aluminum, and 100 per cent of the bauxite produced in the United States for the manufacture of aluminum.

Emil Schram, RFC chairman, said yesterday, however, that the Reynolds Metal Co. was "exploring various sources" of bauxite.

In addition to a virtual monopoly of bauxite supplies, the Government told Federal Court in 1937 that the aluminum company produced 100 per cent of the aluminum used in aluminum production in this country; that the company was the Nation's sole producer of virgin aluminum and that the company owned and controlled 85 per cent of the combined total of virgin aluminum produced and imported and of the competitive secondary or "scrap" aluminum, moving in interstate trade and commerce in the United States.

Meanwhile, the Aluminum Co. of America announced in Pittsburgh a reduction of 1 cent a pound to 18 cents a pound in the price of aluminum, the second reduction this year.

Defense Profits Limit Dropped

ous types of arms production until the profit-limitation and tax situation is cleared. Admiral John H. Towers, chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, and Gen. George H. Brett, chief of the materiel division of the Army Air Corps, have both testified to this brake on the defense program.

The committee yesterday heard three major proposals for its excess profits bill. Treasury officials presented their plan for calculating excess profits on a basis combining yield on invested capital with average income for a specified period of years; and experts of the Joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation offered their proposal to define excess profits as merely those profits in excess of the average profit for a base period—without reference to capital investment.

Third Proposal Made

The third proposal, understood to have been advanced merely as a suggestion by Representative McCormack, of Massachusetts, is for a revival of the undistributed profits tax. This levy, which would exempt some profits as a "cushion," would impose a heavy tax on the remaining profits if they were not distributed in the form of dividends.

While no estimate has been made of the yield from such tax, it was held that the Government would not lose; for if the profits were all distributed as dividends, the tax would be paid by individual shareholders under the recently increased income taxes.

The Treasury plan for an excess profits tax based on the combination of invested capital and average income is expected to produce from $500,000,000 to $750,000,000; while if the tax is based solely on average income, the yield is expected to drop to about $300,000,000.

Hitler's Delay Not Caused By Weather, U. S. Experts Say

Neither July Heat Nor Promise of Dry August Credited With Postponement; Next 6 Weeks to Be Clear, Records Indicate

By Edward Ryan

Neither July heat nor the promise of better fighting weather in August could be credited with delaying Hitler's promised attack on the British Isles, Washington weather experts reported yesterday.

The German troops have at least six weeks of comfortable dry weather left for a Battle of England, local forecasters said, but the weather they will have in this period will not be much better, not much worse, than they could have had during July.

This gives them three more days than they took to overrun the Low Countries and France, but the last three days will be dangerously close to the foggy season.

British Edge in Information

If the approaching battle were figured simply as a professional dispute between British and German weather forecasters the betting odds would be about even, officials believe. Scientists on both sides have experimented with long-range weather forecasting. The Germans have the lead in claiming success for their long-range forecasting; the British have had an edge in supplies of actual weather information.

Government weather experts, however, are respectful but not awe-stricken about the German methods for long-range forecasting.

R. H. Weightman, veteran forecaster, and a leader in the Weather Bureau's efforts to find a dependable long-range forecasting system, said that German weather experts are probably "abreast of the times, but not far ahead" in their science.

Superforecasters Suggested

Despite press reports, Weightman said he did not believe the Nazi weather experts had developed any "supersystem" for forecasting. What they do have, he explained, is highly developed network of European weather stations equipped to survey conditions in the upper air, and four or five years of practical experience in using this information for making long-range forecasts. They lack, however, the detailed reports about weather conditions over the Atlantic that normally tell the story of what western Europe's weather will be.

First suggestion that Hitler's aides might include a superforecaster came when his armies marched into Poland and won what was believed by some to be a gamble on the weather. Polish leaders counted on the aid of "General Mud," but the rains came far behind schedule. The possible "superforecasting" broke down, though, when the German armies broke through the Netherlands and rolled across northern France to the Channel. Weightman recalled that bad weather had aided the British evacuation from Dunkirk.

Complex Statistics

Weightman got a first-hand taste of Channel weather during the World War service with the American Army Signal Corps. Four years ago he visited the leading meteorologists of England, Germany and other European countries. Among them was Dr. Franz Baur, of Frankfort-Am-Main, Germany's leading long-range forecaster, and now credited with coming closest to filling the possible role of superforecaster.

Baur's method for producing forecasts for one week, two weeks or further ahead, is based on complex statistical exercises with figures culled from past weather records and current observations of temperature and pressure conditions in the upper air, according to Weightman. American forecasters have tested what they know of his methods, and found them "moderately" successful, but short of the standard they would like to set for long-range forecasting in this country.

Records Give Hint

This was backed by the bureau's records of Europe's weather, some of them running back for more than half a century, compiled by Dr. W. W. Reed. These showed that the war zone would have slightly more rain in August than in July, and a mean temperature averaging half a degree lower in August than July.

Along the Channel, the records indicated, the armies could expect a slight increase in rainfall in September over August, while the major cities, London, Birmingham, Berlin, Hamburg, will have less rain in September than August. Throughout the war zone September temperatures averaged about 5 degrees below August temperatures. From late September on through the fall, the armies would face chills, more rainfall and heavy fogs.

Unidentified Ship Struck by Torpedo In North Atlantic

New York, Aug. 1 (U.P.).—Mackay Radio tonight reported picking up a message from an unidentified vessel saying she had been torpedoed in the North Atlantic.

The message said:

"ODXA torpedoed 55.09 north longitude 17.13 west (latitude) at 0236 GMT 2nd (1:36 p. m. E. S. T., Thursday).

"ODXA" was believed to be the radio call signal of the vessel. From the combination of letters the Radiomarine Corporation said the ship probably was of Norwegian registry.

The message was picked up by Mackay and relayed from the steamship Algic, United States Maritime Commission vessel.

The Two Americas

With the announcement that scrap-metal firms are making bids to the Maritime Commission, it appears that the ghost fleet off Solomons Island may soon be exorcised. With its liquidation, a curious sight would disappear from the Maryland cornfields along the Patuxent, beside which those four old German liners lie moored.

As in all obsequies—even, it may be assumed of ghosts—the story may be told over, briefly. The Mount Vernon, Monticello, America and George Washington, to give their present names, were seized by the United States on our declaration of war in 1917 and later transported thousands of American troops to Europe.

The Mount Vernon, once the Kronprinzessin Cecilie and the pride of the Kaiser's merchant marine, was torpedoed off the French coast in 1918. She made port. The Monticello, originally the Kaiser Wilhelm II, collided with another transport and sounded "abandon ship." She also reached harbor safely. The George Washington bore President Wilson to Europe for the Paris Peace Conference. The America, a decade after the war, won acclaim by making a daring rescue in a blizzard. For years now all four ships have been rusticating—and rusting—at Solomons Island.

The blowtorch is no respecter of fame. It slices up the old, clears the way for the new. But in this case the blowtorch will be a little late. This week a new America, the largest passenger ship ever built in this country, steamed proudly into New York and soon will enter commercial service. No ghost should plague her scheduled voyages to the West Indies. If the Maritime Commission decides to preserve the old America it should at least change her name.

The Daily Worker Sold

A statement on the front page of yesterday's issue of the Daily Worker announced the sale of that always interesting and often very intelligent journal to a concern which bears the bourgeois liberal designation of "The Freedom of the Press, Inc." It appears that the only stockholders of this corporation are three elderly ladies of most impeccable family connections. One of the new publishers, in fact, is a D. A. R. Another is at least three times qualified by her ancestry to join that organization should she so desire.

The announcement is accompanied by another statement, over the signatures of Comrades William Z. Foster and Earl R. Browder, that the Daily Worker now "ceases to be the official central organ of the Communist Party." Continued support of the paper, however, is earnestly commended to "all American progressives and their organizations, including, of course, the Communist Party of the U. S. A."

Perhaps only those well accustomed to the labyrinthine methods of the Politbureau and Komintern will be able to recognize immediately the significance of this transaction. Comrades Foster and Browder, to be sure, speak of living through times "which are both trying and historic." This may or may not mean that they expect the next few months to be pretty tough for formal and avowed Communists. Anyway, should it ever come to a point where the party found itself outlawed—as has happened elsewhere under democratic governments—a journal devoted to "the basic principles of our democracy" might have a higher survival quality than an "official central organ."

This, however, is mere speculation. For all we know to the contrary the sale may really signify some reorientation of editorial policy. So far the only signs discernible are in the masthead, whence the Soviet hammer and sickle have suddenly disappeared.

Under the capable Comrade Hathaway the Daily Worker was certainly the best edited and most readable of all American labor papers, though this, perhaps, is too faint praise. Anyway, in its audacity and contempt of vulgar consistency, the Daily Worker often rose to genuine brilliance—as when it assailed the brutal Finnish attack on helpless Russia, and when, more recently, it bitterly denounced the movement to introduce the sort of conscription they have in Russia into these free United States.

Regional Groupings

It is well to place in perspective the very important statement of policy made in Tokyo yesterday by the government of Prince Konoye, who was Premier of Japan when the undeclared war with China was launched three years ago, and who returned to that high office a fortnight back.

It is to be noted, in the first place, that this Japanese statement comes on the heels of the Havana Conference, which has turned Pan Americanism from a matter of pleasant platitudes into something strongly resembling an embryonic league of American nations, with the United States playing a dominant role therein.

The Konoye statement, furthermore, comes at a time when most Japanese have concluded that Germany is going to dominate western Europe, with the acquiescence if not the appoval of its people, almost regardless of the outcome of the war with Great Britain. This, it is held, is certain to weaken British power and authority in the Far East.

Finally, the Konoye statement coincides with the important speech yesterday of Premier Molotoff, stressing Russo-German friendship and gently ribbing the United States as a country in whose moral viewpoint Russia is "not interested." The Soviet, Mr. Molotoff strongly intimated, is no longer worried about aggression from either Germany or Japan.

Viewed against this background the statement of the Konoye government becomes particularly interesting. It indicates an intention to establish a regional dominance in eastern Asia similar to that which the Japanese think Germany is creating in western Europe and the United States in this hemisphere.

This mission, says Foreign Minister Matsuoka, Japan will seek to fulfill "in concert with those friendly powers which are prepared to cooperate with us." Cooperation, in this connection, would seem to mean merely willingness to refrain from obstruction.

Out of the general confusion of the times certain regional developments are undoubtedly beginning to clarify. Regardless of differences in motive and procedure there is obvious similarity between the determination of the United States to be the dominant power in the Americas, of Japan to play the same role in the Far East, and of Germany to be master in continental Europe.

Russia, herself a great federation of peoples, is still another regional combination, half Asiatic, half European in character. And the far-flung British commonwealth of nations, with self-governing dominions in three continents possessing close ties with the parent island, is a fifth grouping, though one with political rather than regional unity.

The time has perhaps come when the subordination of weak nations to these great regional groupings must be more realistically envisaged. Certainly no exception in principle can be taken to Prince Konoye's assertion that it is necessary to take "a farsighted view of the drastic changes in the international situation."

Drastic they have been, and probably the end is not yet. Every objective thinker knows that there can be no exact reconstitution of the scheme which has been overthrown. "The moving finger writes and having writ, moves on."

That toward which it moves is still obscure. But the statement of the Konoye government is further indication that the evolution is toward a small number of powerful regional combinations. On whether or not they can work amicably with each other will hinge the question of whether this war will be circumvented, or expand into even more destructive conflicts.

Mr. Stimson's Argument

The United States has never before tried to mobilize a large army in time of peace, a fact which Secretary Stimson ignored in basing his appeal for conscription upon the argument that voluntary enlistment in the past has invariably been a failure.

Mr. Stimson, indeed, appears to assume that we are for all practical purposes already in a state of war, requiring the instant drafting of a large army of men to repel threatened invasion. Otherwise, why insist that it would be dangerous to take time even to test the results of voluntary enlistment on a modified basis?

His assumption that voluntary enlistment would be more demoralizing to industry than a selective draft system is also unconvincing, even though the views of the National Defense Commission are cited in support of this contention. The Army could reject volunteers believed to be more useful in civilian pursuits quite as readily as it could assign drafted men to nonmilitary duties. If, as Mr. Stimson insists, response to voluntary appeals is sure to fail, we certainly need not fear that the rush to enlist will be so great as to disrupt the functioning of our industries.

In asserting, moreover, that conscription is the only appropriate system for a democracy, Mr. Stimson is setting up a conception of the citizen's relation to the state which certainly does not reflect American democratic ideals. If the Nation were at war, resort to the draft would be accepted as unavoidable. But hasty abandonment of volunteer enlistment, without even trying to test its adequacy, seems to many a premature surrender of individual liberty—a confession of disbelief in the efficiency of those free institutions that are characteristically American.

Educational Measure

The House Judiciary Committee, in reporting favorably on the Sumners resolution, took a long stride toward placing the plight of the National Capital before the Nation's voters. According to the resolution in its present form, the people of this country would have seven years to contemplate the situation of a great American city having at least as little control over its own affairs as the population of Berlin.

There has been concrete evidence that the public outside Washington is ignorant of the way in which the District is governed. In June, 1939, Representative Michener of Michigan placed in the Congressional Record an editorial from his home-town paper, the Adrian Daily Telegram. After stating that most Washingtonians were "content to let themselves be governed by Congress through the District Commissioners," the editorial proceeded to display startling misinformation on local fiscal arrangements.

If Representative Michener thought enough of that editorial to call it "timely," what may be expected of persons who live hundreds of miles from Washington and have not the benefit of many years' experience in Congress? Probably not one American in ten has any idea of how the District is governed.

Therefore, even though the committee amended the Sumners resolution severely, the report is encouraging. If the measure is passed and ratified in its present form it will empower Congress to give the District representation in the House only; the right to vote for President, Vice President and local administrative officials. Chairman Sumners and others contend that local self-government can be provided without a Constitutional amendment.

If the public can be educated through this resolution, it is reasonable to hope that Congress will have not only the power but a mandate. It is now squarely up to House leaders to decide whether the facts shall be placed before the people.

A Charter Revoked

Criticism of the American Federation of Labor for harboring racketeers appears to have borne fruit at last. President Green has revoked the charter of the United Sea Food Workers Union of New York because it disobeyed his orders and rehired the notorious Joseph Lanza as business agent. This man had previously served a two-year penitentiary sentence for exacting extortionate fees from fish dealers as part of a shakedown. He has a police record dating back to 1917.

As Lanza's reemployment dates from last February, it cannot be said that Mr. Green has acted overhastily. Nonetheless this belated action seems to mark the beginning of more determined efforts to eliminate the scoundrels who have insinuated themselves into unions where illicit gains are easily garnered.

It is not surprising that the union rank and file should often be ignorant of the outrages perpetrated by those in whom they have put their trust. But the reemployment of a convicted racketeer in a post of trust is without excuse.

The union of which Lanza was business agent is directly under the jurisdiction of the A. F. of L., with the result that its charter may be revoked or suspended by the president of that organization. The charters of national and international unions affiliated with the A. F. of L. can, however, be revoked only by action of the A. F. of L. convention. President Green has frequently cited lack of power as an excuse for failure to take disciplinary action against known racketeers within affiliated organizations. He is to be congratulated for refusing to offer any alibi in the current case.

Fashion Note

From the Chicago Daily News

"Hailed as facilitating national defense——." So opens a publicity release dealing with some governmental project about as remote from the Army and Navy as the latest wrinkle in mushroom culture or the most recent discovery in Ceylonese archeology.

From now on press agents, promoters and candidates for justice of the peace may be expected to lean on "national defense."

Well, a change is probably due. "Promoting recovery" has about played out. "Combating communism" is running low, as the supply of Commies diminishes. "Averting fascism" sounds too much like a trip to Europe. Time for a new slogan!

And this one is a slogan that would better be "implemented"—or else.

Soldiers' Pay

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Congressmen and Senators, we who are about to die salute you. We are not afraid, but we don't want to be suckers. Must we give up our jobs and offer our lives to our country for $21 a month? Have we come to a point in our history when capital, labor and the WPA will laugh at us while advancing in their professions and we follow a blind alley for a pittance? The Constitution of the United States guarantees against depriving a citizen of liberty without due process of law; do you propose to violate that Constitutional right?

We must have an army, but must we have slavery? Would conscription be necessary if Army pay enabled a man to maintain his self-respect? You expect to spend $6,000,000,000 the first year on an Army of 1,000,000 men. Would $1,000,000,000 be too much for their pay? Morale is as important as equipment, and no American wants to be a sucker. SINCERE.

Washington, July 29.

Against Conscription

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The people of America have cause to be greatly alarmed at the continued efforts on the part of the Government of our country to involve us in war.

One of the most serious of the Administration's war preparations is the proposed conscription bill now pending in Congress. The Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill is a tremendous stride forward in foisting a Fascist dictatorship on the American people and a tremendous setback for our democratic traditions.

It must be defeated and will be if peace-loving, democratically minded Americans register their opposition to conscription now. Congress should be more concerned with legislating more jobs and a decent American standard of living instead of trying to outdo the English, Italian and German war lords.

GILBERT CARTER.

New York, July 30, 1940.

Commends Driver

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A courteous lady driving a car who, with admirable patience, is carefully considerate of pedestrians at crossings should be commended, shouldn't she? Even a captious critic or confirmed misogynist, disposed constantly to discredit a woman's driving, should be compelled to salute such a lady, whom I saw at the wheel at Connecticut avenue and K street northwest. Several pedestrians (at least seven) were crossing K street at Seventeenth street to reach Connecticut avenue in keeping with the green light. This lady waited patiently until all of those pedestrians had cleared the way safely before making the right turn out of Connecticut avenue into K street which would enable her to proceed west on K street.

Her example, it seems to me, is not merely admirable; it should be imitated by many other drivers. The psychological effect on those particular pedestrians could be readily observed by the casual onlooker; when they saw how genuinely considerate this lady was of them, they seemed to quicken their steps simultaneously as if to cooperate with her. She is not only a courteous, considerate lady, but I would venture to say that she is also an exceptionally smart woman, no matter how or where she learned her lessons in psychology. Persons afoot would be able to proceed along their respective ways with a sense of security if her number were legion.

AN APPRECIATIVE MALE.

Washington, July 29.

For Military Training

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Yesterday morning I read the complete text of the Burke-Wadsworth bill and I was prepared to listen to the discussion on it over the American Forum of the Air, hoping to hear an intelligent discourse on it.

Senator Rush Holt repeatedly made the statement, "Show me the person in favor of conscription and I will show you someone who wants war."

I challenge the statement. I have read everything that I could get my hands on in regard to universal conscription and I fail to see how he or Senator Lundeen came to the conclusions that they presented to the American people over a Nation-wide network.

In the Gallup Poll, which is the most faithful reflection of American public opinion, more and more voters are waking up to the fact that preparedness in every way must be instituted now, not when and if war comes to us.

If my boy were old enough to enlist I would insist that he do so immediately before he embarks on his college career. This being out of the question, he is enrolled in a school where R. O. T. C. is part of his curriculum.

My husband is employed gainfully in an industry that is engaged in interstate commerce, but his type of work, I realize, is not the type designated as one of those that can be exempted from service.

Therefore I am unalterably opposed to war. It would destroy everything which represents home and family and security to me, but I go on record as one of the great mass of American women, as a citizen of this country, as a mother, that we prepare our man power that, if the day should ever come, they can adequately protect us.

Chooses Experience

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I believe that two terms are enough for any President, but I believe that during this time of chaos and world disorder we should keep our President who is familiar with the conditions that are now of the utmost importance to America and to the world. This is the philosophy of America's greatest Republican, Abraham Lincoln. Mr. Lincoln said that it is not a wise idea to change horses in the middle of the stream. This is true especially when the present horse is getting us across.

America's next President must possess two very essential qualifications. They are experience and ability. Mr. Roosevelt has had eight years' experience as President and his ability is questioned by no one, not even the Republicans. Mr. Willkie is not experienced in politics at all, and although he is a very good businessman, I'm afraid he is not capable of running the Government at this time for the best interest of the people.

A change in Presidents now would mean a change in every public official affiliated with the Federal Government. J. H. B.

Nursery Rhyme

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Even if Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt is reminded of "Tom, Tom the Piper's Son" by the new adherents of Mr. W. L. Willkie, so some of us have been constantly reminded of "Little Jack Horner" by the New Deal during the past eight years.

I feel like repeating over them all the nursery rhyme:

Little Jack Horner sat in the corner
Eating his Christmas pie.
He put in his thumb and pulled out a plum
And said "What a great boy am I."

For Self-Government Now

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In an excellent editorial in The Post of July 24, you state, regarding local suffrage: "The city's most acute need is a more responsible and efficient local government. Fortunately, that can be provided without enactment of a constitutional amendment."

It is greatly to be hoped that the numerous members of Congress who have indicated a willingness to vote for "a satisfactory form of local suffrage" will take particular note of this phase of the question, keeping in mind that a simple act of Congress is all that is necessary to give the residents of the District of Columbia control of their purely local affairs, and that most of the existing executive set-up could function as readily under democratic control as under the present system.

It seems scarcely thinkable that any large number of American citizens anywhere, if acquainted with the facts, would desire the continuance of a system of government here under which more than 600,000 intelligent, patriotic Americans are not permitted to have a say as to what shall be their local taxes or how they shall be spent, and are denied control of their schools, their street traffic, police force and health regulation. Also, would the people of the United States, if acquainted with the facts, desire that 435 members of Congress, 96 Senators and the Chief Executive, shall longer be charged with the duty of passing finally upon such questions as the regulation of barbering and embalming in the District of Columbia, what local institutions shall be allowed water without cost, or the changing of the name of an avenue? It does not require much use of imagination to visualize Mr. and Mrs. Voter, after learning of the situation, exclaiming indignantly, "We didn't send Congressman Wiggins and Senator Blank to Washington for any such purpose, and we certainly think our President should be relieved of the task of approving or vetoing such legislation, leaving him free to devote his attention to national and international matters."

By all means let steps be taken to secure representation for the District in Congress and the electoral college by passing the Sumners resolution and submitting it to the States for ratification. It is right in principle, and some day may be adopted. It should be borne in mind, however, that in all previous proposed amendments to the Constitution that have been adopted the question submitted affected the citizenry of each community immediately and intimately—equal suffrage, prohibition, direct election of United States Senators, the Federal income tax, etc. In the case of granting representation in Congress and the electoral college to the residents of the District of Columbia, the question to be decided probably will seem to the average voter and legislator little more than an academic one and not of practical importance. Some will probably think of it as fraught with possible danger to complete Federal control.

Representation in Congress and the electoral college may be secured some time between now and kingdom come, and those then living will be amply justified in holding a grand celebration in honor of the event; but in the meantime let immediate steps be taken to secure the things much more needed and which happen to be readily attainable in short order if proper effort is put forth.

Harry Of Havana

SECRETARY HULL may have had his problems in Havana, but at least he didn't have to see Havana in three hours on a dollar bill.

We did. We were four students sailing steerage from San Diego to New York, and our short halt at Havana had been cut almost to nothingness by the ship's late arrival.

Instantly when we left the beautiful harbor and emerged from the customs house we were surrounded by a mob of Cuban drivers who screamed straight into our ears:

"Ladees! I have a Pack Card!"

"I have a Link Kon . . . I have a Booick."

Under this bombardment of lung power, Elaine, the soft-spoken, suddenly roared in a terrifying voice:

"Be still! All of you!"

The drivers stopped at once, their mouths wide open in astonishment.

And during this moment's lull, the four of us closed into a huddle to decide what to do. While around us crowded the drivers, their heads over our shoulders, trying desperately to hear what we were saying.

In a minute we whirled around, encircled one of the men who we thought looked like a "safe" chauffeur, and made him our offer of $1 apiece for a complete tour of Havana. Later we christened him "Hairbreadth Harry" from the quality of his driving.

After a bit of bargaining he accepted, and beamingly bore us off to his dowager automobile where we rested for some minutes while "Harry" worked frenziedly at the controls, and nothing happened.

Then a cataclysmic convulsion seized upon the engine, and we were off, lunging around the corner in a flash of speed.

All of one block we went, and stopped dead.

"No gas," said Harry, beaming engagingly, "Onlee $1 for some gas, Ladees, and all will then be O. K."

Grimly we handed over the dollar, and Harry departed for regions unknown.

"He'll never come back," groaned Martha.

But he did, still beaming, and lugging a can of gasoline.

Again we went lunging onward, through narrow streets bordered by houses of pastel colors, mellowed by sunlight.

Another halt. Harry turned round.

"I speak the English much bettair eef I have a drink," he said hopefully, his brown eyes appealingly focused on the bar across the street.

"Your English is just fine," said Louise firmly. "Drive on."

"O. K.," said Harry cheerfully, and on we flew.

We were scooting along the seabordered Malecon when Harry suddenly spied a high-hatted dignitary in the car next to ours. Leaning far out over the side, and waving his battered straw hat, Harry took both hands off the steering wheel and cried to the dignitary:

"Viva, viva, senor."

It seemed most unlikely that the senor would viva a moment longer with our wheels practically climbing his shirt front. But the senor was quite unperturbed and replied cordially in a flood of Spanish.

Harry told us the senor was an important political personage since the last election. "A quiet election," said Harry apologetically. "Onlee few killed."

Before we had time to digest this, Harry dashed off to another section of Havana and bounced up a driveway leading to a magnificent mansion.

"This is the house of my friend," said Harry. "He is away, but he will like to have you look through his windows for you to see his floors all mother-of-pearl."

Rather doubtful of his "friend's" absent welcome, we did, however, peek through the windows and saw floors inlaid with pearl, gorgeous to behold.

Feeling like trespassers, we were relieved to climb into the automobile once more. But hardly had we started when Harry called on another friend.

This time a lovely senorita appeared at a grated window and Harry dashed from the car and spoke to her in apparently melting Spanish accents, but ending almost every sentence with "O. K., Baby!"

"Now," he said, hurrying back to us, "we see the city." And we felt almost hopeful.

And then, the car broke down. Harry pleaded with it, caressingly addressed it with violent vocabulary, and still nothing happened.

"One moment," he said, and rushed away.

There we sat, miles from the dock, in an open car, in the broiling sun, in a strange country, alone.

But no! For in a few seconds appeared the bead sellers and flung their wares over our shoulders till we looked like Pocahontases. And the banana sellers came forth, and Martha bought two dozen bananas, simply because they were a bargain at 5 cents a dozen. Little urchins came climbing over and under the car, and begged for pennies. Even the dogs came out and howled at us.

Just as we were sure we could hear the ship whistling, Harry came back, beaming again, and driving a car of a different but honorable make, full of years.

He transferred all our beads, bananas and selves to the other vehicle, and then filled our arms with roses which he had bought for us as a peace offering.

We rode to the dock like a Paris taxi on wings. And as we rushed to catch the last tender we were laughing so hard that we could scarcely reassure the profusely apologizing Harry that we would never forget him, for, truly, as we told him, we had never been taken for such a ride in our lives. W. W.

Russia Indicts U. S.

Associated Press Staff Writer

Our Policy Called Imperialism

Moscow, Aug. 1.—"Imperialist designs" in the United States may turn the war into a "world imperialist struggle, Premier-Foreign Minister Vyacheslaff Molotoff told the Supreme Soviet today in predicting that England would be "assisted" by America in fighting Germany and Italy.

His speech was filled with antagonism toward England and the United States and at one point he said he hesitated to dwell on Russian relations with the United States because "there is nothing good that can be said about them."

"Imperialist appetites are growing," he told the Supreme Soviet (Parliament), "not only in distant Japan but also in the United States, where there are not a few people who like to conceal their imperialist designs behind well-advertised 'concern' for the interests of the entire 'Western Hemisphere' which these gentlemen are prepared to turn into their property with all its numerous republics and with the colonial possessions of other countries on islands in the neighborhood of the American continent.

"All this harbors dangers of further extension and fanning of the war and its being turned into a world imperialist war. Under these conditions the Soviet Union must enhance its vigilance in the matter of its external security and in the matter of strengthening all its positions, both at home and abroad."

Promises Nazis Amity

Germany, Molotoff said, will have the advantage of a "calm feeling of security in the East," thanks to the Russo-German nonaggression pact. Relations with Italy, Germany's ally, also "have lately improved."

But as for America: "There are certain people in the United States who are not pleased with successes of Soviet foreign policy in the Baltic countries," the premier-foreign commissar observed. "But we are not worried. We can get along without the help of these displeased gentlemen."

"However," Molotoff continued, "the fact that authorities in the United States unlawfully placed an embargo on gold which our state bank recently purchased from the banks of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia meets with a most energetic protest on our part.

"In this case we can only remind both the Government of the United States and the government of Great Britain, which adopted the same procedure, of their responsibility for these illegal acts."

Josef Stalin, secretary-general of the Communist Party and dictator of Russia, attended the session in a special booth.

Of the catastrophic defeat of France, Molotoff said it was due not only to military weakness but to the fact that "leading circles in France treated too lightly the role and weight of the Soviet Union in European affairs."

He ridiculed those who saw in Russia's recent expansion in the Baltic and Danubian regions the seeds of an early conflict between Russia and Germany, or attempted to "intimidate us with the prospect of Germany's growing might." He declared that Russo-German friendship was based "not on fortuitous considerations of a transient nature but on fundamental state interests of both the U. S. S. R. and Germany."

Molotoff conceded that Britain's recent appointment of one of her left-wing politicians, Sir Stafford Cripps, as ambassador in Moscow seems to "reflect a desire on the part of Britain to improve relations." But he said Britain's previous "hostile acts against the U. S. S. R." made it "difficult to expect that Soviet-British relations would develop favorably."

England, he said, rejected Adolf Hitler's peace appeal because she "does not wish to give up colonies" and prefers to "continue the war for world supremacy." Although her French ally is gone, she has "decided to continue the war relying on the assistance of the United States."

There are also indications of a desire by Japan to improve relations with the Soviet Union, Molotoff said, and in this case an improvement "is feasible."

"However," he added, "it must be admitted that there is still much that is unclear in the program of the new Japanese government regarding the establishment of a 'new political structure.'

"It is apparent that the southward expansion about which Japanese newspapers are shouting is attracting the attention of leading circles in Japan to an ever greater extent . . . but the real political aspirations of these circles are unclear."

Sees No Peace Near

While his references to Britain were far from cordial, Molotoff made no prediction of early German victory. He said the "end of the war is not yet in sight," and observed that while Germany has "achieved great successes, she has not yet achieved her principal objective—termination of the war on terms which she considers desirable."

Of Russo-Finnish relations, Molotoff said their improvement "depends mainly on Finland herself." He added a warning that these relations would become worse instead of better unless "Finnish ruling circles do not cease their persecution" of elements in Finland working for "good neighborly relations with the U. S. S. R."

About Norway he said "nothing definite" could be stated, and as for Sweden "the particularly important point to be noted is that both our countries are interested in a considerable development of trade and economic relations."

Referring to Rumania's surrender of Bessarabia and northern Bucovina to the Soviet Union, Molotoff expressed gratification that this problem had been peacefully settled and mentioned the "tremendous joy" with which inhabitants of the ceded areas welcomed Soviet rule.

He described as equally pleased the inhabitants of the Baltic states, whose formal acceptance into the Soviet Union is on the agenda of the present session.

As a result of territory acquired since the beginning of the war in Poland, in Finland, the Baltic states and Rumania, Russia's frontiers have reached the Danube, Molotoff proudly reminded his hearers, and her population has been increased in less than a year by more than 23,000,000.

"The fact that the Soviet frontier now will be shifted to the Baltic coast," he added, "is of first-rate importance for our country. We now shall have the ice-free ports in the Baltic which we so badly need."

Molotoff said Soviet Russia's relations with Turkey remained "essentially unchanged," but pointed out that recent German white book allegations of a plot to wreck the Batum oil fields "have shed an unpleasant light" on certain Turkish activities, especially certain unauthorized Turkish airplane flights over Batum last April.

"After publication of the mentioned documents in Germany," he added, "it is obvious what kind of airplane it was."

Molotoff mentioned a similar mysterious airplane flight over the Baku oil fields from the direction of Iran last March, and said:

"The Iran government deemed it necessary to deny this fact. But in this case, too, the mentioned documents published in the German 'white paper' provide sufficient explanation.

"It must be remarked that repetition of the dispatch of such foreign scouting planes could lead to nothing, but complication of our relations with our neighbors . . . we must intensify our vigilance on these southern Soviet frontiers."

Plans For Hemisphere

Problems Discussed At White House

By the Associated Press

Problems which would be posed for the United States if events forced the Pan American nations to establish a trusteeship over European possessions in this hemisphere were canvassed yesterday by President Roosevelt and Army and Navy heads.

Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, also attended the conference with Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, and Gen. George O. Marshall, Army chief of staff.

While they were meeting, another phase of the Administration's program for defense of the Western Hemisphere was advanced a step at the Capitol.

The Senate Banking Committee approved, 8 to 6, the President's proposal to increase the Export-Import Bank's capital by $500,000,000 so that it could make loans to assist Latin-American Nations in meeting wartime trade problems.

There was no word from the White House conference as to the details of the problems discussed.

Presumably, however, Mr. Roosevelt and his defense advisers were concerned chiefly with the military and naval problems which would be involved in the establishment of a trusteeship over any Western Hemisphere territory threatened with a change of sovereignty from one European nation to another.

The recent Havana conference provided for the American nations to assume such a trusteeship jointly. Any dispatch of armed forces, however, would have to be by the United States since no other American nation is in a position to take such a step.

The trusteeship proposal was advanced at the Havana meeting by Secretary Hull.

The close vote in the Senate Banking Committee was accepted as an indication that there would be a warm debate in the Senate.

CHAIRMAN WAGNER (Democrat), New York, said there had been "an unfortunate difference of opinion," and that Senator Taft (Republican), Ohio, would file a minority opinion in opposition.

Senator Adams (Democrat), Colorado, joined Taft and four other Republicans, Frazier, of North Dakota, Townsend of Delaware, Danaher of Connecticut, and Tobey, of New Hampshire, in opposing the bill.

In addition to Wagner, Senators supporting the measure, all Democrats, were Barkley of Kentucky, Bankhead of Alabama, Maloney of Connecticut, Radcliffe of Maryland, Smathers of New Jersey, Miller of Arkansas, and Clark of Idaho.

Before approving the legislation, the Banking Committee inserted a provision specifically prohibiting use of any of the $500,000,000 for loans in violation of the Johnson Act, prohibiting credits to nations that defaulted on war debts, or the Neutrality Act, prohibiting loans to belligerents.

THE FUND would be used, the legislation said, "to assist in the development of the resources, the stabilization of the economies, and the orderly marketing of products of the countries of the Western Hemisphere."

Both President Roosevelt and Jesse H. Jones, Federal Loan administrator, must approve any loans made by the Export-Import Bank "to any governments or their central banks or to other acceptable banking institutions."

Secretary Hull, back from Havana, said yesterday responsibilities facing Western Hemisphere governments were handled there adequately by high class statesmen.

THE WORK accomplished at Havana, he told a press conference, was on a parity with the seriousness of the problems studied. He added that the attending diplomats all exhibited a full sense of the responsibilities, emergencies and problems with which they were faced.

One of Hull's tasks now is to decide who will be the United States member of an emergency committee authorized to take a hand in the administration of any European possession in this hemisphere if a change in its sovereignty is threatened before ratification by the American nations of an agreement providing permanent machinery for the setting up of provisional administrations in such circumstances.

Disgrace To Labor

SHOULD SUCCESS attend the efforts of the Federal Government in its various proceedings against Mike Carrozzo, the gunman and racketeer who operates under the charter of the American Federation of Labor in Chicago, it will then be in order—in fact, mandatory—to inquire into the legitimacy of his citizenship. Citizen Carrozzo was naturalized on July 6, 1937, after two previous applications had been withdrawn on the strength of warnings that if he pursued them he would be blackballed.

He came to the United States from Italy in 1906, and did not apply for citizenship until November 17, 1926. In July, 1927, he withdrew this application—in which, incidentally, he gave his address as the Drake Hotel, Chicago, an expensive house which would have been beyond the means of a legitimate leader of a union of day laborers.

Carrozzo next applied in August, 1927, barely a month after the withdrawal of his first attempt, and withdrew this petition on September 27, 1928. His third and successful petition was filed on January 29, 1937, and granted on July 6 of that year.

THE CURRENT Sherman Act indictment against him and the pending income tax case, in which the old habitue of the Chicago vice district has posted securities of $277,251 to lift a lien of $241,088 from his country estate, concern a period which antedates the granting of his citizenship. If it should be shown that Mike was engaged in illegal activities within five years before his petition finally was granted, his naturalization will be seriously impugned. Proceedings to nullify it will then become the obvious duty of the Department of Justice, which now has jurisdiction over such matters.

That Mike, in his capacity of labor leader, could have acquired by means consistent with the professed ideals of the American Federation of Labor a sufficient income to deserve a deficit and penalty of $241,088 in two years, to say nothing of the large income which he did report for those years, is not to be considered. If he acquired the money or a portion of it by corrupt dealings with the paving ring in Chicago, or by extortion from laborers, any portion of it which was obtained before July 6, 1937, when he was granted citizenship, will provide a basis of inquiry into his naturalization.

OF COURSE, there is a difference between the tight, legal proof of the exact dates on which Mike received his various items of income and the nature of the services involved and his notorious character as a gunman and racketeer. He has always been an associate of criminals of the Capone and labor rackets in Chicago, and the fact that the court permitted him to become naturalized at all, after the withdrawal of two previous applications, adds no dignity to American citizenship.

For almost 20 years he has been a notorious character in Chicago, where he took up residence in the brothel district within a year after his arrival, and humble, honest immigrants, aspiring to citizenship as a great honor and privilege, are likely to be disillusioned on hearing that a Mike Carrozzo could obtain the same certificate.

Nevertheless, Mike got it on his third attempt, and a citizen he may remain unless the evidence in the racketeering or shakedown case, better known as the Sherman act case, and the income tax proceedings show positively that he was racketeering before the final papers were issued.

THE RETURN for 1937 was not made until March, 1938, so the filing of a fraudulent return, if fraud be shown for 1937, occurred after he had become Citizen Carrozzo. But any fraudulent or otherwise illegal activities which can be shown to have antedated July 6, 1937, could be cited in revocation proceedings.

In a moment of anger recently, when his activities were being questioned, Mike, speaking, it is hoped, only for himself and not as an official for many unions of the American Federation of Labor, exclaimed, "What this country needs is a Mussolini!" There are those who dissent from that view, but more would agree that what this country doesn't need is Mike Carrozzo, gunman, racketeer, a disgrace to the American Federation of Labor and a reproach to American citizenship.

The Selective Draft

By Ernest K. Lindley

Fairest Method In Emergency

OPPOSITION to conscription is becoming vocal. Senators and Representatives accordingly are becoming faint-hearted about it, even though the polls indicate it is favored by a substantial majority of the electorate. Except to reiterate his belief in compulsory military training in principle, the President is exerting no positive leadership in the matter. Some of his aides are urging him to hold back because of the political dangers involved.

Opposition is reported to be especially strong on the Pacific Coast and in the Northwestern States, chiefly among liberal voters of the type who run with Senators Wheeler, La Follette and Norris. New Deal Representatives from those areas are warning the White House that conscription is an issue on which many of their constituents feel strongly enough to vote against any man who advocates it.

The merits of conscription, as compared with voluntary recruitment, are therefore being lost to view in Congress behind a fog of shifting political opportunism and clumsy evasion.

REPRESENTATIVES who voted promptly—and presumably with cheerful patriotism—the billions of dollars needed to build up our forces are now expressing doubt that we need a larger Army. If we need the ships, the guns and the planes, we also need the men trained to operate them. It seems inconceivable that even the most skillful fence-walker could justify the need for one and not for the other. But some of them are trying to do it.

Other Senators and Representatives insist that the need for men can be satisfied by voluntary enlistment—or at least that conscription should not be voted until it has been established that voluntary enlistment will not provide men in sufficient numbers. To encourage enlistment they would shorten the period to one year—which the Army is already doing under the National Defense Act—and increase the pay. The Army pay, especially for enlisted men, has been too low. Partly for this reason the Army has had trouble in getting recruits, and the quality of the applicants has averaged lower than for the Navy.

PERHAPS ENOUGH voluntary recruits could be brought out by higher pay and a one-year enlistment, plus Nation-wide ballyhoo, using the radio, movies, posters, newspapers and magazines on a large scale, supplemented by "minute men" speakers and local committees. But this sort of campaign would mean that the burden will be borne by those who are the most patriotic or the most sensitive. It could hardly help leaving its scars in every community.

The obligation to fight in defense of the Nation rests, in the last analysis, on every citizen. Since all able-bodied men cannot be assigned to combat duty, there must be an equitable method of selection among those who are best fitted for military service on the one hand, and less important, on the other hand, for other essential duties. Over the long run, compulsory military training for every male would be the most equitable and democratic system. Precautions must now be taken promptly for the short run. For that, nobody thought of any means fairer than the selective draft.

The counterargument is that only willing volunteers make good soldiers. This has been disproven time and time again, beginning with the first drafted citizen armies of relatively modern times: those of the Revolutionary French Republic. In 1793 the French levy had to be imposed at the sword's point. Yet as one French historian has written: "These youths, driven in their thousands toward the frontiers, trembled as they reached them, and then made all Europe tremble."

INCIDENTALLY, the formula for universal service in the national defense was set forth by Barere, of the French committee of public safety, in 1793. He declared:

"From this moment until that in which every enemy shall have been driven out of the territories of the republic, every Frenchman is permanently under requisition for service with the armies. The young men will go out and fight; the married men will manufacture weapons and transport stores; the women will make tents and clothing and nurse in the hospitals; the children will scrape lint from old linen; the aged will betake themselves to the public squares, there to raise the courage of the warriors, and preach hatred against kings and the unity of the republic. The levy will be a general levy: unmarried citizens and childless widowers between the ages of 18 and 25 will be the first to march. . . . The battalion to be raised in each district will be gathered around a banner bearing this inscription: 'The French nation risen against tyrants.'"

Some of the opponents of conscription say they would be for it if there were a war. The quickest answer to that is the phrase which is now a headstone for several once-proud nations: "Too late."

If there is enough of an emergency to justify spending billions of dollars for armaments, there is enough of one to train the men to use them. In the North during the War Between the States men were permitted to avoid the obligation to bear arms by hiring substitutes, and States resorted to bounties to stimulate enlistments in the hope that they could avoid imposing the draft. What the advocates of the voluntary system in a time of crisis are really advocating is a collective evasion of a common obligation through the hiring of substitutes.

Economic Inter-Americanism

AT THE RECENTLY concluded Havana conference the 21 republics of this hemisphere took a long and extremely important step in the direction of effective Pan-Americanism, notably in the political sphere. But it also laid the foundations for what may prove to be no less significant action in the realm of economic affairs.

There was, to be sure, no economic counterpart at Havana to the agreement for the establishment of a system of collective administration of the European colonies and possessions in the event the sovereignty of their present owners is impaired or destroyed. In contrast to the Act of Havana there was only a resolution on "economic and financial cooperation."

That resolution has no present force. It may prove to be only wishful thinking. It may, on the other hand, be the foundation stone of a new economic order in the Americas. Everything depends on what is done to carry out the aims embodied in that resolution. If these aims are carried out with the vigor and boldness which characterized the action taken on the colonial issue this hemisphere will be to a very real degree protected against the kind of economic pressures which, in other parts of the world, have led to the destruction of political sovereignty. If they are not the New World will, to a greater or lesser degree, be at the mercy of dangerously disruptive forces.

WITH REGARD to economic affairs the Havana conference had to deal with two related sets of circumstances. In the first place, it was faced by the fact that the war has had a seriously dislocating effect on the trade and commerce of the American republics and that the attendant evils of this situation might continue long after the end of the war and regardless of the kind of peace that might follow the war. In the second place, the conference had to consider what ought to be done now to guard against the possibility that Europe will be under the domination of the totalitarian powers.

The economic problems with which American statesmanship is faced today are both enormously complicated and fraught with grave difficulties. But it is encouraging to note that the Havana meeting dealt with these problems in a realistic spirit. Some of the best work done at the conference was in the economic sphere. Despite a great initial confusion a real meeting of minds finally took place. But the conference could not take final action on economic matters. The most it had power to do was to reach an agreement on principles and methods. This it did.

THE RESOLUTION on "economic and financial cooperation" begins by declaring that the American nations "continue to adhere to the liberal principles of international trade," that it is their purpose to "apply these principles in their relations with each other as fully as present circumstances permit," and to resume them with the entire world as "soon as the non-American nations are prepared to do likewise." This is the Havana Conference's answer to Dr. Funk, whose statement on Germany's economic plans for Europe and the world appeared while the Havana Conference was in session.

The resolution goes on to recommend the strengthening and the expansion of the Inter-American Financial and Economic Advisory Committee, which came into being as a result of the Panama Conference, and which now bids fair to be a permanent consultative body on trade and economic matters.

By recommendations of the Havana meeting, the committee's functions are to be broadened to include, among other things, the study of possible measures for the increase of trade within the Americas, the creation of instruments of inter-American cooperation for the temporary storing, financing and handling of any such commodities, and for their orderly and systematic marketing," the promotion of credit measures and other "measures of assistance which may be immediately necessary in the fields of economics, finance, money and foreign exchange."

The resolution also urges the financing by the Inter-American Bank of companies with government or private capital established by two or more American republics for the economic development of the American nations.

Behind the frequently vague wording of this resolution, it is posssible to discern a far-reaching scheme of inter-American economic cooperation which, if carried out, might have a highly constructive political as well as economic result. The discussions now about to be begun as the sequel to the Havana Conference can thus have an importance no less great than the meeting in the Cuban capital, which has been hailed, and with reason, as the most constructive meeting in the history of inter-American relations.

Books And Things

By Lewis Gannett

WHEN TWO OLD sea captains start to tell the same story the air is blue with curses and contradictions. And when two old ship-news reporters spin their yarns, apparently the air is about as indigo.

This column has reported on Jack Lawrence's "When the Ships Came In," and in so doing, cited some of Mr. Lawrence's comment on the work of Roslyn D. Whytock, "despair of the Evening World's Bureau of Accuracy and Fair Play and one of the best reporters of his time." But it seems that Mr. Whytock is also writing a book. (It will be called "It Must Be So," and Prentice Hall will publish it.)

As to Jack Lawrence's yarn about the old New York Herald chartering a tug at $100 an hour in 1912 and sending its star reporters out to board the Carpathia and get an advance story from the Titanic survivors aboard that ship—the yarn ending with the tugboat's engines failing and the Herald staff left to drift storyless all night—Mr. Whytock says "Let's have the facts" and get down to business.

"When word came ashore that the Carpathia had gone to the rescue of the Titanic," he writes, "I saw possibilities of getting a beat. All we knew was that the Titanic had sent out the CQD distress call, followed by silence. Now, I knew that Charles F. Hurd, a reporter on the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, which like the Evening World, was a Pulitzer paper, was aboard the Carpathia. I headed from the ship-news barracks to the city room and told Charles E. Chapin, the Evening World's city editor, that Hurd was aboard the Carpathia, that, being a good reporter, he would undoubtedly write the story, and that if we chartered a seagoing tug and met the Carpathia we would have a beat on the story of the Titanic.

"Chapin assigned me to charter a tug, and I secured the Daizeline, to be boarded at the Battery the following morning at daylight. Assigned to the story were Lindsay Denison, Harry Stowe and myself. But at daylight Charles E Chapin appeared also, accompanied by Herman Robbins, chief office boy of the Evening World.

"We met the Carpathia outside Sandy Hook, I megaphoned to Hurd, and he came to the rail with a package wrapped in oilskin and tied with a rope to a block of wood. But as a heavy sea was running, and we feared losing the precious manuscript, we followed the Carpathia in to Quarantine, where Hurd threw the manuscript and I caught it. Then we steamed for the Battery; I ran thence to the Pulitzer Building, on Park Row. Martin Green was the rewrite man in charge, and that story of Hurd's was set in 'stud-horse' type and rushed to the streets. It was on sale before the Carpathia warped into her pier in the North River."

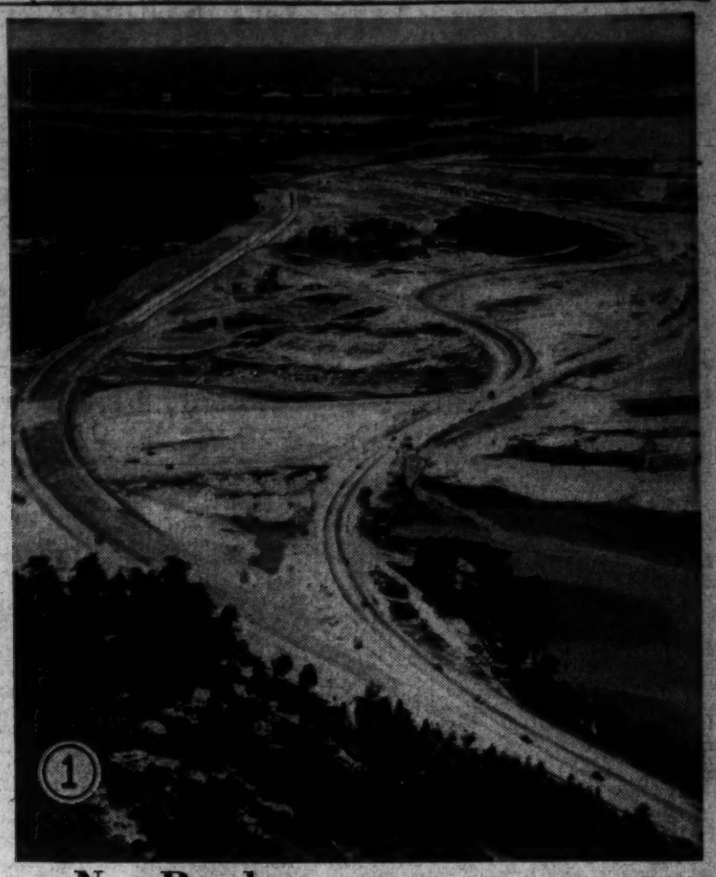
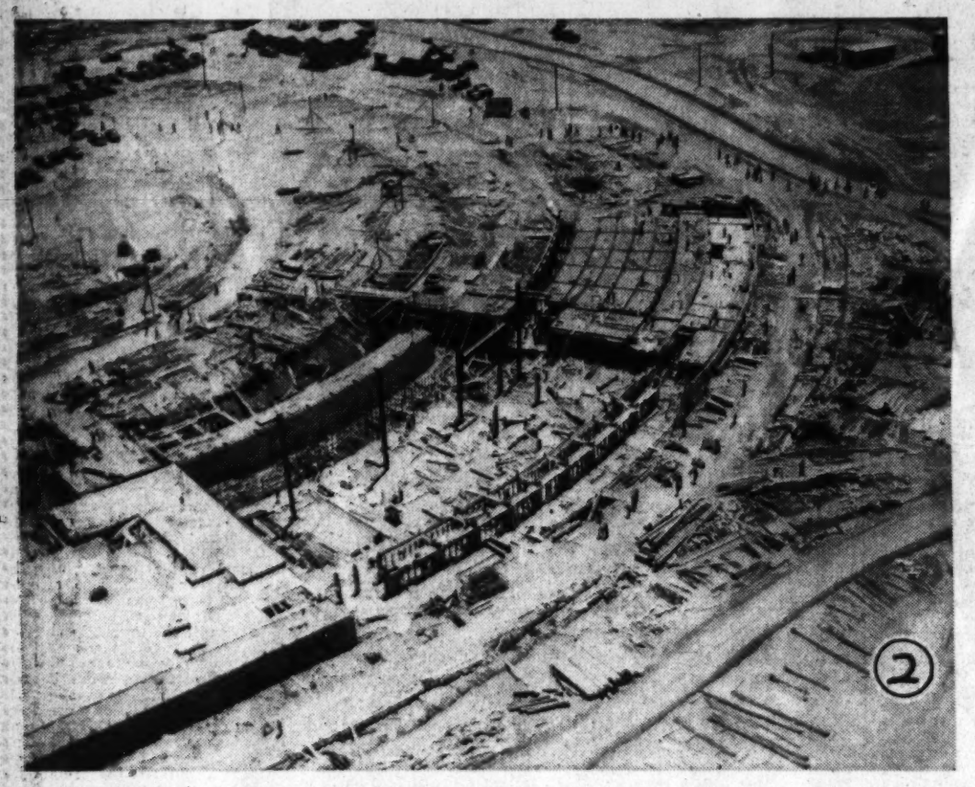
4,000 Workmen Rush Airport Construction

Gravelly Point— It really is no longer a gravelly point. The Washington National Airport has definitely taken shape there. See accompanying pictures in this series for key to figures above



New Roadway— The Mount Vernon Memorial highway has been rerouted (roadway at left) around the super airport and will be open to traffic in two weeks. Old highway is at right



Administration Building— Steel superstructure for the administration building is up and concrete is being poured for the second floor. The structure is scheduled for completion in November.

Field Opens Next Month For Emergency Landings

Construction operations on the Washington National Airport at Gravelly Point are making good progress, with more than 4,000 workmen on the job, Col. Sumpter Smith reported yesterday.

As engineer in charge of the $12,000,000 project, he singled out the following developments:

Of a total of 400,000 square yards of runways, 150,000 have had their first paving layer completed, of which 50,000 square yards have received the top course.

Rerouting of the Mount Vernon highway around the airport is 50 per cent completed and traffic is scheduled to start using the new roadway link in two weeks.

At the present rate of operations, the airport will be suitable for emergency landings in September and is expected to be placed in regular use in November, when the administration building is finished.

Foundations are being poured for Hangar No. 1, which is due to be ready for use in mid-December. Congress is now considering appropriations for five additional hangars which would be amortized through rental to the air lines.

Eighty-five per cent, or about 2,000,000 cubic yards, of the dry fill required for the landing fields has been completed. The last of nearly 19,000,000 yards of hydraulic fill was finished last December.

The new bridge over Four Mile Run is ready for use and installation of field illumination is well under way.

On certain operations work is proceeding on a 24-hour basis. Two shifts are being employed on other jobs and single shifts on the remainder.

MAKING A CHANGE—Virginia Brooks and Marie Scanlor, of the Office of the General Counsel of the Federal Security Agency, shown yesterday as they prepared their desk for moving from Social Security headquarters, Twenty-first and C street northwest, to the old Commerce Building, 1825 H street northwest. Secretary of War Stimson and other ranking Army officials probably will occupy new offices about September 15 in the Social Security Building now nearing completion at Third and Independence avenue southwest, War Department officials said yesterday.

Although emphasizing future developments may force modification of plans, officers stated Assistant War Secretary Patterson and Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, also would move to the new structure from the Munitions Building, Nineteenth street and Constitution avenue northwest.

Three wings of the Munitions Building will be occupied by Navy Department workers and Army and National Defense Council employes will continue to fill the other five wings, M. C. Russell, chief of the District Space Control Unit, explained.

House Passes Bill For Regulating Investment Trusts

By Nicholas P. Gregory.

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Legislation, approved by the Securities and Exchange Commission and the investment banking industry, designed to amend the Securities Act of 1933 with regard to the 20-day waiting period for new securities issues, was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Clarence F. Lea, California Democrat and chairman of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee.

At the same time, the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill providing for regulation of investment trusts. The bill, introduced last March by Mr. Lea, was passed by a unanimous voice vote, after Representative William P. Cole, jr., Maryland Democrat, opened debate on the measure.

The Senate is expected to take up the companion bill early next week. Observers here believed that the ease with which the House trust measure was passed, assures quick, favorable action in the Senate. When President Roosevelt signs the measure, the investment trust industry, investment counsellors and certificate companies will come in for Federal regulation by the SEC next November 1.

The text of Mr. Lea's proposed amendment to the Securities Act of 1933 follows:

"Section 8 (A) Except as hereinafter provided, the effective date of a registration statement shall be the twentieth day after the filing thereof or such earlier date as the commission may determine, having due regard to the adequacy of the information respecting the issuer theretofore available to the public, to the facility with which the nature of the securities to be registered, their relationship to the capital structure of the issuer and the rights of holders thereof can be understood, and to the public interest and the protection of investors. If any amendment to any such statement is filed prior to the effective date of such statement, the registration statement shall be deemed to have been filed when such amendment was filed; except that an amendment filed with the consent of the commission, prior to the effective date of the registration statement, or filed pursuant to an order of the commission, shall be treated as a part of the registration statement."

A companion measure to the Lea bill will likely be introduced in the Senate very soon, and action may be obtained on the House and Senate bills before adjournment of this session of Congress. The Lea bill was agreed upon between the SEC, the National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc., and the Investment Bankers Association.

The I. B. A., however, has served notice that its decision to go along at this time on the Lea bill, does not bind itself to any efforts it may make in the future to obtain additional changes not only to the Securities Act of 1933, but the Securities Exchange Act of 1934.

At the time that Mr. Lea announced that hearings on the proposed changes to the two acts, as favored by the I. B. A. had been abandoned, it was disclosed that the I. B. A. and the SEC had agreed to postpone at this time deliberation on changes in the acts, until next January 1, when the commission in conferences with the industry would work out various changes.

The proposed change in the Securities Act of 1933 is a signal victory for the investment banking fraternity, which has repeatedly claimed that the 20-day waiting period, sometimes referred to as "incubation" and "secubation" has hindered the capital market. It is also the first important change to be undertaken since the act became law.

King's Plan Gives D. C. Seat in Senate

Capitalites Have No Complaint

Hobbs added that persons who came to Washington to live, knowingly sacrificed their voting rights and consequently have no legitimate complaint.

Gwynne said he has no objection to Washington's voting for Presidential electors and having some measure of self-government, but he explained that he voted against the Sumners resolution because he did not believe that the powers of Congress to extend the franchise to the District were definitely enough defined.

Monkiewicz could not be reached for comment.

Text of Sumners' Resolution

The text of the Sumners' resolution as amended reads:

"Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled (two-thirds of each house concurring therein) that the following amendment to the Constitution of the United States be proposed for ratification by the Legislatures of the several States which, when ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the States, shall be valid as a part of said Constitution.

"Section 1. The Congress shall have the power to provide for the people of the District constituting the seat of Government of the United States representation in the House of Representatives and among the electors of President and Vice President no greater than that of the people of the States and to delegate to such government as Congress may establish therein all or any of its power over said District; and the judicial power of the United States shall extend to controversies to which citizens of said District shall be parties the same as to controversies to which citizens of a State shall be parties.

"Section 2. All legislation hereunder shall be subject to amendment and repeal; provided, that no amendment or repeal shall affect the office of Representative during the time for which he was elected.

"Section 3. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the legislatures of the several States, as provided in the Constitution, within seven years from the date of the submission hereto to the States by the Congress."

Held Entitled to House Seat Only

Representative Reed explained that he considered Senators to be representative of the States and members of the House representative of the people. Washington is a Federal city and its government is the Federal Government, he argued, and consequently it is entitled to representation only in the House.

He expressed the opinion that, from a practical point of view, the proposed amendment would have a better chance of adoption by the States if the District is not to have representation in the Senate.

"The District is not a sovereign State," he said, "and is not, therefore, in the status of a sovereign State."

Chairman Sumners, who did not vote on his resolution or the amendment in committee, expressed the hope after the meeting that his original language will be restored either in the House or in the Senate.

There is as much reason for District representation in the Senate as in the House, he said.

Reed suggested after the meeting that if the District were to get two Senators they might be used for political advantage by the party in power whenever the party division in the Senate is close. The succeeding Administration, he said, could abolish their offices if it wished.

Conductor's Wife Plans Meals for Odd Hours

Peggy McArthur Masters Art Of 'Short-Notice' Dinners With Guests, Offers Recipe for Cape Cod Hash

By Martha Ellyn.
The Post Food Editor

WHEN you are the wife of a famous symphonic and operatic conductor you find there are irregularities in the schedule of the household. A dinner planned for 6:30 may have to be served at 8 o'clock instead. Peggy McArthur, wife of Edwin McArthur, guest conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra at the Watergate, Wednesday night, told me when I talked to her at the Raleigh Hotel that her husband returns home at unusual hours for meals and often brings guests with him.

Martha Ellyn

But Mrs. McArthur has mastered the art of "short-notice" serving of meals, and no matter what the dinner hour may be or how many unexpected guests arrive, she says it does not disturb her. Her answer to irregular meals is one that any housewife can put into operation —"make them substantial as well as appealing." Since overcooking of roasts does not increase their palatability, Mrs. McArthur leaves them out of general consideration. Salads, too, while they have the advantage of being quickly prepared, do not satisfy the man-sized appetite of her maestro husband, therefore they do not have first place in her cookery design.

Mrs. McArthur gave me several suggestions for hot weather dishes that any housewife can use to advantage. Hash is a dish that Mrs. McArthur emphasizes as a food that is both savory and filling. And by hash she does not mean the plain, flat variety, but an unusual and intriguing kind she calls Cape Cod Hash. The recipe she gave me is one given her by an aunt who lives in New England. It is as follows:

Cape Cod Hash

Chop up 2 cups cold boiled potatoes, 2 cups cooked codfish and 6 small boiled beets; mix in ½ cup milk and add salt and pepper to taste. Keep in refrigerator until needed. This mixture may be browned lightly in well-buttered skillet at serving time.

Mrs. McArthur also finds a meat loaf a very flexible dish. It may be served either hot or cold. She suggests making the loaf in a large pie pan instead of the customary rectangular pan, as she feels that the circular shape looks better and gives more scope for effective garnish, such as placing parsley and sliced tomatoes about it.

Another speciality of the McArthur kitchen that is very versatile is a molded beef stew that can be kept in the refrigerator and served cold, with its gravy delightfully jelled, or warmed before served. Following is the recipe Mrs. McArthur uses for making the stew.

Beef Stew McArthur

Dice 2 pounds lean beef into small pieces, put into saucepan in which is placed 2 tablespoons salad oil, ½ cup fat diced bacon, and 1 boned calf's foot, split in half, 4 diced onions, 3 diced carrots and 3 diced tomatoes. Brown slightly over low heat, then add 1 cup beef stock, 1 bay leaf, a few cloves, a dash of salt and pepper, 1 garlic bud, and a few pieces of minced parsley. Cover pan and simmer.

A variety of cheese is also kept in the McArthur refrigerator. This, Mrs. McArthur thinks, is a good food to have available to fill in the gaps in short order meals. Another successful concoction in the hot weather line-up is a jellied tongue mold. It can not only be kept indefinitely, but can be assembled from left-overs. This like the other foods she mentioned, is also appealing to any husband who happens to come in to dinner late from business, golf and the like. Mrs. McArthur's recipe for tongue mold follows:

Tongue Mold

Soak 2 tablespoons gelatin in 2 tablespoons cold water, then dissolve in 2 cups boiling water. Add 1 teaspoon salt, ¾ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon mustard and 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Chill. Before the gelatine stiffens, add ¼ cup mayonnaise in which 2 cups cooked chopped tongue, 2 sliced hard-cooked eggs and 2 tablespoons chopped mixed pickles have been mixed. Chill until firm. Serve on lettuce with salad dressing if desired.

For Her Maestro Husband

Mrs. Edwin McArthur, wife of the symphonic and operatic conductor, who was the guest conductor at the Water Gate concert Wednesday night, is arranging a tongue mold in the picture above. This is a dish Mrs. McArthur finds especially convenient to serve in hot weather because it is substantial, yet cool and easy to prepare. Since rehearsals often prevent her husband from arrivng home for dinenr at the conventional hour, she plans dishes that can be kept in the refrigerator, such as this mold

Luscious Fruit Ideal in Cobblers, Crunchy Puddings

By The Post Food Editor

PEACHES, in the guise of cool concoctions and peaches in masquerade as crunchy puddings and cobblers were all in the great stack of recipes submitted in this week's Post recipe contest. And there is dietetic justification, too, for eating this melt-in-the mouth fruit, for it is a good source of vitamin C and fair in B and G. The winning recipes follow:

Stuffed Peaches With Meringue

Miss Dorothy Thomas, 1644 Connecticut avenue northwest

Recipe: Pare 4 large freestone peaches, then cut in halves. Crack 1 peach stone. Pound the kernel to a pulp. Crush or roll, 6 macaroons. Hollow the peach halves slightly. Combine the crushed kernel, the macaroons and the peach pulp and 2 beaten egg yolks. Fill the peach halves with this mixture. Bake them in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, until they are done. Make a meringue of 2 egg whites, 3 tablespoons sugar and ½ teaspoon vanilla. Heap it on the peaches. Brown the meringue in an oven of 325 degrees.

Peach Surprise Sherbet

Mrs. J. W. Nesbitt, 3707 Woodley road northwest

Recipe: Boil 2 cups sugar and 1 quart water together for 5 minutes. Add 1 teaspoon gelatin that has been softened in cold water. Cook mixture until thick, then add 1 teaspoon vanilla. Set aside to get cold and firm. Put 3 cups finely chopped peaches in bottom of glass baking dish. Beat the thickened cold custard with an egg-beater until very smooth. Fold in ½ cup whipped cream, then pour on top enough chopped peaches to cover generously. Cover with a meringue made of 3 egg whites, 6 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla and ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar. Sprinkle the meringue with ½ cup graham cracker crumbs mixed with 1 teaspoon sugar, a pinch of cinnamon and 3 tablespoons melted butter. Bake in a 325-dgree oven for 10 minutes until the meringue is brown.

Madame Chairman

by Suzanne

ONE DAY last spring, I heard about a woman who lives in Georgetown, in one of the restored houses—a handsome place with a beautiful garden. Back of her home is one of the unrestored row houses, where there are many little children—hungry mouths to feed.

The woman with the beautiful garden loves children and is active in the Girl Scout organization. She had observed the youngsters living near her and, when Girl Scout cookies were in season, went through her back gate with a box under her arm. The mother of the family next door was immediately on the defensive, thinking her neighbor had come to complain that the children had trespassed on her premises. Instead, the mother found the neighbor was on a friendly mission—that of offering cookies for the children.

From that time on, the neighborliness has continued. When there has been especial need in the poorer family, the good neighbor has found a way to help. Other youngsters, friends of the neighbor children, have learned to know her, too, and the boys confided in her recently that there wasn't a child in the neighborhood that would let a single flower in her garden be harmed.

There are many other sections of Washington that offer similar opportunity for day by day neighborliness which might eliminate the necessity for much of the public philanthropy that is carried on at special seasons like Christmas and Thanksgiving.

The other day, when a tragedy occurred, also in Georgetown—a little girl fatally injured by a motor car and her parents without funds to bury her—I wondered how many of the near neighbors in restored Georgetown houses, knew of the plight of those living within their own block in the houses which had not been restored.

But here is a story of another good neighbor who lives in a restored house in another part of the city with poverty just next door. She made friends with all the families nearby soon after she moved in three years ago.

On one of the hottest days last week she invited a mother and three children to go to a movie where they could avoid the heat for a while. The mother had lived here for 15 years and neither she nor any of the children had ever been to a movie before.

All of their nickels and dimes have to go for such necessities as food and clothing and sometimes there had not been enough to buy that. Needless to say, the trip to the movie with refreshments in an air-conditioned restaurant afterward, was as much of a pleasure to the good neighbor as it was a glimpse into a new world for her guests.

CLUB DINNER—The Women's City Club last night had its regular get-together at the clubhouse, with Elsa Needham and Bertha Butts as hostesses. Ruth Tapke, concert pianist, and Mary Ellen Dashiell, past president of the Story League, will present the program.

Saturday, August 10, a watermelon party will be held at the home of the second vice president, Mrs. Agnes Giles Newman, at Wellington Villa, Alexandria, Va. The afternoon will be devoted to games.

D. A. R. HEAD RETURNS—Mrs. Henry M. Robert, jr., president-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, has returned to national headquarters here after a tour of various chapters of the organization. Last week, in Smith's Mills, N. Y., she attended the dedication of a marker designating the birthplace of Mrs. Mary Smith Lockwood, one of the four founders of the D. A. R. The marker was erected by the five chapters of the D. A. R. in Chautauqua, N. Y.

D. C. to Bask in Reflected Glory of Havana Parley

Delegates Streaming in From Conference To Be Wined and Dined; Dr. Melo, Of Argentina, Will Arrive Next Week

By Carolyn Bell

The "question mark" of the Havana conference, Dr. Leopoldo Melo, will be in Washington next week on a brief but furious official tour.

And once again Washington will bask in reflected glory. Delegates who attended the Havana conference, completed this week, will come streaming into the city to be dined and wined—some officially and others not.

The dashing Dr. Melo, who, as head of the Argentine delegation, caused the conference some uneasy moments, is on the high seas now and is expected to land in New York early next week. A dynamic personality, Dr. Melo has had a varied public career. He ran for President of the Argentine in 1928. He was formerly minister of the interior and served several terms as senator in the legislature. At present he is an appointee to the International Court at The Hague.

Argentine Envoy Due Back Today

Although his stay will be brief, it is expected that Dr. Melo will be tendered several parties. The Argentine Ambassador, Don Felipe Espil, who attended the conference is expected to return to Washington at 11 o'clock this morning. He will be accompanied by Senora de Espil. They went from Havana to Miami and entrained there for the Capital. Several Brazilian delegates are expected to arrive on the same train.

The Ambassador and Senora de Espil had planned to go almost directly from Havana to Hot Springs, where they have leased a cottage for the remainder of the season. However, at that time Dr. Melo's trip had not been anticipated. After his departure the Espils will, no doubt, get off for some relaxation.

In Dr. Melo's entourage are his son and son-in-law, both of whom act as his secretaries. The Peruvian Ambassador, Don Manuel y Freyre y Santander is expected back from Havana tomorrow with members of the Peruvian delegation who are of the embassy staff.

Again to Visit Here, Scene of Childhood

After (or possibly before) Dr. Melo's tour the spotlight here will be trained on Brazil. Several of the Brazilian delegates who attended the conference will stop in Washington—but for just a day. Senor Mauricio Nabuco, secretary-general of the ministry of foreign relations of that country, heads the delegation.

Senor Nabuco should be interested in returning to the scene of his childhood once again. As the son of the first Brazilian Ambassador to the United States, he lived here for a number of years. The elder Dr. Nabuco, one of Brazil's best-known statesmen, was largely responsible for happy relations between this country and Brazil.

Although his visit will be extremely brief, he, too, will be honored while in the Capital. Senor Nabuco, whose post as secretary-general corresponds to that of Undersecretary of State, will fly up from Miami, where he went after leaving Cuba. He will be met at the airport by the Ambassador and Senhora Martins, who have a full schedule mapped out for him. After a day here Senor Nabuco will fly to new York, where he will board a boat for his homeland.

E. W. Warner, Jr. And Bride on Tour of West

Couple, Married Here Tuesday, to Make Home in Erie, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Wall Warner, jr., who were married on Tuesday evening in the Chinese room of the Mayflower, will make their home in Erie, Pa., after a month's visit to California and the Canadian Rockies.

The bride is the former Miss Betty Strasburger, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Milton Strasburger, and Mr. Warner is the son of Edgar W. Warner. The Rev. Max Currick, of Erie, performed the wedding ceremony, which was followed by a dinner. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white faille with a basque waist, long sleeves, and a full skirt terminating in a long circular train. Her tulle veil fell from a coronet of rose point lace held with clusters of orange blossoms, and she carried an arm bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Her only attendant was her sister, Mrs. Ferdinand Nauheim, who wore cyclamen faille and carried Johanna Hill roses. Richard Meyer was best man for his brother.

The bride was graduated from Antioch College and Mr. Warner is an alumnus of Buffalo University. Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Edgar W. Warner, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Loeb, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Wallerstein and Mrs. Alma Dannerman, of Erie, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Strasburger, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Ullman, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Mayers and Mrs. Sidney Scheuer, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Mulford Fischer, of Buffalo, and Mrs. Paul Coblenzer, of Boston.

Charles Whites Return to Home Near Leesburg

After a sojourn at Hot Springs, Va., Dr. and Mrs. Charles Stanley White have returned to their summer home near Leesburg. They will entertain informally for a few Washington friends on Saturday evening.

Among the younger set, picnics continue to be the thing. One of the largest this summer was held earlier in the week at Great Falls by the Misses Bambie and Joan McKenna.

Miss Erwin Gives House Party

Miss Eileen Erwin, who with her mother, Mrs. Henry Parsons Erwin, is summering on Mackinac Island, Mich., is entertaining a house party. She has as her guests Miss Mary Gilman Curtis and Frank J. Webster, of Bronxville, N. Y., and Miss Barbara Alig as well as Frank Alig, of Indianapolis.

Mrs. Delos A. Blodgett, mother of Mrs. Erwin, is planning a trip to the island shortly. Charles Mason Remey, of this city, and Keith Schwinley, of Chicago, are also visiting the Erwins.

CAPITAL WHIRL

By SALLY SWIFT

DID YOU KNOW that the retiring French Ambassador to the United States, Count de Saint-Quentin, who is noted for his kindly and gentle manner is in reality a very dashing person who has had his share of story-book adventures?

He is considered the French counterpart of the famous Lawrence of Arabia and was a great personal friend of the mysterious and fascinating Englishman when the two were working to bring about understanding between their governments and the peoples of the Near East.

It was the Count de Saint-Quentin himself who pinned the Legion of Honor on the great Lawrence when that decoration was awarded him by the French government. The retiring French Ambassador, during that epoch of his life, did noteworthy work as liaison officer between the French and British in Egypt.

I HEAR THAT Claude de Boisanger, for several years attached to the French Embassy in Washington, is one of the few members of the French Foreign Office who is being kept on by the Vichy government and that he is assistant to M. Baudon, one of the ministers in the new cabinet.

Sir Owen Chalkley, Commercial Counselor of the British Embassy, and Lady Chalkley have taken a cottage on Oak avenue at Rehoboth Beach and plan to spend the month of August vacationing with their sons. As was his habit last summer, Sir Owen will spend part of his vacation on the road between Rehoboth and Washington where he keeps in constant touch with his office.

Boris Timchenko, of Washington, has arrived in Rehoboth for a fortnight's vacation and is staying at the Corner Cupboard. Mrs. Clifton Phillips, the former Natalie Keaney returned to Rehoboth after a short visit to her aunt, Mrs. Sydney Cloman, in Washington and joined her husband and baby daughter for a few days by the sea. The Phillipses have taken a new house with a large garden in Haverford, Pa., where they live since leaving Washington, and expect to move into it in September.

MRS. TURNER CATLEDGE has left the rural and nautical scenes of Rehoboth for a trip to New York where she will introduce her small daughter, "Millee," to the more sophisticated scenes of the Aquacade and the World's Fair.

Mrs. Chase Donaldson, who has been having a sieve with a troublesome ear while her children went vacationing without her, has recovered enough to join her mother, Mrs. Henry B. Thompson, at the latter's farm near Greenville, Del.

Mrs. Thompson has a cottage at Rehoboth which she has rented for the month of August. This means that she will give up the seaside in favor of her farm for a month, but Rehoboth will see this gracious lady again in September.

LUNCHING AT THE Rehoboth-Indian Beach Club the other day was Mrs. Robert Lee Fraser, sister of Mrs. George Messersmith, wife of the United States Ambassador to Cuba. Mrs. Fraser, who has been living in London where her husband is with the International Telephone and Telegraph Co., has just arrived in America and is visiting her cousins, Miss Anne Nichols and Mrs. Roman Tammany in Lewes, Del. Mrs. Fraser expects to be joined at Lewes by Mrs. Messersmith a little lateer in the season.

SOMEONE WHO IS not vacationing is pretty Helen Davis, daughter of Dwight Davis. She is working hard at a job in the Department of Commerce.

Prize for the "folksiest" advertising sign should go to the Florida tourist and trailer camp which advertises, among its other advantages, "Helpy Selfy Laundry—Do Your Own Washing." A friend saw the sign with his own eyes and wrote me about it.

Miss Dillingham Is Married In Honolulu

Many New Yorkers Journey There For Ceremony

Many New Yorkers journeyed all the way to Honolulu for the wedding there on Wednesday of Miss Elizabeth Louise Dillingham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Francis Dillingham, of Honolulu, to Myron Arms Wick, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Wick, of Cleveland, Ohio.

Leading members of Capital society were also invited to the wedding, as the Dillinghams are frequent visitors here and their daughter was presented in Washington at a dance given last year by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Edge. She attended the Foxcroft School in Middleburg, Va., and was graduated from Sarah Lawrence College in June.

Wedding Performed In St. Andrew's

The wedding took place in St. Andrew's Protestant Episcopal Church, the Right Rev. S. Harrington Littell, Missionary Bishop of Honolulu, officiating. The bride wore a gown of white satin with a full skirt and semi-fitted bodice which had a low square neckline and three-quarter length sleeves. Her veil was of tulle and she carried a white prayer book.

Miss Marjorie Erdman was her cousin's maid of honor. The bride's other attendants were a sister-in-law, Mrs. Lowell S. Dillingham; Mrs. Alexander Ladd, the Misses Elin White, Barbara Thompson, Mary Craig, Marjorie Goodyear, Constance Shepard, Alison Pyne, Ann Halowell and Constance Matthews and Gail Dillingham, a niece, who was flower girl.

Bridegroom's Father Best Man

Mr. Wick, sr., was best man for his son, and the ushers were three brothers of the bride, Lowell, Benjamin and Gaylord Dillingham; Alexander Ladd, George Whitney, jr., Cammann Newberry, Woods McCahill and Albert Goodhue.

The bride made her debut in 1939 in Old Westbury, Long Island. Mr. Wick is a graduate of St. Mark's School, of Harvard College and of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration.

Susan Fisher To Be Wed

The engagement of Miss Susan Jeannette Fisher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Adams Fisher, of Brockton, Mass., to Lieut. Robert Platt Wilson, son of Mrs. William P. Wilson, of Washington and Brewster, Mass., was announced at a party given recently at the Fisher home.

The prospective bride was graduated from Wheaton College in 1938. Lieut. Wilson received a degree from Michigan State University in 1933 and is now a first lieutenant and commanding officer of the Thirtieth Ordnance Company, on duty at Fort George Meade, Md. His late father was an officer in the United States Army.

The wedding will take place early in October.

Miss McLean Entertains

Taking advantage of the balmy weather, Miss Evalyn McLean, jr., gathered in several friends yesterday afternoon for luncheon and a swim.

The daughter of Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean has been entertaining frequently this summer at small, informal parties. An ideal spot, Friendship, the McLean house on Wisconsin avenue, not only boasts of rolling lawns and a swimming pool but a nine-hole golf course to boot.

Sheas Stay at Shoreham

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Shea have taken an apartment at the Shoreham, where they will make their home during their stay in Washington. Mr. Shea has been called here on the Advisory Commission to the Council of National Defense.

Mrs. Pulver Gives Party

Mrs. Waggaman Pulver gathered together some of her friends, who are spending the summer in Washington, for an informal cocktail party yesterday afternoon.

In Washington for the last three weeks, Mrs. Pulver has seen little of her acquaintances, as her young son, George, was stricken with double pneumonia, and she has been at his bedside at Emergency Hospital. Now that he's recovered, and gone off to visit his grandmother, Mrs. Alexander Legare, Mrs. Pulver plans to see more of her friends.

She is staying at Mrs. Legare's home while her own Georgetown house is being remodeled. Mrs. Pulver will live on the top floor of her house next winter and rent the rest.

Elaine Zimmerman, Wallace Amos Wed At Bladensburg

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an embroidered net frock with a sweetheart neckline, full puffed sleeves, fitted waist and a billowing skirt. She wore a short veil and carried a bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Dorothy Marsh, maid of honor, wore a yellow marquisette frock made with bishop sleeves. She wore a matching headdress and carried a bouquet of talisman roses. The Rev. Glenn Cooper, of Berwyn Methodist Church, officiated. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white slipper satin made with long sleeves and a train with lace insets and a pearl neckline. Her long veil was trimmed with the pearls and she carried a bouquet of red roses and valley lilies.

Miss Doris Pfeiffer, of Washington, was train bearer.

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

Paging Freud

Why do all the very, very good people,
Especially those of feminine gender,
Have such consuming curiosity about,
The antics of those who live in sinful splendor?

Today's Social Notes

Bravely sacrificing their personal comfort, Truthtown socialites are driving in from their country estates at least once a week to do their bit in war relief and charitable work.

Mrs. Chauncey Potterby commutes into town every Tuesday from her estate, Bayview, to supervise a group of sewing volunteers. Mr. Potterby is very busy this summer looking after his string of polo ponies.

Mrs. Lucius Gilderlyly and her subdeb daughter, Eloise (Snooksy). Mrs. Ethelbert Vanderpuffer and Mrs. Elspeth Ermine are others who travel distances of 50 or more miles weekly to sew, supervise and attend committee meetings.

Preparedness

Mrs. Claudius Whiffington is taking a course in public speaking, coming into town twice a week from Bay Vista where she and Mr. Whiffington recently settled to enjoy the simple life. "Ducky," as she is known to her friends, intends to speak in the coming Presidential campaign. "I think women should perform some public service at a time like this," she said. "I shall offer my services to both parties and will speak for either party at any time and on any subject."

Tch! Tch! Mrs. Bingle!

A great deal of talk has been occasioned by the fact that Mrs. Artemus Bingle wore her town suit to a luncheon at the Boxwood Country Club last Monday. It is even rumored that Mr. Bingle may be called before the board of governors of the club to be reprimanded for his wife's faux pas.

Reached at her home yesterday, Mrs. Bingle said she had been downtown shopping Tuesday morning in her town suit and didn't have time to go and change to her country suit before going to the club.

"Of course I knew better!" she said. "What have I been reading Vogue all these years for?"

Chit-Chat

Among those seeking asylum from the heat last night at the Magnolia Country Club were Mrs. Thornberry Flitt (Wacky to her friends), in a new lynx jacket which bore a marked resemblance to one worn by Mrs. Brown Toddy before she broke her engagement to Carrington Stepp, playboy and man about town; Mrs. Mortimer Percheron (Babe to her intimates) in a stunning plaid gingham evening gown; James (Jitters) Montmorency, whose next to the last wife was Cornelia Kettledrum; the Arbuthnot Abererombies (Skitt and Woozy); Philander Punkette, whose intimates call him Puppy; Mr. and Mrs. Knipton Brash (she in a gorgeous coat of Bermuda tan) and Adelbert Splint, stockbroker just released from the Atlanta prison and being welcomed enthusiastically on all sides.

Mary Haworth's Mail

After 14 Years' Happy Marriage, Woman in Early Thirties Is Fretfully Bored With the Sameness Of Her Days; How Reconcile Herself to Monogamy?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: You probably will receive many letters in regard to the one published Sunday, July 28, from the "Happily Married" wife who nevertheless finds herself frequently attracted to and even dreaming about other men. I never realized, until I read your explanation, that such "subjective romancing" is a sign of emotional immaturity—and it gives me an entirely new slant on the problem, which has recently cropped up in my life.

I have resolved to nip this tendency in the bud, and if you can spare the time, I would appreciate some further discussion of the subject. I dimly grasp what it is I must do, but I haven't the least idea how to go about it—so would you please give me some suggestions? It is out of the question for me to consult a psychiatrist and besides, I don't think it is really necessary.

I will tell you a little about myself—which may enable you to give me guidance. I married my first love when I was 19—and that was 14 years ago—and I guess my emotional development stopped right there. I do dearly love my husband and I couldn't have found a better one if I had waited until I was 30. But I think I was more mature and sensible during my twenties than I am today. Or perhaps it was just that I hadn't tired of housekeeping, babies, gardening, bridge clubs, cocktail parties, etc. Anyway, I seem to have exhausted my interest in such things and now my days drag along in monotonous drudgery. This view of life has crept up on me during the past four years.

I have long thought that books, magazines, movies, etc., are greatly responsible for the bored discontent which overtakes married folks after some years of domesticity—particularly those who marry rather early. We discover after a while that we have entered a room, so to speak, and locked the door behind us. We have a feeling that we are sentenced to spend the remainder of life in this confinement. Then we start drinking down doses of romantic fiction which make "triangle" intrigues seem thrilling and courageous.

Small wonder we begin finally to feel that we are withering on the sidelines while Life is rushing by outside our locked door, and that the adventure-seekers are having all the fun. Honestly, I think books and movies should be more carefully censored for married folks than for youngsters. But I guess a person of mature mind wouldn't even think or feel that way. What can I do to get the "mature" slant on life? Sincerely,

VIDA VICTORIA.

Up Pops the Devil To Tempt Idle Minds

DEAR V. V.: Speaking of censorship, I might remark that one of the prerogatives of adulthood (in the United States of America, at least) is that of establishing individual censorship over one's mental diet. And anybody is a fool who continues to feed knowingly on such garbage as upsets his emotional equilibrium and distorts his social outlook.

If your attitude toward life during your twenties seems, in retrospect, to have beene "more mature and sensible" than it is today, I expect it is because in that decade you were so busy getting the upper hand of your job of being a wife, mother, hostess, good neighbor, etc., that you had scant time for introspection. You were living realistically, in a spirit of continuous adventure.

Let us say, then, that you devoted ten happy years to bringing under control the intricate domestic machinery that has to do with a woman's conventionally stylized expression of her biological role in society. The machinery is now running smoothly on its own momentum, making so little demand on your creative attention that you are beginning to suffer from the doldrums of a stagnant spirit.

And so up pops the Devil in your scheme of things—(that wily opportunist who proverbially finds mischief for lazy minds and idle hands to do),—with his little bag of tricks, in which the game-of-sex is a popular attraction for all those persons who live a sort of hand-to-mouth existence, emotionally, for the reason that they lack the vision, integrity, and initiative to make a consistent investment of their surplus energies in socially creative enterprises.

Eroticism, or continual preoccupation with sensual experiences is, but definitely, an infantile characteristic. Obviously, it presupposes a person who is sentencing himself to live his whole life cycle on the non-rational, pitifully limited level of animalistic instinct instead of entering into his human (and distinctly non-animalistic) birthright of rational and spiritual potentialities as well. It need hardly be said that these intrinsically human faculties can only be fully evoked, developed and expressed—and their soul-satisfying fruits thus claimed and enjoyed—by purposefully establishing intellectual control over irrational brute impulses.

As commentators on humankind have long observed, the greater the potential sinner, so-called, the greater potential saint is he. Which, reduced to essence, means that it is within the individual's power to direct his energies toward either ignoble or noble ends. And in this regard, psychologists and psychiatrists have been instructing us for years in the techniques, soul satisfactions and social profits of "sublimating" potentially trouble-making impulses into personally and universally acceptable forms of expression.

As I see your problem, you have now arrived at a crossroads in life where, if you are to continue to develop as a social being rather than regress into a fretful devotee of eroticism, you must deliberately turn your attention to the affairs of the society (in the impersonal sense) in which you live, and discover and deliver what unself-seeking contributions you can make thereto.

In my belief, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt is giving womankind a truly noble—and, indeed, it may be, an immortal—example of how to achieve the highest type of feminine personality expansion, expressed in the most useful fashion. As for yourself, did you perchance read, in local newspapers this week, the poignant account of a 3-year-old girl who was killed in a street accident, whose parents had no funds for her funeral, and whose mother lamented the fact that the child had to wait until after death to be supplied (through charitable donation) with her first pair of shoes?

In a world where such things can happen, out of man's neglectful "inhumanity to man," how can you sustain the abysmal spiritual blindness to bemoan the passing out of your marriage, of a little roseate honeymoon glamour? Doesn't this suggest how near your spirit is to suffocating in a rising tide of utter selfishness? Doesn't it offer a hint of ways of being and doing that would restore a sense of vital significance to your days?

Use Discretion Washing Woolens

Woolens can be kept soft and fluffy as new, without shrinking, after many washings. Only remember that wool is a natural, animal fiber and is sensitive to heat, friction and alkalis. Here are a few pointers:

Use only lukewarm water—better cool than too warm.

Use plenty of water, and plenty of mild, neutral soap suds. Make the suds before putting articles in.

Wash quickly, keeping goods in easy motion. Don't soak. Use several suds a few minutes each if very dirty.

Rinse out all soap, in water of same lukewarm temperature.

Put through very loose wringer, or squeeze out water—no twisting or hand wringing.

Dry in warm place—not before a fire nor on heater or radiator, not in intense cold.

Hang blankets lengthwise.

Knitted articles may be measured, or outlined with pencil on paper before washing and pulled gently to size and shape while drying.

To test for color fastness, put an inconspicuous part of article in clear, warm water and squeeze water through for four or five minutes.

Every Girl One of Three Style Types, Says Movie Designer

Olivia de Havilland, of the movies, shows what her costume designer, Orry Kelly, means when he says feminine types look best in neatly tailored togs. Olivia wears a lightweight wool shirt and skirt combination, which, through understatement of curves, gives more oomph than would more obvious clothes, according to Kelly

Feminine, Dramatic or Tailored Clothes Should Be Chosen by Women to Suit Their Respective Personalities, Advises Orry Kelly

By Marshall Adams

The Post Fashion Editor.

EVERY girl falls into one of three fashion categories, according to Orry Kelly, Hollywood fashion designer. You are either feminine, tailored or dramatic, altough the clothes you wear may belie your type.

MARSHALL ADAMS

Kelly, head of Warner Brothers' costume design staff, says the perfect feminine type is Olivia de Havilland. During several visits Miss Havilland has made to this city in the past year, she has impressed admirers with her extreme feminine grace which she cleverly understates with wardrobes consisting almost entirely of tailored togs.

Olivia to Forego Frills

Since femininity is a word to be heard from in fall fashions, Olivia's own autumn selections may carry weight, particularly since her adviser, Orry Kelly, urges her to wear simply designed clothes and forego frills for fear of looking "too saccharin." Taking his counsel, Olivia plans next season to wear youngish clothes, which gain sophistication through her natural feminine endowments of curves, curly hair, rounded features and a pretty smile.

If you measure up to any of the youthful Olivia's qualifications, you might consider the possibilities of a tailored wardrobe based on:

1. A two-piece shirtwaist business dress of dark, bright color with practical stitched pleats in the skirt and long sleeves which will not show elbow stain during working hours.

2. A tailored 32-inch jacket of lynx to wear over either shirtwaists or afternoon crepes and wisely cut in fur stripes bound on fabric to prevent too much bulkiness for the tiny, short figure.

Hooded Dinner Dress

3. A trim two-piece suit of green suede (wool might be substituted for a Washington wardrobe, since it is cheaper and easier to care for) topped by a yello wand green plaid coat, a practical one for late vacations or winter cruising later on.

4. A hooded dinner dress of black jersey cut along classic tailored lines and made of celanese which is sleek and almost dire and dust proof.

5. A trim poinsettia red satin formal gown, also of celanese and also disarmingly cut in simple style.

6. Both evening gowns can be worn under a hip-length jacket of a natural blue fox, cut just as quietly as the daytime lynx jacket.

Backyard 'Splash' Will Help Keep Children at Home

It may drive you crazy to have the neighborhood gang congregating at your house and spilling all over the place. But if you're like most other conscientious parents, it would drive you a lot crazier to have your own children off "goodness knows where" all day long. So for all the hullabaloo it causes, you're probably figuring out ways to give your yard enough glamour or lure to hold the children there.

Water is a wonderful snare for summer days. Not necessarily a swimming pool, though that would be grand—but just being generous about the hose on hot afternoons is quite enough to collect plenty of neighborhood kids.

Then there are canvas wading tanks to be bought, and set up anywhere, and filled for splashing.

A WOMAN'S

WASHINGTON

Helen Ray Hagner, Social Secretary, Adds New Chapter to Interesting Career

HELEN RAY HAGNER, now with Hotel 2400, shops for guests, takes them sightseeing and arranges parties for their daughters. Thus Washington's foremost social secretary tacks on another paragraph to a varied career. For more than 20 years she has been bringing out debs and making up guest lists for the better parties. One of her first jobs was with Thomas Nelson Page. She was at the British Embassy for two years, organized (with Mrs. John Allan Dougherty) the first President's Birthday Ball and has put on several inaugural balls.

Mrs. Hagner

Among the many Washington women for whom she has done secretarial work over a period of years is Mrs. William Bankhead. Despite her seeming preoccupation with the upper crust, she finds time to keep up with the family affairs of the domestic help in the homes and hotels where her work takes her; as a result, she has many firm friends in below-the-stairs society. Her pet extra-curricular activity is the Metropolitan Police Boys' Club.

A well-known children's doctor always is careful to make friends with his patients before he does anything unpleasant to them. Recently he found it necessary to lance a small boy's ear. By the time he had completed the preliminaries, he was on such a friendly footing with the child that he couldn't bear the thought of hurting him. So he summoned an ear specialist to do the job.

DIPLOMATIC DOINGS—Much music is made on the Yugoslavian Legation's two concert grand pianos. Both the Minister and Mme. Fotitch play. So do their frequent guests, Mrs. Thomas Burke and Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins. The group's vocalist is Vera Bloom, daughter of the New York Representative. When they all get together, the legation resounds with such difficult works as the Brahms Liebeslieder waltzes.

Waiting for a streetcar is no trial to one Washington woman. She carries with her a camp stool which she unconcernedly opens up and sits on until the right car comes along.

This week's detective mystery concerns a little cluster of women standing around the great white bear outside Zlotnick's, apparently taking measurements. The manager's secretary, questioned on the subject, laughed away all suggestions that the bear was being measured for a new coat, a storage box or even (Heaven forbid!) a coffin. She thinks maybe the women were just curious sightseers; a more interesting explanation is that they were secret agents from a rival furrier who wants to set up a greater, whiter bear.

MARKETING TIPS
(From the U. S. Bureau of Standards)

In buying food, housewives do not always practice sound economics. This actually happened: A woman asked for two heads of lettuce from a pile marked 10 cents per head. She said, "Give me the smallest heads you have, please. There are only three of us and I just want it for salad." Had she asked for one large head, she would have received just as much lettuce for half the money.

Beauty Secrets

By CAROLYN ABBOTT

Tan Commandments

WITH MANY a vacation still in the offing to tan or not to tan remains a current beauty problem. Fair or bronzed, you can remain in fashion's favor. But if you have decided to acquire a coat of suntan at all costs here are a few tips for getting it painlessly:

Do not spend more than 15 minutes in the sun your first day out. (Increase time gradually from day to day as your skin toughens to hot sun light.)

Do not drink anything alcoholic and lie in the sun.

Do not sprinkle perfume on the body before going into the sun.

Do not sit in the sun without sun glasses or a wide brimmed hat.

Do not leave the hair exposed to strong sunlight. Protect it with oils or some form of covering.

These are the do's that will prevent burning and blistering:

Do use a rich cream around the eyes to prevent wrinkles and crow's feet.

Do saturate the body with protective oils while in the sun.

Do use a protective powder base on the face, neck and arms to ward off over exposure. The skin of the face is sensitive and burns easily.

Do use two suntan creams—one to invite the rays slowly and the other to keep off the intensity from the sensitive parts of the body.

Capital News In Brief

Rep. Cluett Identifies Toy Pistol Bandit

A 28-year-old man, believed to be the mysterious "Mr. Adams, of Roanoke, Va.," who tied and robbed Representative Cluett (Republican), of New York, in a hotel room July 8 after the Willkie dinner, was "positively" identified by Cluett at a special lineup last night at police headquarters.

He was viewed in the lineup also by Representatives Rockefeller, of New York, and Church, of Illinois, both Republicans, who were at the dinner. Police, meanwhile, were endeavoring to connect the suspect, who they said admitted being at the dinner but denied the robbery, with another hotel holdup here.

Cluett was robbed by a guest at the dinner who introduced himself as a fellow Republican and accompanied the Congressman to his room in the hotel. There he held up Cluett with a toy pistol, bound him with bedsheets and ransacked his room, taking $100 in cash and jewelry. He was arrested in Richmond.

Beauty of U. S. Deserts To Be Told in Talk

The beauty of the American deserts will be described tonight at 8 o'clock by Dr. Earl A. Trager, chief naturalist, National Park Service, in an illustrated talk at the Rock Creek Park campfire program, Sixteenth and Kennedy streets northwest. His subject will be "Deserts in Bloom."

One-Man Art Exhibit Opens at Catholic U.

A one-man exhibit of paintings, etchings, murals and other works opened yesterday at Catholic University. All are the works of Charles Peitz, a student at St. Joseph's College in Rensselaer, Md.

The display will be open daily from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m., until August 8. It is located in the Salve Regina Building of the university.

Newly Redecorated Home Damaged by Fire

Next to the last of a series of improvements Walter F. Rothe, a physiotherapist, was having made at his home, 3432 Lowell street northwest, was responsible for a fire in the front porch roof yesterday.

Rothe discovered the blaze shortly after a workman used a blowtorch in repairing a leaky eave trough. Firemen he called put the fire out, but not until the new wall paper in the living room and reception hall had been splattered with water.

In the last two weeks, Rothe has had the entire house, which he recently purchased, redecorated. Everything was finished, save the floors—and the leaky eave.

Train Victim's Body Found on B. & O. Tracks

The body of a man identified as Eugene Poore, 41, of 5403 Conduit road northwest, was found yesterday on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks, about 200 yards west of Key Bridge.

Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy said the man apparently was either walking or lying on the tracks and was struck by a train. Poore was unmarried and was employed as a driver for an ice concern.

First D. C. Teacher Called to Colors

The first gap in Washington's public school teachers' ranks has resulted from the national defense program, it was learned yesterday.

R. W. Ruffner, teacher of mathematics and English at Paul Junior High School, has been granted a year's lave of absence by the Board of Education so he, as a reserve officer, may take up active duty.

The board has already adopted a policy of giving their jobs back to men who take leave for national defense service, with temporary appointment of substitutes.

Traffic Routing For Eastern End Of City Considered By Commission

Acting to prevent the creation of a new traffic bottleneck in the District, the National Park and Planning Commission yesterday took under advisement traffic routing plans for the eastern end of the city where the National Guard Armory is being built.

The commission heard two of its staff experts recommend against the widening of B streets, both northeast and southeast, as well as a proposal to close Massachusetts and North Carolina avenues at Lincoln Square.

John Nolen, jr., director of planning, and William T. Partridge, consultant, argued that the widening scheme involved too much property acquisition and that closing of the two avenues in the vicinity of Lincoln Square was impractical.

Suggest One-Way Streets

They suggested that A and B streets, both northeast and southeast, might be paired as one-way streets—two in an easterly and two in a westerly direction—in connection with the general scheme to make more accessible east Washington, where the armory is under construction and a stadium may be erected.

Taken under advisement were studies made by Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer and W. E. Reynolds, public buildings commissioner. Action was reserved until later, said Nolen and Thomas Setile, secretary of the planning body.

Norman C. Brown, associate land purchasing officer, announced acquisition of 17 acres of land adjoining Rock Creek Park, across Connecticut avenue from the Bureau of Standards. He described the tract as "an unspoiled valley with fine timber, containing a feeder stream into Rock Creek."

He also reported further land purchases for expansion of Fort Reno Recreation Center, the Congress Heights Playground and the Watts Branch Parkway project. Additional property also has been bought for the Midcity Playground, at Fifth and O streets northwest, he declared.

Elects Maj. Snow

Elected Maj. B. C. Snow, new Assistant Engineer Commissioner, to its coordinating committee.

Approved land purchase and administrative budgets for the 1942 fiscal year.

Considered three possible sites for the new west central heating plant but deferred recommendations.

Appointed Henry V. Hubbard, city planner, and William A. Delano, architect, a committee of two to work on a plan for extension of Independence avenue westward from Fourteenth street to Arlington Memorial Bridge.

Disabled Veterans Urge D. C. Suffrage

The Disabled American Veterans of the World War have adopted resolutions urging Congress to grant suffrage to the District.

The resolution was sent Chairman Jennings Randolph of the House District Committee. Washington's lack of suffrage was termed "an abridgement of the rights of citizens."

Man Hurts Hand Flagging Trolley

John Cecil Penland, 25, of Arlington, Va., hailed a streetcar with such earnestness last night he was forced to have three stitches taken in his right wrist.

Police said Penland rushed up to a car just leaving Fourteenth and I streets northwest. Flagging the motorman to halt, he thrust his arm through the glass door.

'Defense' Theme of Legion's Convention Parade

Washington fighting men of 1917 and 1940 joined last night in a pageant of patriotism, enacted against a background of war.

More than 100 colorfully garbed American Legion units and their auxiliaries marched after khaki-clad Fort Myer artillerymen and Marine Reservists in a 45-minute spectacle in the heart of downtown Washington that opened the twenty-second annual convention of the District Legion Department.

And although the crowds that massed six deep along Connecticut avenue and K street saw a show, interspersed with the skylarking of the fun-making "40 and 8," the theme none of the veterans was allowed to forget was that expressed by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, chief of the Veterans' Administration, principal speaker of the evening: "The zero hour is rapidly approaching . . . when we will know whether American citizens are going to be willing to share the responsibilities of this country's defense.

"Those of you who have served your country cannot understand any question about supporting the ideals of this Government," the administrator continued, "but the greatest duty of the Legion is to promote national unity . . . to back the President and Congress in strengthening our national defenses."

Traffic was blocked off K street and Connecticut avenue as the parade rolled west, then north past a reviewing stand in front of the Mayflower Hotel.

Marchers ranged from a silver-haired veteran to a group of kindergarten children who toddled in the American Legion Juniors' unit. With disabled Legionnaires who marched with the aid of crutches, they received the greatest ovation.

Lightening the mood of the evening were the pranks of "40 and 8" members. At short intervals they fired a foot-long toy cannon, with a deafening explosion, while colleagues in the same unit cavorted by, clad in comic costumes and holding aloft huge steins of beer.

If the cannon reports threw off balance a teen-age drum majorette who dropped her headgear, they failed to cause her to lose poise. Without missing a stride, she reached down, scooped up the helmet, and pranced on to the cheers of spectators.

Before a crowd of more than 400 who jammed the Mayflower ballroom after the parade, Dept. Comdr. William T. Slattery called to the rostrum three District residents for distinguished citizenship citations. They were Miss Maude Aiken, principal of the District Americanization School; Stephen T. Porter, chief engineer of the fire department, and Gordon Hittenmark, radio announcer.

Also named for awards, but not present, were Representative Martin Dies (Democrat), of Texas, and Frank B. Noyes, president of the Evening Star.

Veteran Dies From Auto Injuries

Three Children And Woman Hurt In Other D. C. Traffic Accidents

A man injured fatally yesterday at Georgia avenue and Butternut street northwest was identified last night as Michael McCarthy, 58, a World War veteran and patient at Walter Reed Hospital.

Meanwhile, three children and a woman were hurt in other accidents.

Identification of the latest traffic victim was made at the Morgue by Dr. J. F. Gamble, of the Walter Reed staff. Dr. Gamble said McCarthy, a retired enlisted man, had been a patient since July 4. He has no known relatives.

The driver of the car which struck McCarthy, police said, was William P. Cowles, 22, of 3919 Illinois avenue northwest, who will appear at a coroner's inquest at 11 a. m. today.

Boy Hurt Stealing Ride

In serious condition at Freedmen's Hospital was Robert McSwain, 6, colored, of 1018 First street northwest, who was found lying on the street in front of 926 First street northwest. Police believed the youngster had fallen from a truck while stealing a ride.

Struck by an auto while riding his bicycle at Forty-fourth and Yuma streets northwest, Frank Campano, 14, of 1507 Park road northwest, was taken to Georgetown Hospital, where he was held under observation for head injuries. Helen E. Coyle, 38, of 4337 Chesapeake street northwest, was driver of the car, police said.

A third boy injured yesterday was Clarence Haley, 13, of 1300 Fourth street northwest, who, police said, was struck by a car in front of his home. He was taken to Providence Hospital and treated for head injuries. Police said driver of the car was Mildred Stanley, 41, of 1726 M street northwest.

Woman, 73, Injured

Mrs. Annie Mary Williams, 73, of 4708 Linnean avenue northwest, was injured in a two-car collision at Broad Branch road and Brandywine street northwest. She was riding in a car with her husband, Joseph L. Williams, when they collided, according to police, with a car driven by James Wilson, colored, 29, of 443 Rhode Island avenue northwest.

Judge Bentley Confirmation Likely Monday

McCarran Reports Nomination Favorably After Committee Poll

Juvenile Court Judge Fay L. Bentley is expected to be confirmed by the Senate on Monday, almost four months after her renomination was presented by President Roosevelt. The reappointment was made on May 6.

Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, yesterday reported her nomination favorably after a poll of the Senate Judiciary Committee. His subcommittee of three, he said, had voted unanimously to recommend confirmation.

A renewed recommendation that the entire social welfare system of Washington be investigated and that appropriate legislation be enacted may be made to the Senate when the nomination is called up.

Senator McCarran said that his hearings on the Bentley nomination had convinced him that a broad inquiry is needed and that the system rather than appointees are at fault.

Other members of the subcommittee who voted for confirmation are Senators Austin (Republican), of Vermont, and Chandler (Democrat), of Kentucky. Senator Austin said that after reading the record of the hearings, which he did not attend, he found nothing which would cause him to vote against approval.

Self-Help Exchange Marks 3d Anniversary With Party

Workers Who Use Scrip as 'Coin Of the Realm' Pause to Participate In Fete; Mrs. Grattan Doyle Presides

Nearly 200 participants at the Washington Self-Help Exchange, 2529 Pennsylvania avenue, left their work for a while yesterday afternoon to attend the third birthday of the exchange. It was held in the little garden behind the plant which, until a few months ago, had been a kindling yard.

The exhange, established in August, 1937, to help the city's jobless help themselves, is now providing work for from 280 to 300 men and women a day at the Pennsylvania avenue and U street buildings. The workers are paid in scrip which they cash in for services, food and clothing at the exchange. They also learn new skills there and brush up on those they already have.

In the three years since the Pennsylvania avenue plant was opened, participants have gone from the institution to 1,683 cash jobs, 164 of which have been permanent. Some have retained their membership to work a few hours a week for scrip and buy second-hand clothing and an occasional meal at the exchange until they were able to get on their feet financially.

One man who now has a night watchman's job at $1,800 a year, still comes back to the Self-Help once a week to work for enough scrip to buy one or two meals there—for money will not buy a thing at the exchange. Scrip is the only "coin of the realm."

Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, executive secretary, presided at yesterday's birthday party which included a large white cake, made in the Self-Help bakery and decorated with three red candles.

The participants—white and colored, old and young—sat on the chairs and benches in the pleasant little garden and enjoyed the refreshments and the satisfaction of having had a part in building up the institution.

WPA Worker Fined For Using Flag To Wrap Trash

Police Court Judge George D. Neilson yesterday fined Noah Merica, 33-year-old WPA worker, $25 for using an American flag to wrap around trash. Although pleading guilty to the charge, Merica said he had no intention of willful desecration when he tossed the trash-laden flag into an alley behind his home at 1313 Tenth street northwest.

His attorney, R. Brooke Furman, said his client's act was just "pure carelessness" and Merica was ignorant of the law. He has a wife, two children and makes but $57 a month, the lawyer added.

Judge Neilson, after lecturing the defendant on principles for which the flag stands, explained the maximum fine was $300, but "in view of the fact there was no apparent maliciousness" in Merica's offense he minimized the penalty.

Merica borrowed the $25 and paid his fine.

Post Regrets Caption Error

In a series of pictures, published in Thursday's Post showing the audience at the Kirsten Flagstad Watergate concert Wednesday night, the caption of one of the photographs erroneously identified two of the listeners as being the Norwegian Minister, Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, and his wife.

Birr! Mercury Tumbles to 65; Climb Due Today

Gentle north winds coaxed Washington's high-riding temperature down to the eighties yesterday. In fact, the mercury dropped so abruptly last night—to about 65—that scores of persons who complained about the city's 13-day heat wave found themselves uncomfortably chilly.

Slightly warmer was predicted for today and tomorrow, together with fair skies. A definite break in the tropical spell arrived yesterday with the temperature rising to a high of 81 from an early morning low of 68.

The humidity dropped with the temperature veering from 60 per cent at 7:30 a. m. to 45 per cent at 7:30 p. m.

Rep. Bates Has Photo Fan Seized As 5th Columnist

By the Associated Press

Capitol Hill's first "Fifth Column" scare resulted yesterday in the questioning of an alien who had accompanied a peace group from Boston to oppose military conscription and in the confiscation of his camera.

A man Capitol police said gave his name as Leo Safran of Boston, was taken from the office of Representative Bates (Republican) of Massachusetts, after the Congressman said he had taken a picture without permission, a violation of Capitol regulations.

Police said Safran told them he fled Austria five months ago and came to the United States through France. The man was released.

'Thunder Over Mexico' To Reverberate in Capital

Eisenstein Production Fostered by UFWA; The Critics Miss Mr. Daly's New Anthem; This, That and the Other About the Theater

THE UNITED FEDERAL WORKERS OF AMERICA, an affiliate of the C. I. O., are going in for "films of significance" in a methodical, if not grand, manner.

Having presented a special screening of that most eloquent of all anti-war films, "Grand Illusion," some months back, the organization now plans to screen "Thunder Over Mexico," a social-economic-political survey of present conditions south of the Rio Grande, produced by that master director, Sergei Eisenstein. The showing will be in Pierce Hall, Fifteenth and Harvard streets northwest, on Friday, August 9, at 8 p. m. The picture never before has been shown in Washington and should be of especial interest at just this time.

BELL

From the newspaper headlines emanating from Mexico from time to time, one might suspect that "Thunder Over Mexico" will bear something more than a remote connection—at least in its implications—with "The Ramparts We Watch," now occupying the screen at RKO-Keith's Theater. Both bear directly upon problems of prime importance now facing the United States in the formulation of its foreign policy and the safeguarding of the vital interests of this country against insidious influences that are alleged to be gaining strong footholds in the Western Hemisphere.

Further contemplation of the unique character of "The Ramparts We Watch," incidentally, gives rise to the thought that, superlative as it is of its kind, this picture may not compile the extended run on Fifteenth street that so many have confidently expected. Even for so thrilling a patriotic subject—although it is not to be classed as "propaganda" in the view of this department—there is, after all, a comparatively limited public, composed either of rabid partisans or those susceptible to the fascinations of reminiscence.

It was a distinguished jury that sat on the case of The State vs. Karen Andre Wednesday night, when the Willard Roof Players appeared in their first performance of "The Night of January 16." Chosen by lot from the members of the audience—as will be done at every performance—the panel included Judge D. Nielson, Dr. M. M. McLean, George W. Walker, Walter M. Bastian, past president of the D. C. Bar Association; Francis W. Hill, jr., its present president; E. D. Edelblut, president of the Cosmopolitan Club, and Mrs. Edelblut, George O'Connor, jr., Mrs. John D. Marsh, Raymond T. Cahill, Representative Fred J. Douglas and Miss Mary Burt, president of the Soroptimist Club. They found the defendant not guilty.

The guys and gals of the press were much perturbed Wednesday night by their inability to accept Coproducer Harry P. Somerville's invitation to loiter moistly in the Roof Tavern Club to hear George O'Connor, the Capital's Lawrence Tibbett, introduce the new District anthem, "Washington, My Washington," to the strains of Tiny Meeker's strolling instrumentalists. The piece was written by John J. Daly, a former cellmate of your reporter on this estimable family journal, and dedicated to Commissioner J. Russell Young. But deadlines are deadlines.

Speaking of deadlines, as we were somewhere back there, the one controlling that "bashful man proposes marriage" contest, being engineered by Loew's Palace, in conjunction with first Washington showings of "Pride and Prejudice," has been extended to next Tuesday midnight.

Columbia

After a holdover engagement at the Palace, "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante," arrives this morning at the Columbia Theater for a third week on F street.

Followers of this family series will find this eighth and latest a worthy observer of family tradition. In it the Judge is called to New York to uphold the slipping fortunes of the Carvel Orphanage. Mickey, beg pardon, Andy, is anything but excited about this trip, for in a loose moment at school he vowed that the well-publicized glamour girl of the season was an intimate pal. When they hear he's Manhattan-bound, his school fellows arrange to save the cover of their monthly mag. for a picture of Andy and P. D. No. 1.

So Andy's job when he hits the big city is to get to know her. His own efforts fail, but that's where Judy Garland comes in. She does all she can to fascinate this young bumpkin from the country, but nothing comes of it until she introduces him to the sources from which his troubles flow. Then he appreciates her.

With Miss Garland and Diana Lewis added to the cast, the familiar Hardy veterans perform with their accustomed good humor. Besides Mickey Rooney and the bemused Lewis Stone, Fay Holden, Cecelia Parker, Sara Haden and Ann Rutherford are also on hand.

In Hollywood

Hollywood, Aug. 1.

Claudette Colbert claims that all fascinating men in Hollywood are not screen actors. She lists ten who she feels could race any of those gentlemen that make love-light sparkle in gals' eyes: Leo McCarey, producer-director, sex appeal and Irish wit . . . Victor Fleming, director, outdoor "he-man" . . . Mitchell Leisen, directing "Arise, My Love," sense of humor, considerate in little things—always gives her ace camerman.

HOPPER

Leland Hayward, manager, charming, knows what to say to women at the right time. Why shouldn't he? His father is Col. William Hayward, who kept a whole colored regiment in line during the World War . . . Wesley Ruggles, director, sophistication with sanity . . . Charles Brackett, writer, whimsical type. (Hi, there Charlie!).

Gregory Ratoff—life of any party . . . Howard Hughes—thinman, romantic . . . Walter Wanger—debonair, knows his way around. Helps boost you there. . . . Charles Lang, cameraman, strong, silent. Knows just where to place that "baby spot."

Claudette will never languish after this for any job. Her husband, whom she adores, isn't a screen type but a doctor—and a darned good one, too.

Ann Sothern is making such strides that Metro is dusting off "Red Dust" and "Libeled Lady" as remakes for the little "Maisie" Sothern . . . Charles Nordhoff, who coauthored "Hurricane," is doing a regular Cook's tour of the studios.

The Women Flyers of America is a grand idea. Training costs only $275, which is 20 per cent below the usual cost of instruction. The aim is to release men for military service in time of emergency. And did you know that one of the first to enlist was Katharine Hepburn?

Is it true that Joe Kennedy and Gloria Swanson have become friends again after all these years? Garbo not only entertained the colossally wealthy Axel Wennergrens when they were here (understand she even bought them a steak!) but she cracked out and dined the great Valentina and husband George Schlee. Valentina, as you probably know, is one of the really fine designers of America, who took Garbo out of turtle-neck sweaters and slacks when she was in New York last time.

I'd like those friends who think Mrs. Howard Hawks (Norma Shearer's sister) is a permanent invalid, to know that she's been stopping at the Casa Manana at La Jolla for two months, where she swims, tennises and takes an active interest in Red Cross work. She's on friendly terms with her husband, Howard, too. Once in a while he's forgetful about money, but what husband isn't, occasionally?

Funniest sight of the week was over an art shop in Laguna Beach, announcing to all who could read, "This shop is owned by the original Mrs. Ronald Colman."

METROPOLITAN

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Aug. 1 (INS).—Believe it or not, dear readers, the autograph hunters at long last are to be glorified in the movies. Metro Goldwyn-Mayer has just purchased "The Youngest Profession," a novel soon to be published by Lillian Day, and it features a rabid fan who stalks the stars and spends her life grabbing autographs. She and her girl-friends hide on a ship when one of the big names is about to sail for Europe. Remember the Robert Taylor incident, which was such grief for Bob when he was a victim of a silly girl's prank?

LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Judy Garland will be starred as Jane Lyon, the 15-year-old girl who makes it her profession to get as many stars' names in as many different places as possible. Can't you see what inside movie stuff can be written into this feature? Sounds to me like a terrific idea.

The heavily mustachio'd Jerry Colonna, whose "Yehudi" gags are so popular on the Bob Hope program and who was really sensational on his recent personal appearance tour, will have one of the head comic roles in Gene Markey's first Paramount picture. Gene has written the script of "You're the One" and will produce it. I telephoned him to get some first-hand material, and he tells me he is packing his movie full of comics. "Professor" Colonna, wee Bonnie Baker, whose "Oh Johnny" has been the toast of the country, and Orrin Tucker's orchestra are the only ones signed so far.

I had a long talk with Johnny Weissmuller when I was at the San Francisco Fair, and he told me that he was going to Honolulu as soon as he finishes his season at Billy Rose's Aquacade. He will have to make his trip brief, for M.-G.-M. has sent him the tentative script of "Tarzan, King of the Sea" and requested that he let them know when he can report for work. This one is all about Tarzan being captured in his native jungle and being taken away by the beeg, bad civilized men. Johnny, by the way, doesn't have to grunt if he doesn't want to, for he talks and talks very well in his act at the Aquacade.

Chatter in Hollywood: I mentioned in passing that Florence Rice and the talented Dalies Frantz were becoming an item. You can never be sure just how serious any romance is in Hollywood, but the symptoms are certainly there! I saw them together at Ouida Rathbone's party at Ciro's, and I have never seen Grantland Rice's pretty daughter and the very good-looking musician-actor seem so happy. Now that she has obtained her divorce from Robert Wilcox, she is concentrating on the attractive Frantz.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: The Liz Whitney-Victor Mature romance is getting hotter than the ex-weather. They go horseback riding every morning and stepping every night; meanwhile, Bruce Cabot is consoling himself with Rosalie Graybar, New York showgirl; wonder if the talk of Ann Rutherford's secret romance is true; Terry Hunt's new heart is Alice King, an Easterner; Franciska Gaal, undaunted by war, took the clipper en route to Hungary to see her mother who is critically ill; Eddy Duchin was at the plane to kiss Jane Pickens goodbye and wish her bon voyage.

Marcelle Edwards, recently divorced from Jay Carlisle and once wed to Tommy Manville, is now concentrating on a San Francisco businessman; Jack Warner, jr., and Patsy Mace a Victor Hugo happy twosome; Lily Pons and Andre Kostelanetz flew in today for her bowl concert. Jeanette MacDonald and Gene Raymond are entertaining for them afterward; the Kent Taylors are calling their baby William Anthony. Wonder if it's for William Anthony McGuire.

George Brent and Ann Sheridan are drinking vegetable juices on the set every day; Mary Carlisle is in bed with badly sunburned eyes; Dana Dale, Jeffrey Lynn's favorite girl friend, talking things over at the Brown Derby with Don Briggs; tickets will soon be at a premium for the Comedians vs. Leading Men's baseball game. Everyone in the movies and many others want to see Marlene Dietrich and Paulette Goddard captain the two teams; Alice White is not taking her alimony troubles to court, since it appears she has none. Sy Bartlett has paid her in full.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Jane Austen's Masterpiece At The Palace

"Pride and Prejudice" Opens This Morning With Notable Cast

By Richard L. Coe

"PRIDE AND PREJUDICE," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the novel by Jane Austen, adapted to the screen by Aldous Huxley and Jane Murfin based on the dramatization by Helen Jerome, costarring Greer Garson and Laurence Olivier and featuring Mary Boland, Edna May Oliver, Maureen O'Sullivan, Ann Rutherford, Frieda Inescourt, Edmund Gwenn, Karen Morley, Heather Angel, Marsha Hunt, Bruce Lester, Edward Ashley, Melville Cooper, Marten Lamont, E. E. Clive, Mae Beatty and Marjorie Wood. Directed by Robert Z. Leonard. Previewed Tuesday, July 30. At the Palace Theater.

Jane Austen's enticing comedy of manners, "Pride and Prejudice," has become a beguiling and diverting film. Artfully cast and adapted, the new picture opens this morning at the Palace, a rare and polite conversation-piece that takes some liberties with the original.

The entrancing Greer Garson is the prejudiced Elizabeth, the mordant Laurence Olivier the proud Mr. Darcy. And with Edna May Oliver, eloquently restraining herself as that noble paragon, Lady Catherine de Bourgh, the casting achieves happy heights that aren't often reached. Melville Cooper's Mr. Collins is a rich portrait of self-appreciation, Frieda Inescourt's arch Miss Bingley a chilling piece of snobbery. Edmund Gwenn's Mr. Bennet, a rugged individual, and Marsha Hunt's solemn Mary a primly pathetic maiden. Even in the role of that tiresome fool, Mrs. Bennet, Mary Boland's marked mannerisms are not entirely out of character, although they are less distinctly focused than those of her associates.

For of the three fools which the gentle Jane eased into her story of provincial refinements in the early days of the late Queen-Empress, Mrs. Bennet is surely the most relentless. As the mother of five marriageable daughters, whose property will be entailed on their father's frequently mentioned death by that other dreary idiot, Mr. Collins, Mrs. Bennet is continuously busy. And Jane Austen's slight story of her struggles to marry them off has endured the century because of its author's impeccable style, her pinpoint wit, her sharp assault on even so inviolable a body as Lady Catherine de Bourgh.

Adapted From Jerome Play

Aldous Huxley and Jane Murfin, both writers of enviable distinction, have followed closely Helen Jerome's successful stage adaptation in their screen play. They have made the same necessary dramatic contractures which managed to please even the most strict Austenites in Miss Jerome's winning production of five seasons ago. They have been guilty, though, of several soft-soaping operations which will alarm seriously the Austenites but not bother the average film fan very much. Mr. Collins is now a librarian, not a clergyman, a circumlocution understandable in Hollywood's eternal vigilance to offend no one (except, in this case, librarians). It is too bad, for everyone knows there are prigs everywhere, but Mr. Cooper's stumbling lovemaking, his constant groveling before his haughty patroness are so humorous as to belie too much criticism.

Then, too, near the end, there is an attempt to mollify the indomitable Lady Catherine, an egregious insult to that lady who was "so prodigiously civil." Even Miss Boland's Mrs. Bennet shows a tendency to brighten up sweetly, which would indeed be a dreadful fate for that nerve-taunted creature who was no older than her youngest daughter. There's also a hint that the prissy Mary has found her a mate—a flautist no less. It is wryly amusing that even a century later Jane Austen's prickly digs are deemed too strong for some people's comfort!

Interesting Short Subject

There's a lot of rollicking humor in the film, one especially being Mary's off-key efforts to entertain the neighbors with her song. The production settings of grace and Victorian style are highly decorative and the costumes lack only the color of Max Gordon's distinguished stage production.

Maureen O'Sullivan is the pert and pretty Jane and Karen Morley the Charlotte who finally married Mr. Collins. Miss Garson proves herself the only screen Lizzy possible and Mr. Olivier is convincingly aloof as Darcy. The balance of the cast is as we've indicated but some special honors should go to Edna May Oliver's elegant Lady Catherine, about whose unyielding person the entire world obviously revolves.

A novel and interesting "Passing Parade," telling three odd stories, is the short subject accompanying the lengthy feature which is further augmented by the latest "News of the Day."

NLRB Aides Deny Congress Order Evaded

Smith Committee Probes Division Of Economic Research

Charges and denials that the National Labor Relations Board has violated the "direct mandate" of House and Senate echoed and re-echoed in a Congressional hearing room yesterday as the Smith committee held a one-day revival of its inquiry into the NLRB.

J. Warren Madden, chairman of the board, and William M. Leiserson, one of its members, vigorously disputed the contention of Chairman Howard Smith of the committee that the board had "stepped around" Congress by failing to wipe out the functions of the Division of Economic Research.

Funds for this section of the board had been withheld by the House after its Appropriations Committee had specifically demanded that the division be eliminated.

But, it was brought out in testimony yesterday, the board had merely altered the name of the division to "Technical Service Division," had made no major change in its duties and had retained its chief, David J. Saposs, who has been accused of radicalism in previous Smith Committee hearings.

Meanwhile, the Appropriations subcommittee that handles the annual NLRB grant met yesterday to discuss the board's alleged violation of the law and determined to call Chairman Madden before it today.

Time and again during yesterday's hearings, Chairman Smith and the other two majority members of the committee, Representatives Halleck, of Indiana, and Routzohn, of Ohio (Republicans), pointed out that the Appropriations Committee had urged elimination of the Economic Research Division, that the House had cut down the board's 1941 funds for this and other purposes and that the Senate finally had yielded in its vain effort to restore the appropriation.

And repeatedly Madden, Leiserson and Representative Murdock (Democrat), of Utah, one of the committee's minority, asserted that there was no specific prohibition against the division in the law, that the appropriations committee's report should be treated simply as a "suggestion," and that the change of name was not an attempt to deceive Congress into thinking the functions of Saposs' division had actually been abolished.

At the appropriations subcommittee meeting yesterday, the view was expressed that the board, in establishing the economics research division, had violated the Wagner Act itself, which forbids it to set up a statistical service that duplicates work already being done. Presumably, it is on this point that Madden will be queried by the subcommittee today.

During the Smith hearings Madden, whose term as member of the board expires August 27, said, "I resent the imputation" that he had evaded the law.

"Notwithstanding your resentment, anyone with a grain of common sense knows that this was purely evasion of an act of Congress on the part of the board," snapped Representative Routzohn.

The work of the division is "absolutely necessary" to the NLRB, said Leiserson—who has more frequently appeared at Smith Committee hearings as an adversary of Madden, rather than a supporter. He explained that the title of the division had been changed to better describe its work.

Representative Murdock suggested that if Congress had wanted to wipe out the division, it could have done so by specific legislation to that end.

Davis Urges U. S. Build Hospitals For the Colored

Senator James J. Davis (Republican), of Pennsylvania, yesterday backed a move by the National Negro Hospital Foundation to have the Federal Government build six 100-bed hospitals for colored people in the South.

In a broadcast here with the Rev. Amos H. Carnegie, executive secretary of the foundation, over the Mutual Broadcasting System, Senator Davis declared:

"I voted for the $60,000,000 appropriation to build needed hospitals in the rural areas and economically depressed districts because I believe there is a great need for such a program.

"Your request is a modest one and I believe you will get the hospitals. You need them. Nobody can deny that. There is no reasonable excuse that could be offered for your not getting them."

Coward Sees Happy Ending For Britain

By Gerald G. Gross

A more serious Noel Coward, his sense of humor quite intact, but with sober observations replacing the frothy bon mots normally associated with Britain's most versatile showman, yesterday voiced confidence the little isle that is England will thwart the enemy.

Sipping a soft drink while his press guests quaffed beer and Scotch, the playwright-actor-director-composer-lyricist unburdened himself of many opinions on many topics, but the tenor of the interview may be summed up in these few words: Germany will never get the better of Great Britain.

Coward, in the United States as an emissary of Alfred Duff Cooper, Churchill's minister of information, was received by President Roosevelt yesterday morning.

"The President seemed particularly interested in the plans going forward for removal of British children from the war zones," he said.

Disembarking in New York Tuesday from the liner Britannic, Coward came to Washington on the following day and immediately reported to Lord Lothian, the British Ambassador. Of his discussions at the embassy he divulged little, explaining that his duties are not sharply defined, his services wholly at the disposal of his government.

"How long I'll remain in the States I don't know, perhaps a couple of months," Coward declared. "All I can say for certain is that I shall leave for New York tonight."

Impeccably dressed and groomed as always, Coward had meaty remarks on the war, the theater, a certain fur coat—in short, on whatever was brought up in the interview. As to that fur coat——

"Last spring I came to America for a short holiday, locking up my Paris apartment. Returning to Europe, I arrived in Lisbon on the clipper on June 10, the day Italy got into the fight. Paris was in a precarious position so I went directly to London.

"Clothing, furnishings, books—everything is—or was—in that Paris apartment, including a fur coat of which I was very fond. Some day, perhaps, a German parachutist will descend on England wearing my coat. The apartment was located opposite what is now the Gestapo headquarters."

A Hitler victory would mean the end of creative art in Europe and the cultural damage would be worldwide, Coward believes. But he feels that will not happen, basing his optimism upon the quality of Britain's air force and navy and her coastal defenses.

P. R. R. Blames Wreck Killing 43 on Crew

Disregarded Orders, Company Says; Copy Found on Conductor

By the Associated Press

Akron, Ohio, Aug. 1.—A crumpled copy of trainmen's orders, found on the conductor of a Pennsylvania Railroad motor coach in which 43 persons perished, tonight backed up the road's declaration that the crew's "disregard" of instructions was responsible for the tragedy.

The order provided that the motor coach should take a siding and allow a 73-car freight train to pass. Instead, the coach's crew continued for a mile past the siding, down the Pennsylvania's Hudson-Akron single track, and crashed head-on with the freight.

Investigators said a copy of the order issued to the freight train crew was found in the clothing of Conductor Harry Shafer, 37, one of the trio who survived the fiery crash. Similar orders had been issued to the coach crew, the railroad said, explaining that each crew of trains ordered to "meet" gets a copy of the instructions issued to the other crew, as well as its own orders.

The railroad said in a statement:

"The crew of the motor coach not only disregarded their orders to stop at switch No. 1 at Silver Lake and to wait in the siding, but, in continuing on the main track from Silver Lake toward Akron, disregarded another rigid rule, as permission was required from the block (signal) operator at Hudson to make this further movement. This permission was not obtained."

Finding of the order, said F. W. Krick, division superintendent of the Pennsylvania, "proves conclusively that the crew had received its orders and is at fault."

"It just seems to be one of those inexplicable mental lapses," Krick informed Coroner R. E. Amos.

The 70-seat motor coach, built of steel and powered with gasoline stored in 250-gallon tanks, was in shuttle service on the 12-mile line between Hudson and Akron. The freight train was bound from Columbus to Cleveland.

At impact the gasoline tanks exploded and enveloped the coach in flames, giving its occupants "not a chance in the world," said Coroner Amos.

The telescoped 122,000-pound coach became a virtual pyre for the 43 victims, 11 of them Pennsylvania Railroad employes. The car was thrust 200 yards back by the impact.

Engineman Thomas L. Murtough, 49 (the coach carried a single engineman), and a railroad section hand were the only others besides Conductor Shafer to leap to safety. Shafer and Murtough, both seriously injured, were unable to tell their stories.

New York, August 1

HOWARD LINDSAY related the story once told him by Tyrone Power, sr., father of the current film-star. The elder Power decided to break his drinking-habit, and consulted a doctor about it. "That's easy," the doctor suggested. "Whenever you feel like taking a drink, have some food instead." Power heeded the advice, and found it beneficial. He became a teetotaler, and the food he consumed in substitution of liquor restored his health.

ᔕᔓ

One day in a hotel room, he heard some shots next door. Power rushed outside, and tried to open the door of the adjoining room, but it was locked from the inside. He climbed atop a chair, and peered through the transom—where he saw the bodies of a man and a woman, both dead. Power ran downstairs, and notified the manager about the suicide-murder. Then the quaking actor turned to a bell-hop, and ordered: "Quick, boy—a double order of ham and eggs."

ᔕᔓ

FREDERICK LONSDALE, the British playwright, is in America now, and wanted to bring to this country the young daughter of his sister. Lonsdale therefore wrote to her in London, offering to supply all the money and affidavits required for the trip . . . A few days ago he receiveed her reply, in which she stated that she wouldn't permit her daughter to seek refuge in America . . . "We're all equal, in this war," she explained, "and we must all make similar sacrifices. Our gardener has a daughter the same age as mine. And as long as the gardener's daughter remains in England, so too will mine."

ᔕᔓ

VACATION TIME is almost here. We had planned this vacation two years ago—planned to return to Grandelwald, fenced by the steep rock walls of the Swiss Alps, where once we saw an Aelplerfest, in which the wrestlers from each canton met in combat on the plateaus. We wanted to taste again those roast pears at Kaiserstuhl, where the mountain streams splattered the rickety train . . . But, instead, we'll spend a week at Grossinger's, a few miles away from Irving Berlin's place where, last week, we sat in his living room while a Catskill twilight shaded the brook outside the window, and Berlin sang "God Bless America," the way he had written it originally for a Yaphank soldiers' revue.

ᔕᔓ

WE HAD PLANNED to return to Prague, and ride the funicular to the Little Hill overlooking the Moldau River where, with blankets around our shoulders, rented from a Brooklyn waiter, we watched the cafe lights dimmed, and listened to the strains of a violin played across the valley. But there is no music in Prague today, and Nazi flags drape the house where Beethoven lived and Mozart wrote his "Don Giovanni" . . . And so we're going to Havana, for a date to fish with Ernest Hemingway.

ᔕᔓ

IN SZABADSAG TER., in Budapest, is a landscaped map of Hungary—its present territory indicated by the light-green plants, and the darker growth outlining the lands lost to Jugoslavia and Rumania. Encircling all this is the oath repeated every morning in the Nation's schools: "I believe in One God, One Country, One Divine Eternal Justice. I believe in the Resurrection of Hungary."

ᔕᔓ

WE PLANNED to return to Szabadsag Ter., this year, watch the Magyars repeat the oath of resurrection, then dine at the Dunapalota where a gypsy band, on the shores of the Danube, competed with the Gershwin music next door . . . But we're going to Panama, instead, and cruise through the Canal.

ᔕᔓ

WE WANTED to walk again in the forest outside of Brussels, and ride in the small wagons which take the bathers out to the sea, at Ostend . . . Within 24 hours we had set foot in five capitals and six countries—three of which are no more. We had lunched in Copenhagen, where the Danish Princes visited the same night clubs frequented by their chauffeurs. A rickety Fokker then brought us to Hamburg, and over the Zuyder Zee for dinner in Amsterdam that night. We breakfasted the next morning in London, after a stop-off in Brussels, and then lunched that afternoon in the foothills of the Alps. It was madness, but we knew that Hitler was preparing to march, and wanted to see it all before it crumbled . . . and now we're going to Acapulco, to swim and watch the pearl divers.

HELD OVER! 2ND BIG WEEK!

Whatever you're doing this week, don't miss "The Ramparts We Watch"... the inspiring motion picture that had its World Première here in Washington last week! Columnists, critics, government leaders and the man in the street all praise it to the skies!

Stella Unger, Radio Movie Commentator, says:
"Mr. and Mrs. America, you'll be hearing about a new movie tagged 'The Ramparts We Watch.' Don't miss it. As great an historic document as has ever been put on celluloid! A thrill that comes once in a lifetime!"

Edwin Schallert, Los Angeles Times, says:
" 'The Ramparts We Watch' deserves the attention of every American. To go into detail regarding the cast and performance would consume space far beyond what is available for this appraisal. 'The Ramparts' may be 'The Uncle Tom's Cabin' of the present."

Senator George W. Norris, says:
" . . . deeply impressive."

Nelson B. Bell, Washington Post, says:
" 'The Ramparts We Watch' is timely to a split second—chronicles with an impact that is stunning, vastly inspiring in its inescapable reminder of the capacity, the courage, and the greatness of a unified America. It was spontaneously cheered by the audience."

Major General T. Holcomb, Commandant of U.S. Marine Corps, says:
"It is marvelous. I enjoyed every minute of it."

Mark Sullivan, says:
" 'The Ramparts' is an utterly true picture of the most exciting period in American history. To those who lived through the great war, the emotion this picture brings is so personal as to be an intimate experience. It is exactly what each of us saw and heard and felt."

Tigers Crush Yankees, 11 to 2, Regain Lead

Champs Drop To 5th Place; Rowe Victor

Schoolboy Wins 9th Game of Season; Tigers Pound Breuer Donald for 15 Hits

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Aug. 1.—The Detroit Tigers regained rulership of the American League today with a crushing 11-to-2 conquest of the New York Yankees that knocked the World Champions out of the first division.

The maneuver in the standings was accomplished in conjunction with the Boston Red Sox's 5-2 decision over Cleveland, giving the Tigers exclusive possession of first place, and Chicago's 5-4 11-inning triumph over the Philadelphia Athletics, lifting the White Sox into fourth place.

Schoolboy Rowe, hero of Detroit's last pennant era, was the kingpin again today. He held the Bronx Bombers to seven hits and contributed a triple and a double toward the Tigers' own total of 15 safeties, driving in three runs.

Rowe's Ninth Victory

It was the ninth victory against two defeats for the big righthander, who two years ago was relegated to the minor leagues with little hope for his future.

He was scored upon in only one inning, giving up two runs in the fourth on singles by Tom Henrich and Joe DiMaggio, a double by Charley Keller and an infield out.

In contrast, the Tigers tallied in six of their eight turns at the plate. After punching over a run in each of the first two innings, they drove Rookie Marvin Breuer off the mound with five runs in the third.

Donald Pounded

Barney McCosky started this uprising with a triple, Charley Gehringer walked, Hank Greenberg hit his second straight double and Rudy York singled, before Atley Donald was rushed to the firing line. He managed to get the next two batters to pop up, but Birdie Tebbetts, who had homered in the second inning, singled and Rowe tripled ahead of the third out.

The Tigers continued to hit Donald freely, scoring twice in the fifth with the help of some uncertain fielding by Joe DiMaggio, and again in the seventh and eighth. Pete Fox hit a triple, a double and a single.

Bill Knickerbocker, utility infielder, was chased from the Yankee bench by Umpire Louis Kolls in the fourth.

Chisox Defeat A's; Climb Into First Division

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 1.—Chicago's 1940 White Sox "walked" into the first division of the American League for the first time today. With the bases loaded in the eleventh inning, Nelson Potter, Philadelphia Athletic pitcher, walked Joe Kuhel to force in Bob Kennedy with the run that gave the Sox a 5-to-4 triumph.

The victory, their eleventh in the last 14 games, lifted the Sox into fourth place by a fraction of a percentage point ahead of the New York Yankees, although the two were tied on a games won and lost basis. The defeat sent the A's back into last place.

Edgar Smith, Chicago starting hurler, literally was knocked from the box in the third inning. He was felled by a drive off Bob Johnson's bat. The ball struck Smith in the groin and he was carried to the clubhouse. The injury was not considered serious. Pete Appleton and Clint Brown followed him to the mound, with Brown getting credit for the victory.

After Sam Chapman's sixteenth homer with one on in the fifth had helped the A's to a 4-1 lead, the Sox pecked away at Potter to finally tie the score in the ninth. They won in the eleventh without benefit of a hit or an error. Two walks, coupled with a sacrifice and a fielder's choice, filled the bases. A third base on balls to Kuhel accounted for the winning run.

Dodgers Beat Pirates In Twin Bill, 8-3, 8-7

Wyatt Wins 10th of Season in Opener; Four Dodger Pitchers Allow 6 Hits As Casey Gets Credit for Nightcap

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, Aug. 1.—The Brooklyn Dodgers, having the National League stage all to themselves for a day, swamped the Pittsburgh Pirates in a double-header, 8 to 3 and 8 to 7, today to narrow the first place margin of the Cincinnati Reds to 6½ games.

The first encounter was a cut and dried proposition with Whitlow Wyatt pitching seven-hit ball for his tenth triumph of the season.

His fellow Dodgers gave him four runs after two were out in the third inning and three more in the fifth with Dolph Camilli hitting a home run to taper off a 12-hit offensive against three Pittsburgh pitchers.

The second game was a spectacle of no mean proportions. Manager Leo Durocher of the Dodgers used four pitchers to hold the Pirates to six hits as Brooklyn again battered the Pittsburgh staff with a dozen blows.

The contest would never have been close except for seven errors and eight walks that were intermingled with the base knocks.

As it was the lead changed hands repeatedly until the Dodgers drove across the deciding run in the seventh on a single by Babe Phelps and a double by Lavagetto, scoring Johnny Hudson, who ran for the pudgy Brooklyn catcher.

Rookie Ed Head started the game on the mound for Brooklyn and walked the first batter. He immediately was replaced by Lee Grissom, who walked four and made a wild pitch in four frames. Luke Hamlin couldn't get anybody out in the

The Great Folliard Snags 35-Pounder; Both Are Surprised

Eddie Folliard, The Post's ace political writer, is the talk of Nags Head, N. C., and not because of any powerful piece of political writing. Now on vacation, he astounded everyone including himself yesterday by boating a 35-pound channel bass. This is several notches above his previous record, which was a one-pound hardhead he caught several years ago in Chesapeake Bay.

The Grady Boys Insects defeated the Four Bees nine, 6-0, at Walter Reed Hospital behind the three-hit pitching of George Jarboe.

Indians Bow To Bosox, 5-2; Foxx Homers

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Aug. 1.—The Cleveland Indians' normally airtight defense all but collapsed today and Boston, paced by irrepressible Jimmy Foxx, made the most of it.

Pounding out a 5-to-2 victory, the New England wrecking crew dropped the Indians to second place as Detroit vanquished the Yankees. The Sox pounded two hurlers for ten hits, including Foxx's twenty-second homer of the season, and in winning salvaged one contest from their three-game series here.

Four errors, three in the seventh inning, spelled the Indians' undoing. Two were charged to usually reliable Ray Mack, who let in a run by throwing wild to first after fumbling a grounder; and one was committeed by Mel Harder, who also threw past the first baseman to permit two unearned runs.

Southpaw Fritz Ostermueller, posting his second victory against five defeats, held the Tribesmen to seven hits. Harder, charged with the loss, yielded eight, and Johnny Allen, who relieved him in the ninth, gave up two.

Red Cross Nets $2,131.15 From Golf Benefit Here

Indian Spring Country Club officials turned a check for $2,131.15 over to the District of Columbia Chapter, American Red Cross, yesterday as proceeds of the July 4 and 7 pro-amateur tournament. Receipt of additional tickets in the next few days may swell the sum, Bruce Baird, chairman of the War Relief Fund Campaign, accepted the check.

10 More Players To Join Squad at Chicago; Spokane Site of Drills

By Al Hailey

The District delegation of the Washington Redskins will entrain this afternoon at Union Station for a hop across the country to the summer training quarters in Spokane, Wash.

The 11 players making up the local contingent and Business Manager Jack Espey will step aboard the Liberty Limited at 5:10 p. m. They will be joined in Chicago tomorrow by ten more players and will pull into the Spokane quarters Monday night.

In Chicago tomorrow the Redskin party will be guests of the Illinois Athletic Club and in the afternoon will go out to Comiskey Park to see the Nats-White Sox game.

The real grind of getting into shape for the coming campaign in the National Professional Football League will get underway Tuesday morning in Spokane when the entire squad turns out at Gonzaga Field for the first taste of work under the stern eye of Coach Ray Flaherty.

Four exhibition games are on the Redskins' program before the actual season opens, however, and two of these will be at night during the month's stay in Spokane.

First exhibition is an intrasquad game in Seattle August 22. An-

Nats Now Envision First-Division Berth

Yankees Failure to Win Consistently Leaves Griffs Chance to Advance; Chase, Leonard, Hudson Brighten Team's Future

By Shirley Povich.
Post Staff Writer

Chicago, Aug. 1.—Don't tell a soul, but the Nats are scheming now to get into the first division, a place they had plumb forgotten all about as recently as a week ago when they were battling to recover their balance on the cellar steps.

Their new ambitions have been virtually thrust upon the Nats. The Yankees who precede them in the standings are leaving the gate to the first division wide open by their failure to win with any consistency.

The defections of the fourth-place clubs have been occurring at a time when the Nats, strangely, have begun to play good baseball. They now own a three-game winning streak, and are in the midst of their best Western trip of the season. They've won five games out of nine on the road.

All of a sudden, Bucky Harris' pitching staff has begun to pitch winning ball. Not since the pennant days of 1933, has a Washington manager had at his beck and call three such dependable guys as Dutch Leonard, Sid Hudson and Ken Chase. They have been giving the team a tremendous lift.

Chase Has Been Helpful

Particularly has Chase been a boon to the club recently. He has beaten the Tigers, the Indians and the Browns in succession and won three of the Nats' five victories in the West. He bears no resemblance to the wild and ineffective guy he was during the first half of the season when he could win only five games. He has virtually chucked his fast ball and has developed as a winner with a curve ball.

Leonard's last game was a magnificent affair—a 4-0 shutout of the Browns, and Hudson has now won two straight after his seven-game streak was checked a while back.

Hudson will go to the mound tomorrow for the opener of a four-game series with the White Sox

4 Top-Seeded Southampton Netmen Win

By the United Press

Southampton, N. Y., Aug. 1.—The four top-seeded players, National Champion Bobby Riggs, of Chicago; Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City; Elwood Cooke, of Portland, Oreg., and Frank Kovacs, of Oakland, Calif., today glided into the semi-final round of the fiftieth annual Southampton invitation tennis championships.

Riggs, seeded No. 1, repeated his last week's victory over Henry Prusoff in the final at Seabright, beating him today, 6—4, 8—6. The 132-pound Chicagoan again came from behind with well-mixed shots to take the quarter-final in straight sets from the lanky Seattlean.

McNeill, seeded second and ranked third nationally, ousted Frank Guernsey, of Orlando, Fla., 6—3, 6—2; Cooke, fourth seeded, eliminated National Junior Champion Ted Schroeder, of Glendale, Calif., 6—4, 6—4; Kovacs, seeded fifth, downed George Toley, of Los Angeles, 4—6, 14—12, 6—1.

In the quarter-final doubles, Schroeder and Jackie Kramer, of Los Angeles, defeated Riggs and Frank Froehling, of Chicago, 12—10, 6—1; Bryan M. Grant, jr., Atlanta, and Hal Surface, Kansas City, Mo., William Canning, Berkeley, Calif., and William Gillespie, Atlanta, Ga., 7—5, 6—3; Charles Mattman, New York, and Robert Harman, Oakland, Calif., defeated Frank Guernsey, Orlando, Fla., and Russell Bobbitt, Atlanta, Ga., 3—6, 6—3, 6—2; Edward Alloo, Berkeley, Calif., and Larry Dee, San Francisco, defeated Elwood T. Cooke, Portland, Oreg., and Frank Bowden, New York, 7—9, 7—5, 6—2.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Chicago, Aug. 1.—Politicians may continue to stump the land from now until November, but as far as the country's football fans are concerned the Nation has already gone to the polls. Millions of votes have been cast and counted, and the people's choices will take the field here on August 29 in the eighth annual College All-Star-Professional Champions football game.

POVICH

Football in America begins each season with the extravaganza at Soldiers Field in which the Nation's college stars, chosen by popular ballot, line up against the holders of the national football title, in this case the Green Bay Packers. A month before the game, 50,000 seats have already been sold at prices ranging down from $3.30. By game time, 86,000 tickets, capacity of the arena, will be gone.

It is America's one yearly chance to survey the relative abilities of the college lads who raced into the football headlines and the hard-bitten pros who are supposed to play the tougher kind of football. In this game stars have been born—notably Tuffy Leemans, who came out of George Washington as a purely local favorite and eclipsed all of the All-Americans on college squad. In this All-Star game Leemans was first acclaimed nationally as a great football player.

Leemans carried his All-Star fame into the professional league and it has been undimmed in his four seasons as a pro, but before he came to notice under the glare of the All-Star game setting, he was unappreciated in the national football scheme. In Washington Jack Espey, then press agent for G. W. U., was raising a lone thin voice in acclaim of Leemans but was snubbed by metropolitan football critics as just another overenthusiastic college publicity man.

Leemans' football ability was an eye opener, however, for the coaches in command of the All-Star game that season. He literally bowled his way into their notice by his powerful running in the pre-game practices and the coaches, rubbing their eyes at the performance of the kid from a small college gave him the full back job on the first team in preference to Jay Berwanger, Chicago U.'s highly publicized ace who, it developed couldn't carry Leemans helmet. Leemans was the best college player on the field that night against the pros.

Back in 1937, Sammy Baugh came out of Texas heralded as the greatest of all the college passers, but how would he stack up with Arnie Herber of the Green Bay Packers, the best in the pro league? Baugh demonstrated that a college passer could be as good as the pros. A record crowd of 85,000 saw Baugh engineer the downfall of the pro champions with his passes. He threw 13 and completed seven, and one of his completions was a touchdown pass to Gaynell Tinsley of L. S. U. which won the game.

The All Star-Pro game is the best proving ground for the players with ambition to enter professional ranks. Don Hutson was a star for the collegians, and he has been the best pass receiver in pro ranks from the day he joined the Green Bay Packers. Tinsley was the best end of the Chicago Cardinals, and the list of collegians who made good emphatically with the pros after starring with the All-Stars is lengthy.

The game offers a true line on individual ability, but it scarcely is conclusive with respect to the power of college and professional football teams.

The collegians, several years younger on an average, train more easily for the game than the pros who cannot be in peak condition after only a few weeks of training, and for every defeat they have a ready and logical alibi.

Conditions beat the Washington Redskins in the All-Star game in 1938. It was the same Redskin team that made a shambles of the pro league race the year before, but the players were a year older and not so responsive to midsummer conditioning. They were run ragged by the collegians in the last half of the All-Star game. On the college boys' side was youth and speed. In midseason it would have been a different story. The pros would have merely matched the speed of their younger opponents, and experience would have brought them a victory, no doubt.

But the real winners in this annual All-Star pro game are not even in the stadium, however. They are the poor kids who don't get around much because much of their time is under doctors' care. They can't lose in this game because the receipts, often as much as $150,000 are equally divided among Protestant, Catholic and Jewish charities of the city. That seems to be sufficient excuse for the ball game.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Aug. 1.—Sportin' around:

They waited so long to give Mel Ott a "day" that the game of baseball changed, and now his long-deferred "day" will be a night game—next Wednesday . . . Brooklyn will be the guest at the Polo Grounds, a wholesome decision in view of the fact that when most clubs reluctantly accede to the wishes of fans and okay a "day" for a player the club usually picks out a day on which it is playing some second rate club—and uses the "day" as a shot of adrenalin at the bucks office . . . just as England turned down Tommy Farr's kind suggestion that he come to America to fight Joe Louis, Australia has rejected the offer of Adrian Quist and Jack Bromwich to come here for tennis exhibitions for the benefit of Australia's war funds . . . Jack Dempsey's victory over one Ellis Bashara at Charlotte, N. C., the other night, got only a paragraph in the papers here.

CONSIDINE

The "better element" of Scranton heartily endorsed the Overlin-Soose middleweight match, some of the naive socialites casting a social benediction on the battle only after being assured that boxing was a gentlemanly endeavor known for its high moral standing. A couple of nights before the fight the urban-looking Ken Overlin got on the air and confounded society's pillars by flatly endorsing drinking, dancing and making merry. Ken said that his favorite hobby was a series of women's clubs he has established from coast to coast.

The horrified social registerites phoned the station and tried to have the irrepressible pug toned down or tuned out . . . Curly Lambeau, tough boss of the tougher Green Bay Packers, has instructed his gorillas to play tennis this summer . . . The Cincinnati Reds call Derringer "Duke." . . . One reason you don't see much big dough connected with trotting is that the game offers less encouragement to Blue Book climbers than does the thoroughbred game.

Dumb Dan Morgan, who isn't, can't come to any conclusion on the outcome of the Conn-Pastor fight—which is more of a dilemma for Dan than if he dreamed out a seven-horse parley and then couldn't promote a deuce to start it . . . "It's a case of Conn's left hook versus Pastor's good right to the heart." Dan, who has a terrific record for picking 'em right, says. "There won't be any knockout, and whichever is in the best condition will win. Certainly will seem funny to see two boxers appearing in the same ring as a boxing match, won't it?" . . . Clem McCarthy will man the P. A. system at the new trotting track which opens at Roosevelt Raceway next week . . . Willis Sharpe Kilmer lived the full life; it's hard to weep over his passing. He had Exterminator (bought the immortal gelding for $12,000 on the eve of a derby, to have his colors carried, and Mr. Bones won it and went on to become an all-time great.) And he had Sun Beau. That's more than one man's share of breaks.

Anent the bottle-throwing debate, a baseball fan writes in to say that such outbreaks often are the fault of ball players who crowd around an umpire and bitterly protest a decision. It may jolt you to learn that players have no official right to protest to an umpire. Umps should make an example of a few of the career scolds of baseball and perhaps that would cut down on the bottle heaving that frequently follows these stormy open forum yelling sessions by the players, most of whom can drown out the only guy the rules allow to speak—the manager.

K. C. Hockey Club Sold to Syndicate

St. Louis, Aug. 1 (AP).—The sale of the Kansas City Hockey Club of the American Association was announced today in New York by William F. Grant, president and majority stockholder, and confirmed here by the St. Louis purchasers, James D. Street and Robert D. Mudd.

Street, never before connected with a professional hockey club, said a syndicate of Kansas City business men, headed by William L. Huggins, will control the club. He indicated Huggins would succeed Grant as president.

Both Street and Mudd, in their thirties, are connected with local steel companies. Their only previous interest in hockey has been as fans.

Easton, Pa., Aug. 1.—Gordon H. Chalmers, a member of the United States Olympic team in 1932, and one of the outstanding backstroke swimmers in the country, has been appointed coach of the Lafayette College swimming team, it was announced today by Henry W. Clark, director of athletics at Lafayette. Chalmers succeeds Michael A. Miller, who resigned from the athletic staff at the college.

The new Lafayette mentor is a graduate of Franklin and Marshall, in the class of 1935, and has been engaged in swimming for a number of years.

Gableman Wires Entry for 17th Annual Championship; Nearly 200 Expected to Register at Headquarters Tomorrow

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Ed Gableman, three-time champion of the Union Printcraft International Golf Association, wired the local committee yesterday he would be here for the seventeenth annual championship that starts Monday over the Beaver Dam course.

A record field of 200 union printers, mailers, bookbinders, and photo-engravers will arrive tomorrow and register at the Mayflower Hotel, tournament headquarters. The Chicago, Cleveland, Akron and Detroit delegations are going to meet and come in on a special car, arriving at 8:20.

The District will furnish about 30 entries while the largest delegation is expected to come from Baltimore, scene of the championship two years ago.

Banquet Climaxes Week

Registration during the day tomorrow will be followed by a get-together party tomorrow night at the hotel, the first in a continuous round of entertainment for the visitors with the annual banquet climaxing the week next Thursday night.

Most of the championship class contestants are expected to put in an appearance at Beaver Dam Sunday afternoon for a practice round. The tournament proper starts Monday with an 18-hole medal round and continues, one round a day, through Thursday. After the second round on Tuesday, the field will be divided into classes, with the low 10 per cent in the championship class to battle for the title.

The District contingent has an excellent opportunity to keep the Walter Hagen Trophy in the city. The Allied Trades division has been merged with the U. P. I. G. A. championship and Joe Balestri, Beaver Dam Club champion, won the Trades class for the last three years.

Balestri Scoring Well

Over his home course, Balestri has been scoring between 72 and 75 throughout the season and four scores in that range would undoubtedly win the title. Edgar Merkle, Columbia's club champion and the 1935 International champion, has been working on his game in preparation for the event and his partner, as former two-man team champions, Fred Stringer, has been practicing all week over the Landover layout. Chick Heimer and C. E. Purdy have been busy on arrangements and deserted their golf but they may be tough in either of the first two classes.

Mrs. C. E. Purdy, winner of the women's championship last year in Cincinnati and a former Beaver Dam Women's Club champion, will be a favorite to retain her title over her home course.

Atlanta Scene Of 4-Ball Play In September

By the Associated Press

Atlanta, Aug. 1.—The fourth annual Southern States four-ball golf tournament, an event designed to honor the exploits of Bobby Jones, will be staged at the East Lake Country Club Course here September 30-October 4.

The tournament was conceived by Charles V. Rainwater, president of the Southern Golf Association, with the idea of giving Southern golfers a winter as well as a summer competition and at the same time honoring Jones.

To the winners of the tournament goes a large plaque, on which appears in a scroll the record of the famous golfer and duplicates of the four cups Jones won in his "grand slam" of 1930.

Each of the 14 States are invited to send two two-man teams. The players are chosen by the State associations on a point basis figured on their season's records.

Bobby Dunkelberger, 1939 Southern champion, from High Point, N. C., and his partner, Skip Alexander, of Duke University, won the tournament last fall.

Nationals Sign N.C.U. Diamonder; To Quit Football

Chapel Hill, N. C., Aug. 1 (U.P.).—Jim Mallory, outstanding football and baseball player at the University of North Carolina, revealed today he had signed a professional contract with the Washington Senators and would not be eligible for collegiate football this fall.

Mallory was a centerfielder on the baseball team of which he was co-captain-elect. On last fall's football team, Mallory and Paul Severin at the end positions formed one of the most effective pass-catching combinations in the South.

His loss was regarded as a serious blow to Carolina's gridiron chances this fall. Coach Ray Wolf said he probably would shift Stewart Richardson, Severin's understudy, to the right flank position.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—The head coaching assignment of the All-Star Football collegians who will oppose Green Bay's professional champions for charity at Soldier Field, August 29 is virtually a cinch for a Midwesterner.

ON FISHING

Trout Running At Middles; Stripers at Piney

If we were going bay fishing over the week-end, most any place would do, and from 5 in the evening until 7 or 8 in the morning would be the preferred hours.

For a shot at the first real run of trout we would go down southern Maryland way and get a boat at Ridge for the Middles, where Capt. Taft Tippett reports them up to 5 pounds and plentiful.

ACKERMAN

If it was stripers we had in mind, then Piney Point on the Potomac or Eastern Bay or the mouth of the Choptank would be our destination.

Black bass in nearby waters we would hardly give a second thought for they are lethargic during the daylight hours and sulky to some extent even during their night feeding times. But who can blame them—with this kind of weather.

Some anglers might get the idea the white marlin fishing off Ocean City might be worth a try. It is—but it isn't so simple as just making up your mind to go. There is that little consideration of what it takes to get you offshore—and boats on week-ends are at a premium. In fact, if you have any idea of going anytime during the next 30 days now is the time to make your reservation. Some of the boats are already booked to the end of August.

That little sportfishing cruiser you will see lying in the lagoon in front of the Florida Building when you go to the New York World's Fair is the Miss West Palm Beach, the latest creation of Huckins and what the offshore fisherman of tomorrow will be.

The craft is smaller, faster, and costs far less than the ten to twenty thousand dollar jobs of the present. Thirty-two feet overall, a draft of 20 inches and a speed of 30 miles; still built to go out and stay—regardless of the weather.

Her complete equipment will be of interest to any angler and, less you might misunderstand the white pennent for a sailfish caught and the red one for a fish released, they were earned just a few short weeks ago by the hostess aboard, Miss Joan Zeb.

A few days ago Walter LeBlanc, Wedgeport, Nova Scotia, tuna guide, boated a bluefin tuna weighing 815 pounds. A fish that is short of the world's record by only 75 pounds. Four others, averaging 500 pounds each, were boated on the same day, bringing the total for the season up to 40.

The Allison tuna weighing 143 pounds caught aboard Capt. Red Hall's Cutty Sark this week at Ocean City has been identified by Bill Wegner, representative of Pflueger Marine Museum in Miami. While not an Atlantic coastal record, that is 172 pounds, nevertheless, it will take its place on the record books, not only for its size, but for the distance north of its usual feeding grounds that it was caught.

Jack Keele Shoots 11-Under-Par 59, New Course Mark

Special Dispatch to The Post

Capon Springs, W. Va., Aug. 1.—One of the District's most promising young amateur golfers, Jack Keele, of the Kenwood Country Club, played the Capon Springs, 6,028-yard par 70 layout in 59 strokes, 11 under par and a new scoring record for this section.

KEELE

Holder of the course record since his vacation here last year with a 66, the District golfer, playing with E. H. Horton, a Department of Justice attorney, and Lieut. Col. Charles B. Spruit, M. C., posted his record total despite unfavorable scoring conditions that included wind and rain.

Three birdies and six pars netted an out round of 32 and then Keele turned on the heat. He dropped three birdies and two eagles from the third through the seventh holes, parred the eighth and birdied the ninth for a 27, even threes, and a 59. His back nine was one four, a deuce and seven threes.

Keele was a semifinalist in the Maryland four-ball championships, won a pro-amateur with George Diffenbaugh as a partner, and is a consistent winner in club tournaments. He is one of the longest drivers in the city.

Hildebrand Sent To Yankee Farm; Recall Bonham

New York, Aug. 1.—The floundering New York Yankees made an effort today to strengthen their pitching staff today by bringing up Right-hander Ernest Bonham from the Kansas City farm and sending Veteran Oral Hildebrand to the American Association club.

Hildebrand has spent nine seasons in the American League, six with Cleveland and two with St. Louis, before coming to the world champions at the close of the 1938 campaign in a deal that sent Joe Glenn and Myril Hoag to the Browns. He won ten and lost four last year for the Yanks, but this season he has never rated a starting call and has worked only infrequently in relief, winning one game and losing one.

Bonham, who made the spring training trip with the Yankees, has won eight and lost four for Kansas City.

Connecticut Ten Wins League Title

Scoring five runs in the sixth inning, Connecticut Avenue defeated Georgia Avenue, 9 to 6, yesterday to win the A division title of the Hot Shoppe Softball League. Connecticut meets Wisconsin today for the first-half championship.

Maryland Holds Combination Play

Another of the Maryland State Golf Association's combination tournaments is scheduled next Wednesday over the Five Farm course of the Baltimore Country Club, with a large field from the District expected.

A pro-amateur will be the feature attraction, while a pro sweepstakes and an amateur handicap event are side attractions. Net and gross prizes will be awarded in the latter event. A Maryland State Handicap card is necessary.

Entry fee for both events for the tournament will be $4 while the simon-pures will be admitted to both for half that much.

Inter-City Match Fans to Be Seated

Baltimore, Aug. 1 (AP).—Those loyal plodders who follow golf matches will get a break at last Sunday—the gallery will be seated at the Terra Mariae Country Club for the Baltimore-Washington team match.

Seats for several hundred persons will be provided in two strategic spots, each commanding parts of half the 18 holes. Compact arrangement of the course makes the seated gallery possible.

Yellow Cabmen Win

Yellow Cab defeated Premier Cab, 11 to 9, yesterday. Cox received credit for the victory.

—Bill Liggett

Competent baseball observers think Bill Liggett ranks right up there with the best sandlot pitchers in Washington, but he wasn't good or lucky enough to make any of the All-High first team selections during his three years at Tech. Best he could do was mention on a second team.

Started playing ball when he was 12, which makes him a veteran of 10 campaigns now at the age of 22. The old Eastern All-Stars and Langdon Midgets first introduced Bill to the sandlot scene. Now he's with O'Donnell's Sea Grill and Klein Tavern nines regularly, and with other teams on call.

If he holds out for 50 more seasons he'll still think his best performance was against the Chevy Chase Grays in the Prince George County League some years ago. Bill won the game, 1-0, in the sixteenth inning after holding the opposition to six hits over the distance. His mound foe was Max Butcher, who has performed for at least three major league outfits.

Does he want to get in organized baseball? Bill says no, as long as the wages are what they are. After a tryout with the Boston Bees following his high school graduation in 1935, he was offered a job with one of the team's farms. His pay was to be a magnificent $80 a month. That offer was turned down cold.

A 160-pounder who looks like he might weigh 40 pounds less, Liggett throws and bats right-handed. Those who have seen him pitch don't recognize him off the field. He looks positively undressed without that "plug" in his left cheek.

BILL BURNETT.

A. P. Pannell's Dark Sun Captures Feature at Bel Air Track

Vesseli Rides Both Ends Of Double

Jockey's Hero Role Spoiled by Ride On Streamer in Day's Feature

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Bel Air, Md., Aug. 1.—Jockey A. Vesseli was a hero one minute and a bum the next in the estimation of the largest week-day crowd of the meeting today. He earned the applause of his backers when he rode both ends of the daily double, but he left them shocked by his performance aboard William M. Elder's Streamer in the Churchville Purse, topping the program.

A. P. Pannell's Dark Sun was the winner and paid a $19.30 mutuel. A length behind the front horse came Streamer and Vesseli. Streamer was closing like the wind. This part of it was O. K., however. Streamer had been laying in second position early in the race and, for one reason or another, drifted back to the far reaches of the field of eight. In the final three sixteenths, Streamer fairly flew and was going twice as fast as her rival. Third money went to Wayne Kendrick's Honey Maid.

Vesseli started the day like Earl Sande. He brought William A. Moss' He Rolls, a favorite, from far back to win going away at a $6.40 mutuel. He came back to put up a fine performance on Miss E. Brimmer's No. Fair, a $29.30 shot. This effort completed a $188.70 daily double pay-off, considered "peanuts" as daily doubles have been going lately.

The stocky rider gave the favorite players a headache in the seventh race when he piloted Pamunkey, a daughter of Whichone, to victory with a $24.10 price-tag attached.

Selections at Bel Air

Dear Al:

Jockey Frank Munoz was seriously hurt yesterday in an accident near Batesville, Ind. The Margaret Mary Hospital wired me in an effort to locate his relatives. If you know, please see me in the press box. So Jockey Big Head doesn't own horses. The photo chart finish pictures continue to make the rider look bad. Did you see that one on the finish of the steeplechase yesterday? I see by the papers that Jockey Don Meade was fined last week for pulling up too soon on a horse. The boys sometimes seem to forget that they are being backed for third money. Consistent broke down here yesterday morning, following a fast workout and will be sent back to the farm. A tough break for Mrs. H. Horst, the owner. That accounts for some of those quitting efforts. Racing Secretary Eddie Brennan is lining up a good field for Saturday's $1,000 El Ray Farm Handicap. The race is named for General Manager Ray Bryson's place located on the road between here and Baltimore. Trainer E. Roy Routt seems to have the knack of saddling longshots. He sent Millie O. postward to score at $104.10 and then came back with Whats Todo at $66. The lead pony used by Hap Gordon is "Bill," owned by Claude Feltner. He has taken part in post parades for the last three years and led Challedon and other stars to the starting point. "Bill" also has figured in some thrilling captures of runaway horses. What's the story of that Channing flip flop and what's the story on that ride on Streamer? It was cool here yesterday for the first time at the meeting and Wilson Ford pulled the day's best wisecrack by asking, "Have you got antifreeze in your radiator?" See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—Shotagin had plenty of early speed last out and held on in fair fashion. That effort, of repeated, probably would take care of this field of maiden juveniles. Asunder has been whispered around and may prove a good thing. Tar Anne has had early foot on occasions and is a possible surprise.

Second race—By Surprise is in light and has the speed to take care of a field of sprinters of this sort. Welsh Lad is in good hands and belongs with this kind. Madfoot appears to be best of the others eligible.

Third race—Scurry Along seems to have an edge on this brand of steeplechasers. Will get a veteran rider and looks fairly solid. Forest Charm probably will get to the top and deserves respect. Thorny Rose for the minor award.

Kamport's last was promising. Meets maiden company in this and should reach the winner's circle. Serrano is good now and will be in the thick of contention. Kittiwake and Red Robin are possibilities.

Fifth race—Salian has plenty of punch and fits nicely in this 5-furlong sprint. I'm going to string along. Beaming Lady has a bit of class and is dangerous. Lula Khayyam could be a threat from the No. 1 position.

Sixth race—Royal Dot has been knocking around, getting little. This seems to be the spot for a crack down and I'm going to be there. Scarlet Flame should go well in this field. Mariyah will be close if taken off the reserve list.

Seventh race—Flag Etta may come from behind and take this kind of a race. Promises to get the right handling. Quick Vine should go to the front and must be caught. Saranite for the minor award.

Eighth race—The Swagman made his move too soon last out, got to the front and then faded. With better handling, this one should take it all. Stepping In has speed and is dangerous. A fast track would help Playdema.

Best bet—Scurry Along.

Challedon Leaves For East; Trainer Sees Champ Off

Los Angeles, Aug. 1 (AP).—Victor in the $50,000 Gold Cup at Hollywood Park, Challedon left for the East today and trainer Lou Schaefer boarded the special car to see that the champion got off without mishap.

"I've got to be careful with that horse," Schaefer explained. "I don't want him to have any accidents."

Suddenly the friendly Challedon leaned over and nudged Schaefer between the shoulder blades with his head, knocking him out of the door. The trainer managed to grab a friend with one hand and the loading platform rail with the other, saving himself from a fall to the ground.

Recovering from the shock, Schaefer wiped his brow and inquired, "Did I say an accident to Challedon—or me?"

New York Dry Goods

New York, Aug. 1 (AP).—Buying interest in cotton gray goods fell off considerably today although there were indications of sustained inquiry, particularly from out-of-town sources. Prices held firm at the best levels of the move.

Woolen textiles remained inactive following the seasonal pattern.

There was a selective demand for rayons, including acetates and acetate blends. Inquiry improved for pure dye silks for spring print goods production.

Naval Stores

Wholesale Prices of Coffee and Sugar Skid To New Lows as War Piles Up U. S. Surplus

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 1.—Wholesale prices of two popular items on America's breakfast menu—coffee and sugar—tumbled to record lows today.

Hanover Square, center of the Nation's coffee and sugar trade, blamed the decline largely on the closing of the European markets to shipments from the Western Hemisphereere as result of the Nazi conquests on the continent and the British blockade.

Commodity men said it was a reminder of the problem of disposing of raw material and food surpluses facing Latin America since the loss of European outlets.

In the futures market, sugar for delivery to foreign destinations sold around .85 of a cent a pound, compared with the peak of 2¼ cents last September at the height of the run-up in commodities immediately after the outbreak of hostilities.

At the start of the war, commodity men recalled, sugar for delivery in the world markets was selling at about 1¼ cents a pound. A wave of hoarding in fear of a sugar shortage and expectation of heavier exports to Europe quickly lifted the market about a cent a pound.

Refined sugar prices in this country also continued on the skids. In the East the wholesale market was down to about 4.35 cents a pound compared with 5.75 during the hoarding scare last September.

Dealers said the pressure on the domestic market, aside from backing up of surplus at producing centers, was due mainly to importation of too much sugar under the United States quota system. Many have been clamoring for downward revision of the import quotas.

Cuba sold part of her output to European markets now shut off from American trade.

Santos coffee for delivery in September fell to a record low of 5.41 cents a pound. In the initial war boom in commodities, coffee rose from around 6 to 7 cents a pound but did not climb as rapidly as sugar.

Coffee traders estimated European markets for about 10,000,000 bags of coffee had been closed indefinitely, leaving the United States as the only major market open. England, they noted, prefers tea to coffee around the clock.

July Drought Lowers Grain Crop Estimate

August 1 Condition Indicates Corn Harvest Off 100,000,000 Bu.

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 1.—Hot and dry weather during various periods of crop growth the past month lowered the United States corn prospects more than 100,000,000 bushels and cut the potential spring wheat harvest 29,000,000 bushels, according to the estimates of experts released at the Board of Trade today.

The experts, however, raised their estimates of winter wheat and oats production.

The average of six August estimates indicated a corn harvest of 2,322,000,000 bushels is probable. This is 118,000,000 less than the experts forecast a month ago and it compares with 2,416,000,000 official Government estimate a month ago. The 1939 crop was 2,619,000,000 bushels.

The spring wheat harvest estimate was cut to 193,000,000 bushels but the experts raised their estimates of winter wheat production to 524,000,000 bushels, a gain of 25,000,000 compared with a month ago. Thus, the indicated total wheat crop of 717,000,000 bushels was only 4,000,000 less than forecast July 1 and 38,000,000 less than produced last year. The oats crop was estimated at 1,064,000,000 bushels compared with 937,000,000 last year.

The three western provinces of Canada promise a wheat crop of 390,000,000 to 440,000,000 bushels, according to the estimates of H. C. Donovan and R. O. Cromwell, two of the experts. Last year's crop totaled 463,000,000 bushels. Cromwell estimated the Manitoba crop at 55,800,000 bushels, Saskatchewan 214,900,000 and Alberta 169,000,000.

Nat C. Murray estimated the probable U. S. cotton crop at 11,100,000 bales compared with 11,800,000 last year and an average during the preceding ten years of 13,500,000 bales.

Loadings Remain Above Year Ago But Dip in Week

By the Associated Press

The Association of American Railroads reported yesterday 718,489 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ended last Saturday.

This was a decrease of 11,408 cars, or 1.6 per cent, compared with the preceding week; an increase of 82,958, or 9.6 per cent, compared with a year ago, and an increase of 129,792, or 22 per cent, compared with 1938.

Declines in miscellaneous freight, grain, livestock and ore shipments caused a larger than seasonal drop in total loadings, based on 1929-30 as 100, declined to 73.2 compared with 73.8 the previous week, and 67.2 a year ago.

Procter & Gamble Earnings Reach 103-Year Record

Net profit for the fiscal year ended June 30 totaled $28,628,493, exclusive of earnings of Canadian and English subsidiaries. The net equals $4.37 a share on common stock.

Last year's net was $25,399,792, equal to $3.84 a share on common.

Fourth-quarter operations produced a profit of $6,355,345, equal to 96 cents a share, against $6,930,753, or $1.04 a share in the comparable period last year.

Building Awards Continue Gain

New York, Aug. 1 (AP).—Defense construction contracts continued to boost engineering awards this week, raising total contracts for the year to date above the corresponding period a year ago for the first time, Engineering News-Record reported today.

The current week's awards, $89,602,000, were the fourth highest of the year, topping the previous week by 71 per cent and the same week last year by 89 per cent.

Week's Auto Output Estimated at 12,360

Detroit, Aug. 1 (AP).—Automotive News in its weekly survey of the motor industry's assembly activity estimates today that output for the current week will amount to 12,360 units. Assemblies last week numbered 32,784. This week a year ago they totaled 23,251 cars and trucks.

This week's output represented approximately 3,000 cars and trucks by Ford and Mercury, only plants still turning out 1940 model cars; commercial vehicle assemblies by Dodge and some General Motors truck plants, and 1941 model production by Hudson, Packard and Graham.

Aluminum Co. Cuts Price Another Cent

Pittsburgh, Aug. 1 (AP).—The Aluminum Co. of America today announced a reduction of 1 cent a pound for aluminum, the second such price cut this year.

The company lowered its price from 20 to 19 cents last March 25. President Roy A. Hunt declaring "the benefits of research and development together with expansion of plants and facilities permit the company to expect lower costs."

Foreign Markets

Oil shares continued to be a feature with considerable gains recorded. British funds also improved.

Trinidad oil issues were especially strong after the United States export embargo on aviation gasoline.

Major Staples Hold Steady; Others Mixed

Wheat, Corn, Cotton Close Unchanged To Slightly Lower

Immediate supply and demand influences cut a wide swath yesterday in speculative commodity markets and left prices highly irregular.

Wheat and corn at Chicago both closed unchanged to fractions lower per bushel, but they were relatively steady in the face of a moderate flow of selling. Support was based on reports pointing to crop deterioration during the late July heat wave.

Cotton finished unchanged to 2 points lower.

Mixed to slightly higher were lead, cottonseed oil, wool tops, cocoa and silk. Rubber and copper futures had moderate losses.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale spot staples declined to 69.79 per cent of the 1926 average, from 69.94 per cent on Wednesday.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Aug. 1 (AP).—Crop experts' August estimates indicating hot and dry weather during July reduced the prospective U. S. corn and spring wheat harvests 5 and 13 per cent respectively failed to stimulate much buying in the grain market today.

Pit brokers said the reason for this apparently was that the figures were about in line with trade expectations. Furthermore, recently improved weather conditions for corn took much of the sting from estimates indicating crop prospects had been lowered more than 100,000,000 bushels. An upward revision in winter wheat figures offset most of the reduced spring crop estimate.

After fluctuating within a range of only ⅛-⅜ cent, wheat closed unchanged to ¼ lower, compared with yesterday's finish, September, 76@75⅞; December, 76@76½. Corn closed at the day's low, unchanged to ⅝ off compared with yesterday, September, 61⅛@61⅝; December, 58⅛@58¾; oats, ⅜-¾ down; rye, ⅛ lower and lard unchanged to 3 higher.

Shipping sales of 142,000 bushels of corn helped to steady that market. Hedging and an upward revision of the crop estimate weakened oats. The experts placed production at 1,064,000,000, an increase of 10,000,000 compared with a month ago and 127,000,000 compared with a year ago.

Lard borrowed firmness from hogs.

It was a small order affair throughout with prices holding within a five-point range. The close was unchanged to two points down.

The Wednesday bulge in cotton goods business to the best volume in several weeks tended to flatten out today. Sellers reported a good inquiry but actual bookings were comparatively small.

D. C. Banks Invite Loans For Expansion

Eager to Cooperate In Defense Program, Says McLachlen

Washington banks stand ready to do their part in the defense program. In a formal statement yesterday A. M. McLachlen, president of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, said:

"In connection with . . . the national defense program, Washington bankers have expressed their willingness and eagerness to cooperate . . . They have ample funds on hand to meet all sound applications from individuals and businesses which desire to expand in connection with this program."

Recently local banks, through the District association, wired Robert M. Hanes, president of the American Bankers Association, advising him of their desire to cooperate in every possible manner in the defense program.

Local Agency Honored

The Washington agency of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. won the achievement cup for the last fiscal year, it was announced yesterday by Roger L. Baldwin, local general agent. The 85 agencies of the company compete annually for this award, which is based on a graded point system including four conservation and four production factors. Ten members of the local agency attended the sixty-fourth annual meeting last week at the company's home office in Milwaukee.

North American's Report

In its consolidated income report for the year ended June 30, 1940, the North American Co. for the first time excluded the operating results of Washington Railway & Electric Co. except as to dividends received.

On December 29, 1939, the giant utility holding company reduced its investment in voting stock of W. R. & E. from 50.02 per cent to 47.46 per cent. This was accomplished by cutting its holdings of W. R. & E. common stock from 95.69 per cent to 89.79 per cent.

As a result, North American now carries dividends received from W. R. & E. as nonoperating revenues.

Steel Aide to Move Here

To coordinate further United States steel activities arising from increasing requirements of the national defense program, G. Cook Kimball, executive vice president of U. S. Steel Corporation, of Delaware, will transfer his headquarters temporarily from Chicago to Washington.

The change will be effective August 15, a company announcement said yesterday.

Savings Banks Assets, Deposits At 125-Year Peak

New York, Aug. 1 (AP).—The National Association of Mutual Savings Banks reported today its member institutions had more depositors, assets and deposits on June 30 than ever before in the 125-year history of mutual savings banking.

For the six months from January 1 to June 30 deposits rose by $109,153,501 to $10,589,837,827. Assets increased by $103,939,137. The upward swing in the number of depositors brought 308,357 new accounts, carrying the total to 15,756,823, new peaks for all.

New York, Massachusetts and Connecticut showed the largest gains in all three classifications.

Interest, or dividend rates, declined six one-hundredths of 1 per cent in the period, averaging 2.20 per cent for all of the mutual institutions, the association said, emphasizing "the continued difficulties of investing capital."

'Good Neighbor' Policy Raises Inevitable Economic Problems

By Merryle S. Rukeyser
Economic Commentator

The practical type of economic problem which the United States faces in Latin America as a result of the war in Europe is currently illustrated by the oil export problem. The closing of ports of entry of most European buyers has crippled the export trade from the Western Hemisphere.

Though the decline of United States oil exports amounts to some 15 per cent of domestic production, the amount involved bulks sufficiently small to our total national economy to be readily absorbed.

But the export loss is more acute to Venezuela, whose national economy is more directly tied to the shifting fortunes of the oil industry. Moreover, Venezuela, it is understood, has suffered a loss approaching 50 per cent in oil exports.

This oil export problem presents in laboratory form the type of Latin-American trade problem with which the Havana Conference has been concerned.

As far as the interests of the United States are concerned, there is a conflict between political and economic aims.

On the political side, it is argued that unless Venezuela is relieved from the economic distress caused by loss of outlets for oil exports, it will inevitably fall into the Fascist orbit.

Presumably, in order to prevent this contingency, it has been tentatively proposed that, though the United States export market has likewise suffered and, although the midcontinent field is worrying about domestic overproduction, that the United States, the "good neighbor," should import from Venezuela such oil as normally would have gone to Europe. It is argued that so doing would bring economic relief to Venezuela, and would prevent a drift into working alliance with European nations.

But the price which we would have to pay for such internationalism would be further regimentation of our domestic oil industry in order to prepare it for the shock of unusual imports at a time when our export outlets have been in part cut off and when domestic stocks are large. As part of the deal, there would have to be a further "cut back" of domestic production of crude oil.

If this were ordered, domestic oil producers could be assured by an arbitrary increase in crude oil prices amounting to ⅛ cent per gallon in the retail price of gasoline, which, it has been computed, would enable the industry to make as much profit on a smaller turnover. The smaller turnover, however, would probably mean fewer hours of employment for American workers.

Thus, the "good neighbor" policy, which seemingly has so much obvious appeal, inevitably raises economic complications.

There has been some disposition to interpret Nelson Rockefeller's assignment to Washington as an indication that the Administration would be urged to work out a plan for absorbing in this country Venezuela's normal exportable surplus of oil.

The new requirement that American oil be exported only by license, if it shuts off or reduces exports to Japan, may work out to the injury of American oil companies operating in California while the export sales of Standard Oil of New Jersey and of Socony-Vacuum, which own producing fields in the Dutch East Indies, may be boosted. It is assumed that supplies in the Netherlands East Indies will take up any slack in oil shipments which result from the new policy within the territory of the United States.

The Market

Stocks Relapse Into Familiar Doldrums; Oil Shares Soften; Paper Issues Strong

New York, Aug. 1.—All was prudence and restraint in today's stock market and the hopes that were heightened by the mid-week bulge in prices were dimmed again. The list has held its gains but has shown no inclination to follow them up. The Herald Tribune's composite average yesterday showed no change and trading volume dropped to 326,990 shares. Such lack of activity and change is quite familiar to the street, for we had five weeks of it before the spirited rise of a few days ago.

Government bonds were steady and the foreign bond list was featured by strength in all the Norwegian issues on announcement that the Government would meet its dollar interest payments. Gains in these issues ran 1 to more than 3 points.

Paper Issues Strong

The day in Wall street was given over to a handful of special moves while the general list appeared to be waiting for a break in the European war situation. Paper shares provided a strong section, the common of International Paper being the day's most active stock and climbing a fraction. The preferred jumped 1½. Union & Bag was up a fraction and Crown Zellerbach eased slightly.

The entire oil division was soft with Texas a leader on the downside, giving up 1¼ points. Selling was attributed in large measure to the connection between one of the executives of the company and Gerhardt Alois Westrick, German lawyer and counselor to the German embassy, now in this country.

While the action of the market yesterday and Wednesday has been disappointing to those who have watched business indices mounting and have expected a greater reflection in share prices, it must be realized that the list has just been through what is probably the longest period on record when values were virtually unchanged.

The conditions which existed throughout this prolonged stalemate still exist today and until they change materially it is too much to expect the market to break sharply out of its rut. It provided a hint of such emergence Tuesday, but apparently traders are again content to sit on the sidelines.

What Market Needs

Failure of the thrust at England, assurance that domination of our domestic political affairs can be wrested from the present machine or even assurance that the Nation's defense program will be promoted without the delay accompanying the present controversy over bookkeeping methods on depletion and amortization would supply the necessary incentive for a big market. The strength of business indices and the improved activity in heavy lines of industry as the defense program starts to make itself felt have not been sufficient.

Most of the price changes in well-known issues were fractional yesterday. Exceptions included duPont, up 1½, and Westinghouse, up the same amount. Harvester dropped 1½, and International Nickel 1¼.

Bonds Continue Dull

Listed bonds remained in the doldrums today save for a spurt in Norwegian issues, occasioned by the strenuous efforts on the part of that country to meet its obligations. Little business was done in the foreign list, but it was the most interesting part of the market. Norwegians advanced 2 to 3 points, whereas Danish bonds were dull, although similar efforts are being made by the Copenhagen authorities. German issues were firm, and other belligerent bonds were dull. Latin-Americans hardly varied at all.

United States Treasury obligations were quiet, while dealers and others arranged payment on the new issue of Commodity Credit Corporation notes. New York City unification bonds held close to their highs. Best-grade utility, railroad and industrial bonds were idle and mostly unchanged.

14 Yearlings From Ellerslie Go to Sales

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 1.—Of the 75 yearlings America's leading breeder, Arthur B. Hancock, of this county, will offer for sale at public auction on August 15 at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., 61 are from his Claiborne Stud at Paris, Ky., and 14 from the Ellerslie Stud, located 6 miles south of Charlottesville and founded over a half-century ago.

Products of the leading stallions owned or standing at Ellerslie and Claiborne studs won last year close to $1,000,000 in America and about $70,000 in England.

From the Ellerslie Stud next week will be shipped six colts and eight fillies, get of Pompey and of Tintagel, both Belmont, Futurity winners. Of the Pompey colts, the most promising, perhaps, are a chestnut colt bred similar to Ladysman and Osculator and brother to Pomparia, and a bay colt, first foal of Lost Horizon, daughter of Sir Gallahad III.

Fillies in Group

The Pompey fillies include a bay out of I'll Say, a daughter of Gallant Fox; a chestnut, three-fourths sister to Sun Charles; a bay, half-sister to Spring Flood, Margy Might, and Gallaton, and a chestnut out of Sicklefeather and half-sister to Chance Cut.

Others in the string are three sired by Tintagel—a chestnut colt out of Hurry Home, by Omar Khayyam; a dark bay filly out of Briarside, by Sun Briar, and a bay filly, first foal of Brown Chick and sire of the dam of Sortie Star, winner of the Cleveland Handicap.

In the lot, too, are two by Stimulus—a bay filly out of Bonny Barry, by Sir Gallahad III; a bay colt out of the family of Bill and Coo and Tete-a-Tete, and a dark bay filly by imported Jacopo, out of a daughter of Polka Dot, winner of Coaching Club American Oaks.

Tintagel Filly Included

With the Hancock string from Ellerslie will also go a Tintagel filly, property of Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin, and two yearlings owned by Mrs. Jane Hancock Garth—a bay filly by Pompey—Charred Keg, and half-sister to Red Eye, winner of Gazelle Stakes and Ladies' Handicap; and a dark bay colt by Gallant Sir out of Miscount and half-brother to Miscompute.

Included in the big contingent from Claiborne Stud are eight English yearlings, which fortunately reached this country safely about a month ago. They are from some of the best blood stock in England.

Interest will undoubtedly be shown in the first crop sired by Omaha, son of Gallant Fox and winner of the so-called American Triple Crown in 1935.

250 Swimmers To Participate In Oxford Meet

Red Cross and WPA Sponsor Event; Twins Lead Entrants

By the Associated Press

Oxford, Md., Aug. 1.—Some 250 swimmers will compete August 17 in the third annual Eastern Shore championship swimming meet and water carnival here.

The carnival is sponsored by the Red Cross and WPA recreation councils of Talbot, Kent, Caroline, Dorchester, Wicomico, and Queen Anne counties. Each county will have 42 entrants in swimming races and life-saving contests.

"Stars" of the meet will be the 10-year-old Joan and Susan Norton-Taylor twins of Oxford, who will give exhibitions of tandem swimming and life saving.

Meet officials include Grant McCubbin, Red Cross field representative and former captain of the Jacksonville, Fla., Beach Patrol; Gordon Stone, Red Cross field representative for Maryland, and Robert Duncan, director of Red Cross first-aid and life-saving instruction for the District of Columbia.

Well-known contestants will include Walter Sandy, Andy Emerick, Jimmy Campbell, Gordon Esterline, Max Rote, swimming coach at George Washington University; Elmer Hipsley, Stretch Ponl and Otis Douglas.

other is scheduled for Spokane August 28, and the team entrains for the return East August 29 for two more exhibitions.

The Skins will attempt to hurdle the world champion Green Bay Packers in a preseason exhibition in Milwaukee on Labor Day afternoon, and the final exhibition will be in Boston September 10 against an Eastern college all-star eleven.

Owner George Marshall, who has been vacationing in California, will join the club in Spokane as will several players who have gone out West ahead of the team.

In the party leaving this afternoon will be Charley Malone, Bo Russell, Bob Masterson, Wayne Millner, Clyde Shugart, Clem Stralka, Jim Meade, Johnny Spirida, Don Irwin, Vic Carroll and Hayward (Sandy) Sanford, the only rookie leaving from the Capital. Sanford was conscripted from the graduating ranks of the University of Alabama because of his knack for booting field goals.

Bucket Head Wins Feature Purse At Rockingham

Salem, N. H., Aug. 1.—Benjamin N. Kane's 4-year-old Bucket Head breezed to an easy five-length victory over Manamaid and Torchy today in the featured mile and sixteenth race on the all-claiming card at Rockingham Park.

The son of Burgoo King was well rated off the pace by Jockey Frank Maschek for the first half mile, running behind Torchy. Dixiana Farm's 5-year-old, and Blazing Heat. He started to move ahead going into the turn and never stopped increasing his long lead. Manamaid came from the rear to nip Torchy.

Bucket Head's time for the mile and a sixteenth was 1:47 4-5, the fastest yet recorded at the meeting. The winner paid $11.60, $5.80 and $3.20, while Manamaid returned $6.60 and $3.60. Torchy paid $3.40 to show.

Miss Bernhard Is Net Victim Of Dot Bundy

Unseeded Star Wins In Straight Sets in Maidstone Tourney

By the United Press

East Hampton, N. Y., Aug. 1.—Dorothy Bundy, of Santa Monica, Calif., unseeded but playing the best tennis of her career, today vanquished Helen Bernhard, of New York, in straight sets, 7—5, 6—3, to advance to the semifinals of the fifteenth annual Maidstone Women's Invitation Tournament.

Miss Bundy encountered difficulty in the early games of the first set, but breezed through the rest of the match with smashing forehand and backhand shots that counted for winning points along the baselines and far corners of the net.

Another to come through the quarter-final round was Gracyn Wheeler, of Santa Monica, who defeated Margaret Osborne, of Los Angeles, after being extended to three sets, 2—6, 6—4, 6—4. After losing the opening set and the first game of the second set, Miss Wheeler removed her shoes and socks and proceeded to win that set and the final stanza on a series of perfectly placed dropshots and hard smashes to the back lines.

Nats Aim for First-Division Berth

One of the reasons the Nats have been winning ball games is, strangely, the presence of a second baseman on first base. Jimmy Bloodworth, who lost the second base job to Buddy Myer, is giving the Nats the best protection at first base they've had all season.

Bloodworth is no first sacker by trade, but he is a versatile sort and he knows what to do with his feet around the bag, which is more than Zeke Bonura gave the Nats. He has a strong pair of hands and the best throwing arm of any first baseman the Nats have had since Joe Judge.

Myer Old Self Again

At second base, Myer is giving the Nats much of the same talents he brought to the club in his younger days. He declares he is healthier now than at any time in the last three years and his play seems to prove it. He scampers around the infield like a youth, and has blossomed again as a dangerous hitter with men on bases—perhaps the Nats' best.

Myer, Cecil Travis and Buddy Lewis are the chief run-producers of the club and their lofty averages are significant. Harris faces something of a pitching situation for the Saturday game here, with Rene Monteagudo likely to get a stop-gap starting job . . . The White Sox will be without the services of their leading run-producer, Julius Solters, who pulled a leg muscle. Rick Ferrell is now secure as the Nats' No. 1 catcher . . . Jake Early has faded lismally and Al Evans is now rated as No. 2 on the catching staff . . . The Nats had an off day today and spent it—you guessed it—at Comiskey Park, watching the White Sox battle the A's.

Augie Galan May Be Lost To Baseball

Cub Fielder Hurts Knee Again; Injury May Force Idleness

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Aug. 1.—Augie Galan looked glumly into the future today and saw at least 15 more days in Temple Hospital, no more baseball this season and a question mark in his major league future.

Galan, hard-hitting Cub leftfielder, ran headlong into a concrete wall at Shibe Park yesterday while chasing a foul fly in the Chicago-Phillie game. He suffered a fractured left knee cap and a bruised right knee.

Knee Injured Twice

Ironically, the fracture was on the same knee that was injured by Galan two years ago in a collision with another player.

"The leg was beginning to feel perfect," Galan said today. "The muscle around the knee had been badly torn, but if it had not been for yesterday's accident, I don't believe it would have given me any more trouble.

Back to Chicago

"I don't think I'll be able to play any more this year—in fact, I am sure I can't."

Galan's leg is so swollen that it will be impossible to put a plaster cast on it for another day or two. The 27-year-old bachelor, who lives at Berkeley, Calif., plans to return to Chicago when released from the hospital.

NibbleHanover Captures Trot At Pawtucket

Long Key Wins 1st Heat; Royal Spencer Sets Early Pace

By the Associated Press

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 1.—Dunbar Boatwick's Nibble Hanover scored his first important victor, since 1938, when he was the 2-year-old champion, by winning the $3,325 Messenger Stake here this afternoon.

The former juvenile star had raced only once previously this season after being laid up all through 1939. He won two heats in 2:06¼ nad 2:04½, respectively, after finishing second in the first heat.

E. J. Merkle's Long Key won the first heat of this trot for 4- and 5-year-olds. The lead changed several times around the first turn and into the back stretch, but Ben White drove Long Key up to the front half way down the back stretch. The son of Peter Volo stayed there to the finish. E. Roland Harriman's Bagpiper was third. The time was 2:05.

Royal Spencer, from the Biery Farm, was the early pace-setter in the second heat with Nibble Hanover making no serious move until he reached the far turn. Then he and Long Key drove for the wire, reaching the finish on almost even terms. The judges called for the official picture of the finish before selecting Nibble Hanover as the winner. Royal Spencer stayed in contention and finished third.

Nibble Hanover went to the front entering the back stretch in the third heat but surrendered it to Long Key in the far turn. Driver Harry Whitney saved his horse for the stretch drive and sent him out to outrace the two Harriman trotters, Spud Hanover and Bagpiper, which were second and third.

Grin and Bear It — By Lichty

ADVERTISEMENT

Listen! with Glynn

If you feel that it's too warm and that you're overworked and that things are just a little too much to bear, just think of the little extra chore Elinor Lee, WJSV's home economist, has taken upon herself and be cheered.

For the indefatigable Miss Lee, not satisfied with her present radio chores which have her on the air five times a week, has committed herself to a talent search which promises to make the labors of Hercules seem pretty darned sissy if you ask us.

Starting Monday our Miss Lee gets aboard a Wilson Line steamer, with microphones, engineers, accompanists and what have you, as the beginning step to auditioning hundreds of kids for a children's variety show she intends to produce over WJSV next fall.

Monday is "Kiddies' Day" on the Wilson Line run from Washington to Mount Vernon, it seems, and it is Miss Lee's tremendous purpose to allow the kiddies to show off their entertaining prowess as the voyage is made and then, at its conclusion, to put on an impromptu show. The idea is that after she's done this for four or five weeks, she'll have the nucleus for a good children's program by September.

As we understand it, the capacity of the Wilson Line boats is 2,400. We wish we were as brave and strong as Miss Lee.

First Lady Says Religion Aids Defense

Civic Leaders Told Citizens Should Have Stake in Democracy

By the Associated Press

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt advocated tonight a return "to the real conception of democracy which is based on religion" as a means of solving this Nation's problems including those of national defense.

A democracy thus grounded, the First Lady told a conference of civic organization presidents called in the interest of national defense, would mean "that everyone in life should get a chance and a place" in the community.

Mrs. Roosevelt flew here from Hyde Park, N. Y., to address the conference sponsored by Miss Harriet Elliott, consumer adviser on the National Advisory Defense Commission.

Mrs. Roosevelt urged the conferees as heads of organizations to work to put through a program which would mean service and training for every individual in the community.

If every individual has a job to do in a national defense program it would give him a feeling that he has a stake in democracy, Mrs. Roosevelt said.

Protection for Consumer

The object of the conference, Miss Elliott explained, is to help her devise a plan to protect the consumer against an undue rise in the cost of living and to work toward improvement in the public welfare as a means of national defense.

As far as possible, Miss Eliott said, she intends to carry on her work through a staff of three—Mrs. Minnie Fisher Cunningham, contact officer for local groups interested in defense participation; Ben Lewis, chief economist, and Miss Gay Shepperdson, assistant in charge of public welfare problems.

The conference divided itself into these sections:

"Consumer-Buyer Problems," led by Mrs. Saidie Orr Dunbar, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs; "Nutrition as a Basis for Physical Fitness," led by Morris L. Cooke, former Rural Electrification administrator; "Public Health and Consumer Aspects of Housing," Malcolm S. MacLean, director of the General College, University of Minnesota; "Social Well-Being," Frank Graham, president of the University of North Carolina, and "The Consumer Adviser's Office and Organized Civil Groups," W. W. Waymack, editor of the Des Moines Register and Tribune.

Cardenas Sees Welles to 'Clarify' Oil Situation

This Government's new embargo against the export of aviation gasoline to Europe and Asia led Juan Francisco de Cardenas, the Spanish Ambassador, to inform the State Department yesterday that Spain's oil imports during the last two years had been exclusively for its own needs and not for Nazi Germany or Fascist Italy.

A championship may be lost by one such bad decision or won by a good one such as is shown in today's hand. Although skillful play is important, in the last analysis it is the bidding which makes champions.

Of course, North had no way of being certain that South's ace was the ace of hearts. But the three-heart raise indicated good trump support with probably one ace, and there was a two-to-one chance for North that the ace was in clubs or hearts rather than spades, where it would do him no good.

East wisely refrained from doubling and North made 12 tricks by finessing the ten of clubs against the jack and conceding only the club ace. He ruffed the losing diamond in the dummy.

Few other pairs reached this slam, which was made with ease in spite of two aces and a king being held against it.

Search Continues for Missing Snake-Bitten Victim of Cult

6-Year-Old Girl Believed Spirited Away By Mother to Avoid Medical Treatment After Attack by Reptile in Ritual

By the Associated Press

Adel, Ga., Aug. 1.—Search continued in the sun-baked pine woods and tobacco fields of this south Georgia rural section today for a mother and her snake-bitten 6-year-old daughter as authorities began an investigation of "snake-handling" by a religious cult.

Unconfirmed reports were that the child, Leitha Ann Rowan, had died of the bite inflicted on the palm of her hand a week ago while she handled a copperhead moccasin during services being conducted by the group known as members of the Free Holiness Church.

The girl's father, Albert Rowan, was jailed Monday along with Farmer-Preacher W. T. Lipham, identified as a leader of the cult who demonstrates the ability of himself and his followers to handle deadly snakes when the "power is upon them."

Rowan, a tenant farmer, given a commitment hearing today, was ordered held until the young daughter is located. Lipham also was held, and Judge W. R. Smith, of Cook County, directed that if the child is found dead, or if it later dies, the two men be held to the grand jury on a charge of murder.

Judge Smith granted a temporary injunction restraining members of the cult from conducting any services involving the handling of poisonous snakes. His order provided for release on bond of Rowan and Lipham if the child is found and pronounced out of danger by a physician.

The child's mother spirited her away apparently to forestall further medical aid, said Sheriff W. T. Daughtry, who expressed fear for the little girl's life. Leitha Ann, her body discolored, apparently in a stupor and barely able to talk, was found by officers with her father Monday night.

Given prompt treatment, the girl was returned to her mother's custody, but when further medical attention was sought yesterday officers found she and her mother had disappeared. Sheriff Daughtry said eight other persons, including the girl's father, were bitten as the snake was passed around.

Funeral Provided For Girl, 3; Cash, Clothing Donated

A dress and shoes which she will wear today to the funeral of her little daughter, Wiona, were brought to Mrs. Stephen O'Donald, 1606 Thirty-third street, yesterday by a Washington woman who had read in The Post of the family's distress. Another Good Samaritan brought four children's dresses and there were several small gifts of money from anonymous donors, all of which have served to lighten the burden of need and unhappiness for the family.

Wiona, 3, was fatally injured when struck by an automobile Monday afternoon near her home. When it was learned the family had no money for the child's burial, many offers of assistance were given and all details of the funeral now have been arranged. The services will be at 10 this morning, from the George W. Wise funeral home, with the Rev. M. M. Perkins of the Grace Episcopal Church officiating. Interment will be in Oakwood Cemetery, Falls Church, Va.

Mrs. O'Donald, her invalid husband, the eldest daughter, Edith, and a younger daughter, Agnes, will attend the funeral. A little white frock which was among the things given them yesterday will provide Agnes a proper dress to wear. Anna, 12, will remain at home to care for a younger sister, Nina Ruth; her little brother, Charles, and Baby Catherine.

Mrs. O'Donald asked The Post to express her thanks to those who had sent anonymous gifts. "I want them to know I appreciate everything that has been done," she said, "but I have no way of reaching them."
